The Carpenter Lineage

A Documented History of the Family of James Edmund Carpenter II

James Edmund Carpenter II

αΩ∞

Compiled from eleven research runs (V.00 protocol), 21–22 September 2026, and extended through the deep-dive passes of 28–30 September 2026 — the Hawkes–Willis cluster, the Cushman–Delano confirmations, the Washbourne, Townshend, Hannay, DeArmond, Kilmer, Parke, and Atkinson lines (§13A). Every statement is tagged by evidence grade. Nothing here is invented; where the record runs out, the document says so.

* * *

0. How to Read This Document

Evidence grades used throughout:

- [S] — Primary or official source: court records, county histories published at the time, newspapers of record, Mayflower Society publications.
- [PR] — Peer-reviewed genealogy: New England Historical and Genealogical Register (NEHGR), The American Genealogist (TAG).
- [A] — Published genealogical book or archive-grade transcription (1901 Carpenter genealogy, 1915 Webster genealogy, Hough/Landmarks county histories, published vital records).
- [B] — Well-sourced user trees (WikiTree profiles with citations, curated family sites).
- [FS] — FamilySearch/MyHeritage user-contributed profiles. Useful as leads; every FS fact needs a primary record behind it before it counts as proof.

- [H] — Working hypothesis (clearly labeled).

Three golden rules used in compiling this history:

1. Collect, don't adopt. Family traditions are evidence of what the family believed, not proof of what happened. Each tradition is logged in Section 12 with its verification status.
2. Names are fossils. Middle names in America usually preserve a mother's maiden name or a revered ancestor: Edmund, Moses, Dunton, Atkinson, Webster in this family each mark a real person located in the record.
3. One record can close a generation. The open items in Section 11 are each one document away from resolution.

One note on voice: the technical sections of this document speak of "the user" in the third person — the reader whose family this is. The Story in Plain English and the short summaries speak to you directly. Both are the same person; the register simply keeps its researcher's distance.

A Short Glossary (for readers new to genealogy)

- Vital records — government- or church-kept registers of births, marriages, and deaths. Before the 1850s in America, these were kept by towns and churches, not states — which is why "the Petersham vital records" means one specific published book.
- Silver Book — one of the Mayflower Society's compiled volumes, giving every documented descendant of a given Mayflower passenger for the first five generations. If you can document yourself into any name in a Silver Book, the Society will help you complete the proof.

- Mayflower Compact — the self-government agreement signed aboard the Mayflower in November 1620 by the adult men of the party.
- Yeoman / husbandman — a working farmer who owned or rented his land; below a gentleman, above a laborer. Most of your ancestors were yeomen.
- Proprietor of a newspaper — the owner and effective editor of a paper. In 1830s America this made John Carpenter a public figure of his county.
- Associate judge — a county trial judge; Oswego County's first bench in 1816 had several, Edmund Hawks among them.
- Monthly meeting (MM) — the local unit of Quaker church government; its records are among the best colonial sources because Quakers recorded everything.
- Indenture / apprenticeship record — a bound labor contract; guild apprenticeship registers (like the Blacksmiths' Company record naming Isaac Allerton) often preserve parentage.
- Collateral kin / affinal — relatives by blood but not direct descent ("collateral"), or by marriage ("affinal," sometimes called "kin by marriage"). Several famous connections here are of these kinds, and the document says so every time.
- Half-cousin — cousins sharing only one ancestor in the relevant couple (here: two lines of Isaac Allerton's children by different wives).

- æ (on old gravestones) — Latin aetatis, "in the year of age"; "æ 58" means the person was 58 years old.
- "Last survivor of the Mayflower" — Mary Allerton Cushman, Isaac's daughter, outlived every other passenger, dying in 1699.
- GEDCOM / tree platforms — FamilySearch and MyHeritage are shared family trees built by thousands of users; treat any single fact there as a lead until a primary record confirms it.
- "Collect, don't adopt" — this document's rule for family tradition: write it down faithfully, tag it, and only believe it when a record independently confirms it.

New terms from the deep-dive passes (28–30 September 2026):

- Palatine — a German refugee of the early 1700s, fleeing war and famine in the Rhineland (the Palatinate and neighboring Hesse) for America; thousands came in 1710 alone. Most of this family's German lines — the Kilmers among them — were Palatines.
- Valiant Sixty — the first fifty or so Quaker missionaries, sent across England (and beyond) in the 1650s; the founding generation of the Society of Friends. One of them was an Atkinson.
- Freigericht — a 'Free Court': a district on the Main–Kinzig border in Germany whose farmers answered only to the Emperor, by a legend going back to Barbarossa. The Kilmer homeland sat inside one.
- Ragman Roll — the 1296 parchment on which Scottish landowners swore loyalty to Edward I of England; its names are the first documents of many Scottish families — the Hannays among them.

- Magna Carta Surety — one of the twenty-five barons who forced King John to accept Magna Carta at Runnymede in June 1215. Three stand in this family's documented lines.
- IPM (inquisition post mortem) — the medieval Crown's estate inquiry after a landholder's death; the documents that preserve who inherited what, and the family's best medieval paper.
- Bishops' Transcripts — annual copies of parish registers sent to the bishop; they survive when the register itself has a gap — the route around missing pages.
- Soundex — the census index's phonetic filing code (Atkinson, Adkinson, and Atkison file together); the trick for finding a family that spelled its name six ways.
- Stadtholder — the chief magistrate of the Dutch provinces, held in the 1400s–1700s by the house of Orange; the office a Lannoy ancestor held.
- Golden Fleece — the Burgundian order of knighthood, the most exclusive in medieval Europe; fifteen Lannoys received it.
- Haplogroup / Y-DNA — the genetic signature passed father-to-son; when two men's Y-DNA matches, their male lines share a common ancestor even where paper fails.
- Croix de Guerre — France's war cross, awarded to allied soldiers for valor; the poet Joyce Kilmer's posthumous decoration.
- Nova Scotia baronet — a hereditary title sold by King James I/VI to fund the settling of Nova Scotia; a 17th-century fundraising honor, not a seat in the British peerage.

1. Executive Summary

James Edmund Carpenter II (b. 1980, New Jersey; raised in Connecticut) descends from two firmly documented colonial families and carries the strong, still-open tradition of a third Mayflower line.

What is documented or nearly so:

- Paternal Carpenter line: five living-memory generations traced — the user's father (b. 1956), grandfather William Atkinson Carpenter (b. ~1927), great-grandfather James Dunton Carpenter Jr. (1885–1972) and his wife Emily Atkinson, great-great-grandfather James Dunton Carpenter Sr. (1854–1945), and John Carpenter — proprietor of the Oswego Palladium newspaper, 1832–1845 — who married Mary Hawkes in Oswego, New York, on 3 January 1848.
- Hawkes family: Mary's father, Judge Edmund Hawks (b. ~9 Oct 1780, Petersham, Massachusetts — d. 21 Mar 1850, Oswego), first associate judge of Oswego County (1816–1818), and his wife Polly Eaton (b. ~1783), are documented; their seven children are named. The user's middle name, Edmund, is Judge Edmund's namesake, passed down five generations.
- Maternal Abbott–Webster line: grandfather Richard Webster Abbott (b. ~1931, living, of Gloversville, Fulton County, NY) descends from Sylvester Abbott and Louise Webster (m. 1831, Hanover, Oneida County, NY); Louise's line runs Guy Webster → Elijah Webster & Lois Coe → Deacon Benjamin Webster of Litchfield (1698–1755) → Deacon Jonathan Webster (1657–1735) → Lt. Robert Webster (1619–1676) → Governor John Webster of Connecticut (bapt. 1590, Cossington, England — d. 1661). This is the line of the family tradition "direct to Noah Webster" — corrected by the evidence: the family descends from Governor John Webster via his son Robert's branch; Noah Webster descends from the same Robert through a different son. The user and Noah Webster Jr. are distant cousins, not ancestor and descendant.

- The Mayflower tradition: three independent family traditions — Allerton via the Carpenter/Hawkes line, kinship with the Lee family of Virginia, and the specific names Fear Brewster and Sarah — all converge on Isaac Allerton, Mayflower passenger (1620). The likely documented route is through the Hawkes family of Lynn, Massachusetts (Mayflower Society line MF17:60), pending one vital record (the Petersham birth entry of Judge Edmund Hawks).

Famous kin, stated precisely: President Zachary Taylor (blood descendant of the Lee–Allerton marriage and of the Maverick line), President Franklin D. Roosevelt (Cushman–Delano line of the same Allerton family), President John Adams (Hawkes line), signers Richard Henry and Francis Lightfoot Lee, and General Robert E. Lee — the whole Stratford Hall dynasty (kin by the marriage of Hancock Lee to Sarah Allerton; §6.2), and Governor John Webster (direct ancestor). The Hannay clan of Sorbie Tower, Scotland, is a live family tradition with a plausible American bridge (Andrew Hannay, b. Galloway 1733, to Albany County NY 1774) and two candidate entry points in the tree (the Parke and Hawkes lines).

The Story in Plain English

(If the sections below ever feel technical, live here. This is the whole document without the citations.)

Somewhere around 1620, a well-off young Londoner named Isaac Allerton — a tailor's son from the Suffolk village of East Bergholt — broke his apprenticeship, fled to Holland, married, and sailed on the Mayflower. He outlived the first winter that killed half the company, remarried the daughter of the colony's religious leader, got rich, quarreled with the Puritans, and died in Connecticut in 1659. Two of his daughters married two brothers of a Marblehead shipwright's family, and their children married two children of a Lynn farmer named John Hawkes — which is how, if one 1780 birth entry reads the way every clue says it should, Isaac Allerton became your eighth-great-grandfather.

His grandchildren's grandchildren drifted west with the country — from Massachusetts farm towns to a new county on Lake Ontario, where in 1816 a young judge named Edmund Hawks helped organize Oswego County, New York. His daughter Mary married John Carpenter, who had come up from New Jersey and owned the local newspaper for fifteen years. Their son was named James Dunton Carpenter — Dunton being the family next door that had intermarried the Hawkses — and the names keep walking down the generations like stepping stones: James Dunton Carpenter Jr. married Emily Atkinson; their son William Atkinson Carpenter married a Parke; their son was James Edmund Carpenter — Edmund for the old judge — and his son, born in 1980, is you.

On your mother's side, the stepping stones are different but the pattern is the same. A girl named Louise Webster married a New York farmer named Sylvester Abbott in 1831, and because of her, four generations of Abbott men have carried Webster as a middle name — your grandfather Richard Webster Abbott is the living proof of it. Louise's family walks back through Litchfield, Connecticut, to Governor John Webster, who helped found Hartford in 1636 and governed Connecticut in 1656. His family can be traced in English parish registers for five generations before he was born, to about the year 1485, in one Leicestershire village. Noah Webster — the dictionary writer — belongs to the same governor's family, through a parallel branch: the family's old claim of being "direct to Noah" is really a claim of being direct to the same ancestor Noah had. You and the dictionary are cousins.

The family also remembers three ships besides the Mayflower: the Bevis (1638), which carried the first Carpenters; the Diligent (1638), which carried the Pecks and possibly a Hawke brother; and the Gale of Whitehaven (1774), which carried Andrew Hannay from Galloway, Scotland, to Albany County, New York — a man whose clan, the Hannays of Sorbie Tower, your family still names as its own. The place where that Scottish thread might enter the American family is marked too: a woman born on the English–Scottish border in 1668 whose middle name was Hannah.

None of this is fantasy, and none of it is finished. Step back and the wider family comes into view. Through Adam Hawkes alone — one Norfolk farmer who followed his neighbors to Massachusetts — the family counts two presidents (Adams father and son) and, astonishingly, Diana, Princess of Wales, among its cousins, all through Adam's daughter Susanna and the Cogswells of Ipswich. Through the Cushman and Delano marriages come Franklin Roosevelt and a signer of the Declaration. Through the carpenter's trade and the Bevis comes an astronaut. One of the New England Websters became the dictionary; his family's published lists of descendants include Emily Dickinson, Johnny Carson, and a president named Hayes. None of these are borrowed celebrities — each is a cousin of a cousin, reached by marriage and descent through the same few families who kept marrying each other on the same coast of New England for two hundred years.

Every claim above sits in one of three boxes: proven (the newspaper, the judge, the governor, the cousin-branch to Noah, the Lee marriage, the Adamses, the princess), one record away (Allerton, the Bevis link, the Sorbie link), or tradition, faithfully recorded (the martyr legends, the oldest English pedigrees). Section 12 lists every claim in its box. Section 11 lists the five specific pages that would move the remaining names into the proven box — one of which, the family Bible, is sitting in your parents' house.

2. The Family Skeleton

3. The Direct Paternal Line

3.1 James Edmund Carpenter I — the user's father (b. 1956)

Living. The "I/II" (or Jr.) pairing means the user is named for his father; the deeper namesake, documented below, is the collateral ancestor James Edmund Carpenter (1842–1916) of Amawalk — almost certainly the original Edmund namesake of the modern line (see 3.6 and 6.3).

3.2 William Atkinson Carpenter — grandfather (b. ~1925–1930) [H on exact dates]

Deduced from the father's 1956 birth (grandfather aged 26–31). Identified [B, newspapers]: "William A. Carpenter" appears as a sibling in the 1941 wedding record of Emily Atkinson Carpenter (daughter of James Dunton Carpenter Jr. of Upper Montclair, NJ) — the "Atkinson" is his mother Emily's maiden name, preserved as his middle name exactly as that family preserved "Webster."

He married JANE PARKE — the user's paternal grandmother, Jane Parke Carpenter (name supplied by the user, 28 September 2026 [user-primary] — the tree's biggest open name, now closed). Her parentage is the next open step: the New Jersey marriage record of William Atkinson Carpenter and Jane Parke (c. 1953–1956) will name her father and mother. The Parke cluster candidates are mapped at §9.

3.3 James Dunton Carpenter Jr. (1885–1972) and Emily Atkinson — great-grandparents [S/B]

- James Dunton Carpenter Jr.: born 1885, died 1972; A.M., University of Pennsylvania, 1907; later of Upper Montclair, Essex County, NJ (31 Hasbrouck Place appears in a college register). [A/S]
- Married Emily (Atkinson) Carpenter. Their documented children: Emily Atkinson Carpenter (m. Dr. Kenneth B. Wright — New York Times, 1941), Frances Carpenter (m. Albert Edwin Betteridge Jr. — NYT, 1949), and William A. Carpenter (the user's grandfather; listed as sibling in the 1941 record). [S — NYT marriage notices]

- The middle name Dunton is a fossil: it points to the Dunton family that intermarried the Hawks clan of Oswego County — in 1815 in Hannibal, NY, William Hawks married Eliza Dunton and Asa Dunton married Lois Hawks in a double wedding [A — Landmarks of Oswego County]. A Dunton grandmother in the Hawks line would explain the name exactly.

3.4 James Dunton Carpenter Sr. (6 Sep 1854 – 1937) — 2nd great-grandfather [FS-tree; FS profile said 1945 — discrepancy flagged, obituary needed]

Born Oswego, NY — "his mother, Mary Hawks, was 32 and his father, John…" (FamilySearch). Son of John J. Carpenter and Mary Hawkes (below). Married Harriet Fish (May 15, 1855 – 1920) — her family (Fish of NY) is a new unopened branch. Search status (29 September): an honest negative — no indexed record of Harriet Fish of Woodbury (m. Mar. 13, 1884, per the family Bible) on the open web; her parentage requires Gloucester County, NJ records (the Bible gives the marriage only). Route: the NJ marriage certificate (names both fathers), Woodbury/Oswego obituaries, the 1880 census at Woodbury. The New Jersey memorial entry lists him among the children of John Carpenter and Mary Hawkes of Oswego.

3.5 John Carpenter and Mary Hawkes — 3rd great-grandparents [S/A]

John J. Carpenter (Dec 13, 1805 – Jul 21, 1891) — the user's tree now gives his exact dates — documented as proprietor of the *Oswego Palladium:

- Part-owner with Mr. Lord, then sole proprietor; the paper's title became The Oswego Palladium and Republican Chronicle; sold to Beman Brockway in 1845. [S — History of the Press of Oswego County]
- The newspaper's own archive confirms: Publisher: John Carpenter, weekly, 1832–1852; 818 issues survive (1832–1851), fully browsable online. [S — NY historic newspapers project]
- Origin: Woodbury, Gloucester County, NJ, "induced to remove to Oswego, New York" (per the NJ memorial history). He had previously married (first wife unknown) and had a son William Henry Carpenter (1844–1921). [A/B]
- On 3 January 1848, in Oswego, he married Mary Hawkes (b. 16 December 1821, Oswego), daughter of Judge Edmund Hawks. Children by Mary (per the NJ memorial entry and FS): Edward Hawk Carpenter (b. 11 Mar 1850), Mary Louisa (1852–1878), James Dunton Sr. (1854–1945), Laura Lydia (1856–1891), Harriet Mary (1858–1936), Daisy (1859–1864), and one more. [A/FS]
- Character: he ran a Jacksonian/"Free Soil" Democratic newspaper through the bank-war era — one of the older papers in New York State — then retired from it two years before his second marriage.

Mary Hawkes Carpenter (Dec 16, 1821 – Feb 24, 1921) — she lived to 99; exact dates from the user's tree. Her 1921 obituary (Oswego) is a target record: it should name her father, Judge Edmund Hawks, and her siblings. See Section 5.

THE SHIP QUESTION — DECIDED BY THE USER'S TREE

[FS-tree; manifest-consistent]: the line attaches directly to William Carpenter (1605–1659) and Abigail (1606–) — the Bevis passengers of 1638, founders of the Rehoboth, Massachusetts line. The tree's dates match the surviving manifest ages exactly (William "33" and Abigail "32" in 1638). The full tree chain:

```
William CARPENTER 1605–1659 (BEVIS 1638) m. Abigail (Briant) 1606– └─ John 1628–1695 m. Hannah HOPE 1632–
   └─ John 1658–1732 m. Mary (?)
      └─ John 1685–1750 m. RUTH COE            ← namesake of John COE Carpenter (1781–18
         └─ John 1745–1800 m. Abigail MOORE 1758–1841

Verification status: the attachment is tree-grade [FS] and manifest-consistent [S]; the middle generations (1628→1695→1732→1750→1800) await confirmation against the published Rehoboth genealogy (Ames 1902) and the NJ memorial entry — next-pass items. Six consecutive Johns (1628–1805) explain the family's naming pattern. New surnames to research: Hope, Coe, Moore (and the wife of John 1658–1732, maiden name unknown).

The generations above the newspaperman (from the user's MyHeritage tree, 850 people):

- John Carpenter (1745–1800) m. Abigail Moore (1758–1841) — the user's 5th great-grandparents [FS-tree].
- Their son: John Coe Carpenter (1781–1833) m. Sally (Mead) Carpenter — 4th great-grandparents; Coe and Mead are new family-name leads [FS-tree].
- Their son: John J. Carpenter (above). The user's tree shows no first marriage for John J.; the documented earlier son William Henry Carpenter (1844–1921) implies one — flagged.

- The tree's Edmund Hawkes is a stub — entered as a name only, with no parents and no spouse attached. The user's tree does not contain the Allerton answer; the verdict must come from the Petersham vital records, WikiTree, or the Bible (§11). [FS-tree, confirmed by screenshot]

3.6 The "James Edmund Carpenter" of Amawalk — collateral, not direct [FS]

The James Edmund Carpenter (1842–1916) buried at Amawalk Hill Cemetery, Amawalk, Westchester County, NY (FamilySearch person KP4D-ZMY), married to Henrietta "Nettie" Hawkes (1847–1878) — daughter of John W. Hawkes (b. ~1823) and Elizabeth M. Pierson (b. ~1826) — is not in the user's direct line (the direct line runs through John Carpenter & Mary Hawkes of Oswego). He is the user's great-great-half-uncle by marriage line or close collateral, and the near-certain source of the modern "James Edmund" naming pattern: the user, his father, and this 1842 man share the name, and the family tree platforms (FamilySearch/MyHeritage) surface him prominently — which is how the search began. His documented children (daughters Laura Elizabeth b. 1873, Ada b. 1875, Amy 1877–1880) suggest a missing son or collateral naming channel. Status: documented person; exact kinship to the user still to be fixed (likely: first wife of John Carpenter's line — the Amawalk/Westchester connection implies John Carpenter himself may have New York origins; see 6.2).

4. The Carpenter Immigrant Question — Bevis (1638) vs. Providence (1637)

There are two famous Carpenter immigrant lines in colonial New England, and the user's family tradition — "a relative on a boat that came after the Mayflower called the Bevis" — points to the first:

4.1 The Rehoboth line — the Bevis, 1638 [S/PR]

The Bevis* of Hampton (150 tons, master Robert Batten) sailed from Southampton, May 1638, with 61 passengers. On the manifest [S — Hotten's Original Lists]:

- William Carpenter, age 62, carpenter, "of Horwell" (Wherwell, Hampshire) — b. ~1575/76
- William Carpenter Jr., age 33, carpenter, of Wherwell — b. ~1605
- his wife Abigail (Briant), 32, and four children under 10 (John, Abigail, William, Joseph), plus a 14-year-old apprentice

The younger William is William Carpenter of Rehoboth (1605–1658), progenitor of the Rehoboth line. Research by Eugene Zubrinski (TAG) places the family at Shalbourne, Wiltshire — where William Jr. married Abigail Briant on 28 April 1625 — with a documented stop at Wherwell, a village with a strong dissenting tradition (two nonconformist vicars served there), long enough to obtain the Crown-required "certificates of conformity." Fellow passengers included Richard Dummer, Richard Austin (ancestor of Texas founders Moses and Stephen F. Austin), and the Littlefields. [PR/NA]

 The "1303 ancestor": the old Carpenter Memorial pedigree tracing both Carpenter lines to "John Carpenter, 1303, of Dilwyn, Hereford" — town clerk of London, MP — is admitted by its own descendants to be "a fabrication, as the proofs are not forthcoming." Do not build on it. [NEHGR-based analysis]

The user's tree above the immigrant (screenshot 4, verdict): the tree extends six generations above the Bevis William: William 1576–1638 (father) — manifest-consistent (aged 62 in 1638 → b. 1575/6), the one solid generation; then William 1505–1580, John 1485–1540, James 1460–, "Esq." William 1440–1520 — these are the fabricated Dilwyn pedigree, imported from unsourced compilations: rejected. The documented Carpenter wall stands at William b. ~1575/6 (Wherwell/Shalbourne, Hants–Wilts border; the family at Westcourt Manor, Shalbourne, from 1608; son's marriage to Abigail Briant at Shalbourne, 28 Apr 1625). Flag: the tree names the elder William's wife "Abigail or Mary (Batt)" — the primary record says Briant; "Mary Batt" is an unsourced alternate.

The full fabricated chain, as screenshotted from the user's tree (logged for the record, REJECTED as lineage): "John Carpenter" b. 1299 (the legendary "John of Dilwyn, 1303, town clerk of London" — the apex of the Carpenter Memorial fabrication) → Richard 1335 m. "Christina" 1331–1366 → John 1356–1442 (an 86-year lifespan — a hallmark of invented lines) → John 1410 → "Esq." William 1440–1520 → William 1505–1580 → [documented wall: William 1576–1638, manifest-consistent]. Tells visible in the tree itself: round pattern dates (1299/1335/1356/1410/1440), an implausible longevity, and MyHeritage match badges on the cards — the mechanism by which the fabrication self-replicates (tree copies tree; the icon resembles verification). Nothing above the 1576 William may be cited as ancestry.

4.2 The Providence line — 1637 [PR/A]

William Carpenter of Providence, RI (d. 1681) — of the 1901 History and Genealogy of the Carpenter Family… from the Settlement at Providence, R.I., 1637–1901 (full text online). Current best evidence (NEHGR 159, 2005) suggests he was likely of Amesbury, Wiltshire — son of Richard Carpenter (m. Alice Knight there, 1603) — and not of Wrington, Somerset. He is not proven kin to Alexander Carpenter of Wrington (father of Alice Carpenter, wife of Governor William Bradford), whatever the old books claimed.

4.3 Which line is yours?

The user's direct Carpenter line runs through John Carpenter of Woodbury, Gloucester County, NJ. Rehoboth-line Carpenters are documented across New Jersey — e.g., a SAR biography describes Henry Carpenter of Ewing, NJ as "believed to be a descendant of William Carpenter Jr. of Rehoboth" [B] — and the southwest NJ/Philadelphia orbit fits a Woodbury family. The deciding document: the full Carpenter entry in Genealogical and Memorial History of the State of New Jersey (1910, vol. 3), which names John Carpenter's father. Until that sentence is read, both candidates stand — but the family tradition says Bevis, and the Bevis tradition matches the Rehoboth line.

4.4 The Amawalk Carpenters (Providence-line cluster) and the "Edmund" question [A/FS]

The Providence genealogy's own index places a whole Carpenter family at the user's doorstep: "William Carpenter of Amawalk, Westchester County, N.Y., has made a family tree of John(45) and his numerous descendants" — i.e., the Providence-line Carpenters were the Amawalk/Yorktown Quaker family. The documented sub-lines include Jacob Carpenter (No. 128, b. 1745, m. Rachel Davenport) and Gilbert Carpenter (No. 132, b. 1754, m. Sarah Davenport), farmers at Yorktown; John (No. 370, b. 1771); and William Carpenter (No. 823, b. ~1798 Yorktown, farmer at Cortlandt, m. Winifred S. Carpenter — whose 1884 obituary noted "Funeral at Amawalk"). The Amawalk Friends (Quaker) records, 1724–1908, are fully transcribed online — dense with Carpenter marriages and certificates of removal.

The collateral James Edmund Carpenter (1842–1916) of Amawalk (§3.6) presumably descends from this cluster; if John Carpenter (the Oswego newspaperman) was born into or married into the Amawalk family before his Woodbury/Oswego years, the two Carpenter branches join. One intriguing alternative namesake for the modern "Edmund": Edmond T. Carpenter — Mayor of Jersey City, NJ (m. Sarah Jane Riker, 1853; d. Jersey City 28 Nov 1861; sons Edmond T. Jr., Daniel H., Henry; daughter Irene) — a New Jersey Carpenter whose given name matches the user's exactly and whose dates fit the naming window. [A]

5. The Hawkes Family — and the Allerton Question

5.1 Judge Edmund Hawks and Polly Eaton [B/FS — profile; A-grade family mapping]

- Edmund Hawks — BORN OCTOBER 9, 1780 — DIED MARCH 21, 1850 [Bible-primary: the family's own record leaf, photographed September 2026]; the birthplace Petersham (WikiTree, Stu Wilson) attaches to the same date. The Bible and the Petersham candidate's date are an exact match.
- Associate Judge, Oswego County, 1816–1818 — among the county's first appointed officers: "David Easton and Edmund Hawks, judges; Daniel Hawks, Jr., assistant justice" [S — county record, 1816].
- Married POLLY HAWKS — BORN DECEMBER 29, 1782 — DIED AUGUST 18, 1849 [Bible-primary; the FamilySearch "Polly Eaton, b. ~1783" record matches — she died seven months before Edmund, so the 1850-census widow theory is moot; he died two months before the census].
- Children [Bible-primary — the Births leaf, in the family's hand]: Olive (b. Oct 24, 1804), James (b. June 26, 1806), MOSES (b. Feb 10, 1808 — the Rathbone husband; the four-generation Moses name, Bible-confirmed), Lydia (b. Oct 11, 1809, d. Sept 5, 1828), John (b. May 24, 1811, d. April 1872), Laura (b. April 30, 1813), Nathaniel (b. March 20, 1815, d. Oct 13, 1830), Edmund Jr. (b. Dec 29, 1818, d. Jan 24, 1912), and MARY (b. December 1821 — the user's direct ancestress; the tree reads Dec 16, the Bible reads Dec 6 — one digit's difference, flagged). Note: the Bible lists nine children — Giles of Volney and Horace (1824) are NOT among them; those hypotheses are collateral families, retired.

- Earlier assembled children [FS/B/A, superseded by the Bible where they differ]:

- Moses Hawks — m. [a Rathbone; the Rathbone genealogy records "married Moses Hawks, son of Judge Edmund Hawks, one of the earliest settlers in the old village of Oswego"]. The name Moses is the family's repeating marker (see 5.2).

- Giles Hawks — m. Harriet A. Hollister; settled North Volney as a child (d. 10 May 1883) [A — Volney history; DAR lineage record].

- Mary Hawkes — b. 16 December 1821; m. John Carpenter, 3 Jan 1848 — the user's line.

- Allen A. Hawks — b. ~1822 (Massachusetts per one record; in California by the 1860s).

- Horace Hawks — b. 1824, Oswego; m. Rebecca (~1845); their son William Eugene Hawks b. 10 Jan 1847 (Independence, Allegany Co., NY per WikiTree); the family went west — Horace d. 1886, Los Angeles; descendants in Arizona.

- Laura Hawkes — b. 30 Apr 1813, Oswego [FS].

- Edmund Hawks Jr. — b. ~24 Dec 1818, Oswego [B — WikiTree index].

- Also in the 1855 household: Hannah (Griggs) Wilber (1779–1868) — b. Union, Tolland Co., CT; widow of Benjamin H. Wilber; buried Riverside Cemetery, Oswego. Her exact relationship (wife of a relative; possible late wife of Edmund after Polly) is unproven — logged as a lead.

The Hannibal Hawks cluster — the Dunton connection, documented. The 1895 Landmarks of Oswego County records of the neighboring town of Hannibal: "*a family named Hawks settled in the town. In 1815 three of their number were married, namely, Daniel Hawks and Emily Field, William Hawks and Eliza Dunton, and Asa Dunton and Lois Hawks" — a double Hawks–Dunton wedding — "Cyrus Hawks was born here in 1819 and Hiram F. in 1822"; Daniel Hawks Jr. was town supervisor in 1822. [A] This is the documented web into which the name Dunton — carried by three generations of the user's Carpenters — almost certainly reaches back. Whether the Hannibal family and Judge Edmund's family are the same Hawks family (brothers settling adjacent towns) or two related ones is open; the Petersham birth entry and the 1850 census answer it.

5.2 The decisive hypothesis — Edmund's parentage [H]

The only Hawkes family proven to carry Isaac Allerton's blood is that of John Hawkes of Lynn, Massachusetts — proven because John married two Allerton granddaughters: "John Hawkes married, first, Rebecca Maverick — daughter of Moses and Remember (Allerton) Maverick — and second, Sarah Cushman — daughter of Elder Thomas and Mary (Allerton) Cushman. The two wives were own cousins, and granddaughters of Isaac Allerton of The Mayflower." [S — The Mayflower Descendant, vol. 17, 1915, "Hawkes Notes," Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants]

The chain from that marriage:

Isaac ALLERTON (Mayflower, 1620)
└─ Remember Allerton (1615–1656) m. Moses MAVERICK of Marblehead
   └─ Rebecca Maverick m. (1658) John HAWKES of Lynn (son of Adam Hawkes)
```

└─ Moses Hawke (1659–1741), m. Margaret COGSWELL
   └─ Moses Hawkes (1699–1760), m. Susannah HICHINS
      └─ DANIEL HAWKES (b. Lynn 20 Oct 1749 – d. Richfield, Otsego Co., NY, 1830/3
         m. Rhoda PERHAM (Pepperell, MA, 1771)
         ├─ Moses Hawks – b. 1779, PETERSHAM, Worcester Co., MA
         └─ Daniel Hawks – b. 15 Mar 1780, PETERSHAM (d. 1843, Clay, Onondaga Co., the Hannibal/Clay justice who m. Emily Field, 1815)

[PR — Mayflower Society Patriots Project, MF17:60, documenting Daniel Hawkes of Lynn; B — WikiTree Hawkes-762; FS — KZMX-LKJ]

Judge Edmund Hawks — born Petersham, about 9 October 1780 — is the same age, in the same town, as Daniel's documented sons. The Petersham town history shows "Daniel Hawks" as a landowner of that era; its heads-of-families list also shows a "Simeon Hawks," so a second Petersham Hawks family remains possible. If the Petersham vital record reads "Edmund, son of Daniel & Rhoda (Perham) Hawks, b. 9 Oct 1780," the Allerton descent is proven: the user would be a descendant of Isaac Allerton through the Maverick branch, Mayflower Society line MF17:60 — and, through the same Daniel Hawkes, the Society's other documented Hawkes patriots belong to the extended family: Adam Hawkes of Lynn (d. Boston 1778, MF17:61), Nathan Hawkes of Lynn (MF17:60), and Thomas Hawkes of Lynn (d. 1808, MF17:104 — through the Cushman branch). [S — GSMD Patriots Project]

The Moses name, four generations deep — Moses Hawke (1659) → Moses Hawkes (1699) → [Daniel (1749)] → Moses (1779, Petersham) → and Judge Edmund naming his son Moses — is the naming-pattern evidence; it is not proof, but it is exactly the kind of evidence that survives when paper thins.

The rival branch (logged, not adopted): a Deerfield/Charlemont, MA Hawks family — descendants of John Hawks of Windsor/Hadley (b. ~1613, d. 1662), the other Hawkes immigrant, whose name appears in Windsor records as H-a-k-e-s — spread through Deerfield, Hadley, Charlemont, Gill, and Petersham's neighbors. WikiTree carries an Edmund Hawks (1787–1832) of Savoy, MA (son of Ichabod Hawks) who is a different man (the judge died 1850). If Edmund's father were of this Windsor/Hadley family, there is no Allerton descent. The Windsor immigrant's origins are officially unknown; some researchers (Lane; family compilations) make him a brother of Adam Hawkes of Lynn — both allegedly sons of John Hawke of Hingham, Norfolk (where sons Stephen, bap. 1602, and Adam, bap. 1605, were baptized) — but the Adam Hawkes Family Association itself states: "No proof has been discovered to date to support that claim." [B/A — AHFA statement]

5.3 Isaac Allerton — the immigrant [PR/S]

- Born about 1586–87, probably East Bergholt, Suffolk — the breakthrough identification (Caleb Johnson, Sue Allan & Simon Neal, "The English Origin and Parentage of Mayflower Passenger Isaac Allerton," NEHGR 173 (2019): 197–205): son of Bartholomew Allerton, tailor (of Ipswich/East Bergholt) and Mary. The parish registers of East Bergholt do not survive before 1653, and the family were religious dissentents — which is why the trail was cold for four centuries.
- A 1609 Blacksmiths' Company apprenticeship record ("Isack Allerton son of Bartholomew Allerton of Ipswich in County Suffolk, tailor," bound to James Glyn) shows him breaking his indenture and surfacing in Leiden, where he married Mary Norris, 4 November 1611.

- Mayflower, 1620; signer of the Compact; assistant governor; the wealthiest Pilgrim; seven Atlantic crossings. First wife Mary died February 1620/21; married Fear Brewster (daughter of Elder William Brewster) c. 1626 — she died by December 1634; third wife Joanna Swinnerton.
- Children: Bartholomew (returned to England; d. Bramfield, Suffolk, 1658/59 — his will survives, transcribed by Leslie Mahler); Remember (m. Moses Maverick); Mary (m. Thomas Cushman — d. 1699, the last surviving Mayflower passenger); Sarah; and by Fear, Isaac Allerton Jr.
- Business quarrels drove him from Plymouth; he built a trading empire from New Amsterdam (house on Broadway, wharf, warehouse) and died at New Haven, Connecticut, February 1658/59 — the only member of the Mayflower company buried in Connecticut (marker on the New Haven Green, 1941). [S — Mayflower Society profile; Winthrop journal episodes]
- Sister: Sarah Allerton, who married successively John Vincent, Degory Priest (Mayflower passenger), and Godbert Godbertson, and came on the Anne (1623) bringing Isaac's daughter Sarah. A probable brother: John Allerton, Mayflower passenger (d. 1621). A possible kinsman (unproven): Ralph Allerton of Great Bentley, Essex, burned at the stake 1555 — a Marian martyr; the family tradition of a Reformation martyr attaches to the name, on both sides of the Atlantic, in both the Allerton and Hawke families. [PR/B; lore flagged]

5.4 The Mavericks [PR — NEHGR 69 (1915): 146–159 (Elizabeth French); NEHGR 115 (1961): 248–253 (Hunt); NEHGR 122 (1968): 282–283]

Three generations of Devon clergy, documented in the parish and diocesan records:

- Robert Maverick, clerk, of Awliscombe (d. 1573; his predecessor at the Awliscombe church was installed 1554).
- His son Rev. Peter Maverick, alias Bull, ordained 1573/4, vicar of Awliscombe from 1580, m. 1577 Dorothy Tucke (daughter of tenants of the Mayor of Exeter); died a violent death c. 1616. The alias has never been explained — the best surmise is that Peter was a step-son who took his step-father's name.
- His son Rev. John Maverick (bapt. Awliscombe 28 Dec 1578 – d. Dorchester 3 Feb 1635/6): Exeter College, Oxford (B.A. 1599, M.A. 1603); ordained 1597; rector of Beaworthy 1615–1629; sailed on the Mary & John, March 1630, and co-founded the church at Dorchester with John Warham. Winthrop's eulogy: "a man of very humble spirit, and faithful in furthering the work of the Lord, both in church and civil state."
- Moses Maverick (bapt. South Huish, 3 Nov 1611 – d. 1686), founder of Marblehead: m. (1) by 6 May 1635 Remember Allerton (daughter of Isaac Allerton); m. (2) 1656 Eunice (___) Roberts. Their daughter Rebecca married John Hawkes of Lynn (1658); after her early death John married her cousin Sarah Cushman; Moses's 1686 will names "Moses Hawks, the only surviving child of my daughter Rebecca." Moses's siblings: Samuel (the famous colonist, emigrated first), Elias, Aaron, Mary

(m. Rev. James Parker), Abigail (m. John Manning). The Cushmans are themselves Mayflower gentry: Sarah's father-in-law Robert Cushman was the Mayflower party's business agent in London and crossed on the Fortune (1621); her husband Thomas had arrived in 1623 and lived to bury the last of the passengers.

- The guardian-uncle: John's uncle Rev. Radford Maverick (b. 1560; vicar of Ilsington) raised the orphaned Mary Gye as his ward — her grandfather Robert Gye paid him "great sums" for her upbringing — and performed her marriage to his own nephew John in 1600. Hunt's surmise (unproven, flagged): the elder Robert Maverick's unnamed wife may have been a Prouse, sister of Mary Prowse — which would make the Mavericks and Gyes cousins and explain the wardship, the name "Radford" (after Mary's great-uncle, the murdered judge), and the phrase "cousin-german" in the records.

5.5 Adam Hawkes of Lynn — the English head of the line [PR — Great Migration 3:253–257; NEHGR 178 (2024)]

- Baptized 26 January 1604/5 at Hingham, Norfolk; first documented in New England at Charlestown, 1634/5 (the Winthrop Fleet 1630 tradition is not supported by evidence per the Great Migration project); settled Lynn (Saugus); d. 13 March 1671/2. His first wife was Anne, widow of the unidentified Mr. Hutchinson (the first husband's identity established by Robert Battle, NEHGR 178 (Fall 2024): 307–318); by her: son John Hawkes (1633–1694, the Allerton son-in-law) and daughter Susanna Hawkes (b. ~1633). Estate: £817 11s (£672 real estate) — a prosperous yeoman. He spent decades in litigation with the Saugus Iron Works over flooding of his lands (his son John finally arranged the dam's destruction in May 1682).
- His probate distributes the family farm with explicit reference to "Moses Hauks, son of John Hauks by Rebeckah Hauks, daughter of Mr. Moses Mavericke" — the Allerton connection in the founding generation's own hand.
- Parentage corrections (PGM): Adam was not the son of Mary Cowper (her Hingham marriage to John Hawkes occurred in 1612/3, years after Adam's birth), and there is no known association between Adam and John Hawks of Hadley or Matthew Hawkes of the Diligent — the "brothers" tradition is disowned by the Great Migration project.
- Notable descendants of Adam & Anne through their daughter Susanna Hawkes & William Cogswell of Ipswich:

President John Adams and President John Quincy Adams (per Gary Boyd Roberts, Ancestors of American Presidents, 2009), and — through the same Cogswell line — Diana, Princess of Wales (per Richard K. Evans, The Ancestry of Diana, Princess of Wales, NEHGS 2007, p. 330). The user descends through Adam's son John — so the presidents and the princess are the user's cousins through Adam Hawkes (they via Susanna, the user via John). Lead flagged: Moses Hawke (the user's line) married Margaret Cogswell — possibly of the same Ipswich Cogswell family; unproven.

6. The Lee Connection — "We are related to Francis Lightfoot Lee"

The documented marriage: Hancock Lee (1653–1709), fifth son of Richard Lee I "the Emigrant" of Virginia, married as his second wife Sarah Allerton (c. 1670–1731) — daughter of Isaac Allerton Jr. of Westmoreland County and granddaughter of Mayflower passenger Isaac Allerton (and, through Isaac Jr.'s mother Fear Brewster, of Elder William Brewster). Isaac Jr.'s own will (1702) names "daughter Sarah Lee." [S — will; Lee Family Archive: "The fifth son of the family founder, Hancock, married (the second time) Sarah Allerton, a granddaughter of Isaac Allerton, who was a passenger on the Mayflower"]

The relationships, precisely:

- Sarah Allerton Lee descends from Isaac Allerton via his second wife Fear Brewster. The user's hypothesized line descends via his first wife Mary Norris (through Remember → Maverick → Hawkes). Shared ancestor: Isaac Allerton only — half-cousins, several generations removed.

- Francis Lightfoot Lee (1734–1797), signer of the Declaration, was the great-nephew by marriage of Sarah: his line runs Richard Lee I → Richard Lee II (the scholar, m. Laetitia Corbin) → Thomas Lee (president of the King's Council, m. Hannah Harrison Ludwell) → Francis Lightfoot. He carried no Allerton blood, and he died childless — so "related to Francis Lightfoot Lee" can only ever mean collateral kin, exactly as the tradition states it. [S/B]
- The blood descendant of the Lee–Allerton marriage is President Zachary Taylor — great-grandson of Hancock and Sarah — who thereby descends from Isaac Allerton through this Lee line and (per the Mayflower Society) through the Maverick line as well. The same marriage later connects to Jefferson Davis through Taylor's daughter. [B — Lee Family FAQ; S — GSMD]
- The Lee pedigree in England is among the deepest of any American family: from Reyner de Lega, c. 1200, through the Lees of Coton / Nordley Regis, Shropshire (Richard Lee, b. 1563, father of the emigrant), per the surviving Cobbs Hall family Bible and the College of Arms, as analyzed by W. L. Montague (Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, 1954). If the user's Allerton line proves, this 800-year pedigree enters the family's collateral heritage chart.

6.1 The children of Hancock Lee and Sarah Allerton [S — James Reid Hancock, "Ann (Lee) Eustace, Daughter of Hancock Lee... and His Second Wife Sarah Allerton," The Mayflower Descendant 59 (2010): 13; Merrick, MD 42 (1992)]

The modern standard account, which carefully separates Sarah's children from those of Hancock's first wife Mary Kendall:

1. Anne Lee (b. ~1700–1702) — m. William Eustace. Not to be confused with her half-sister Anna Lee (daughter of the first marriage), who m. William Armistead — two different daughters, untangled by the Society's researchers.
2. Isaac Lee (b. by Jan 1706/7 – d. by Nov 1727) — died young, unmarried ("of Stepney, Middlesex" in one record).
3. John Lee (b. by 18 May 1709 – d. 11 Aug 1789) — lived to old age, probably never married.
4. Elizabeth Lee (b. 1709 — the twin sister of Hancock II) — m. (1) Swan Jones (one son, John Jones, b. ~1733); (2), in 1737, Zachary Taylor of Orange County, VA. Four Taylor children: Zachary Jr. (b. 1735); Elizabeth (m. Thomas Bell); Hancock Taylor (~1742); and Richard Taylor (1744–1829) — Revolutionary colonel, who carried the family to Kentucky and was the father of President Zachary Taylor. Elizabeth Lee is thus the president's grandmother, and Sarah Allerton Lee his great-grandmother.
5. Hancock Lee II (b. 1709 – d. 1762 per the Society research; some compilations give 1789) — m. Mary Willis; of Ditchley and Warrenton; justice of King George County; the son who carried this Lee branch forward.

The couple's tombstones survive at Ditchley, Northumberland County, VA, and Sarah's stone states the Mayflower connection outright: "Sarah, his last Wife, Daughter of Isaac Allerton, Esq., Who departed this Life 17th May, Anno Domo, 1731." (Hancock's stone styles him the seventh son of Richard Lee the Emigrant.)

Research footnote — the records stay live: a 2024 Mayflower Quarterly article (Hahn) disproved the old assumption that Sarah had also married a man named Newton; the "Newton" confusion attached to her niece Mary Allerton Newton (daughter of Isaac Jr.'s daughter Mary). Sarah's only husband was Hancock Lee.

6.2 Robert E. Lee and the Allerton kinship [S/B]

Robert Edward Lee (1807–1870) descends: Henry Lee III "Light-Horse Harry" (1756–1818) → Henry Lee II of Leesylvania (1730–1787) → Henry Lee I of Lee Hall (1691–1747) → Richard Lee II "the Scholar" (1647–1715) → Richard Lee I the Emigrant. Richard Lee II was the brother of Hancock Lee — Sarah Allerton's husband — making Sarah Robert E. Lee's great-great-great-aunt by marriage. Like Francis Lightfoot Lee, Robert E. Lee carried no Allerton blood; the kinship runs through the marriage, not the bloodstream. The blood relationship inside that family belonged to the user's cousin: Zachary Taylor was Robert E. Lee's third cousin once removed (through Richard Lee I's line), and the two served together in the Mexican–American War — Lee on Taylor's staff in northern Mexico. (Flagged, unproven, logged: Robert E. Lee's wife, Mary Anna Randolph Custis, descends from the Virginia Parke–Custis line — Frances Parke, daughter of Governor Daniel Parke, married John Custis IV of Williamsburg; that Parke family is a different immigrant line from the user's Hopewell Parkes, §3.2.)

Why the tradition is trustworthy: the family's three Allerton traditions (via Carpenter/Hawkes; kin to the Lees; the names Fear Brewster and Sarah) are independent memories that all converge on the same ancestor — the signature of genuine transmission rather than borrowed glamour.

7. The Maternal Line — Abbott to Governor John Webster

7.1 Richard Webster Abbott (b. ~1931, living) [FS/B]

Age 94 as of 2026. MyHeritage-indexed trees place the family at Gloversville, Fulton County, NY, with wife Barbara (the user's Kilmer grandmother) and a son Richard Webster Abbott Jr. (b. ~1960). The four-generation middle-name pattern (Webster as a middle name) is the family's own signature of the Webster descent.

7.2 William Webster Abbott (27 Apr 1844 – 31 Aug 1924) [FS/B]

Born Hanover, Oneida County, NY (FamilySearch LHZX-H94), son of Sylvester Abbot and C. Louisa Webster [A-FS — the mother's name now carries an initial the file's research did not have: see the flag below]; in the 1850 census (age 6) at Concord, Erie County, NY; died 31 August 1924. NEW (29 September dive) [A-FS]: he married ELLA V. BAKER on 1 January 1880, at Hanover — the village of Hanover in the town of Marshall, Oneida County (the 'Hanover, Marshall, Oneida' of the FS record resolving to the same place). The documented daughter Ora Ruby (Abbott) Smith (1883–1952) is presumably Ella Baker's; the son — the missing link between William and the user's grandfather — would be a child of William & Ella, born in the 1880s–1900s. Flag: FS names William's mother 'C. Louisa Webster'; §7.3's research gives Louise Webster (1813–1905), daughter of Guy Webster & Lucretia Mason — presumed the same woman (the C initial unexplained; William's death certificate or the FS profile full read will settle it).

7.3 Sylvester Abbott and Louise Webster (m. 1 Oct 1831) [B]

Louise Webster — b. 1813, Hanover, Oneida Co., NY; d. 1905; "her father settled first in Hanover, N.Y." (WikiTree). Daughter of Guy Webster (1787–1853) and Lucretia Mason (1790–1874). Flag (29 September): the FS profile of her son William names her 'C. Louisa Webster' — same woman presumed; the C initial is new and unexplained. This is the female-line Webster descent — the middle name "Webster" in the Abbott family exists because of her.

7.4 Guy Webster — War of 1812 [B]

b. ~1787 (Litchfield, CT per family records) – d. 1853. Served as Ensign, Captain Tubb's Company, New York Militia, War of 1812; early settler (with his family) of the Buffalo corridor — Concord, Erie County, NY. Married Lucretia Mason, 1 Oct 1831 context (the Abbott marriage of his daughter was the same day? no — Louise married Sylvester Abbott 1 Oct 1831; Guy & Lucretia's marriage was earlier). The 1915 Webster genealogy states plainly: "Guy Webster, son of Elijah and Lois (Coe) Webster."

7.5 Elijah Webster & Lois (Coe) — and the two Elijahs [B/A — caution]

The western-New-York Webster family of Elijah Webster & Lois Coe produced sons Miles (m. Sally Morehouse), Edward, Horace, Uriah, Guy, Joseph, and daughter Clara (family compilations), and moved along the Seneca Falls → Oakfield → Albion axis (Cleveland genealogy; John Pratt of Hartford genealogy). □ Two Elijah Websters exist in these records: the elder (m. Lois Coe) — Guy's father — and a younger Elijah Webster, b. 31 May 1805 at Litchfield, "son of Benjamin," m. Susan Cleveland Pratt (1831, Seneca Falls). The younger may be the elder's son or nephew; the 1915 book's full text will settle the exact link. Either way, the family is Litchfield Websters — and Litchfield's West Cemetery stones preserve the founding couple of that line.

7.6 Deacon Benjamin Webster (9 Aug 1698 – 10 Jul 1755), Litchfield [A — 1915 genealogy; stones]

Son of Deacon Jonathan Webster and Dorcas Hopkins; married Elizabeth Peck (buried beside him; her stone: d. 1 Jul 1775, æ69). Deacon Benjamin was among Litchfield's founders; his will and the burying-ground inscriptions survive, including stones for sons Elijah (d. 17 Aug 1784, æ22 — this is the other Elijah's namesake generation; the stone cannot be Guy's father, who lived to raise a family) and James (d. 1754). FamilySearch carries the next generation: Benjamin Webster Jr. (1769–1842) with siblings Elijah, Avis, Lucretia, Claudius — the surviving Elijah of this branch being the best candidate for Guy's father. Status: branch firmly placed; one father-son link still to pin from the 1915 book's full text.

7.7 Deacon Jonathan Webster (b. 9 Jan 1656/7 – d. 1735) [A]

Son of Robert Webster and Susannah Treat; married Dorcas Hopkins, 11 May 1681. Children born in Hartford include Jonathan Jr., Susannah (m. Thomas STEELE of Farmington — the Steele braid), Mary (m. John Brace), Mehitable (m. David Bidwell), Stephen, and Benjamin. Note the double Webster–Steele intermarriage: the Farmington Steeles (Mercy Bradford's family) and the Webster family interlock twice.

7.8 Lieutenant Robert Webster (bapt. 17 Nov 1619, Cossington – d. 1676, Hartford) [A]

Son of Governor John; the sole executor of his father's will; married Susanna Treat, daughter of Richard Treat (founder of Wethersfield, one of Hartford's richest men). Remained in Hartford. His descendants were, per Hinman's 1846 Puritan Settlers of Connecticut, "the branch of Gov. Webster's family through whom Hon. Noah Webster traced his ancestry" — and through Jonathan, this document adds, the Abbott family does too.

7.9 Governor John Webster (bapt. 16 Aug 1590, Cossington, Leicestershire – d. 5 Apr 1661, Hadley, MA) [PR/A]

- Son of Matthew Webster (b. ~1564 – bur. 13 Sep 1592), husbandman of Cossington, and Elizabeth Ashton (m. 17 Apr 1587); Matthew's 1592 will — witnessed by his father-in-law and the parson — names his young son John, daughters Faith and Annis, brother John, and brother-in-law James Aston. John was orphaned at ~18 months.
- Married Agnes Smith (7 Nov 1609), daughter of Richard Smyth of Cossington, yeoman; the 1609 marriage settlement survives in the UK National Archives (her ancestry treated in Skillington's TAG 29, 1953).
- Emigrated by 1634 (he disposed of ~£1,000 of property — "three houses, a cottage, and about 100 acres"), Watertown → founder of Hartford, 1636 (his name on the Founders Monument); Deputy Governor of Connecticut; Governor, 1656; led the dissenting "Hadley Company" to Massachusetts, 1659; died there 1661. The monument to him in Hadley was erected in 1818 by "his descendant, Noah Webster."

- Children (baptized at Cossington): Matthew (1609/10), Margaret (1611), William (1614), Thomas (1616), Robert (1619), Anne (1621), Elizabeth (1624), Faith (1627, d. infancy), Mary (1623, d. infancy).

7.10 The Cossington Websters — five generations in one village [PR]

Florence Skillington's "The Ancestry of Governor John Webster" (The American Genealogist 24 (1948): 197–214) traced, from parish registers (from 1558), seventy years of churchwardens' accounts, Leicester freemen records, and probate:

1. John Webster I (b. ~1485, d. before 20 Mar 1558/9), Cossington
2. John Webster II (d. 24 Jun 1575) — churchwarden; brother William a freeman of Leicester
3. John Webster III — prosperous yeoman; settled a third of his farm on his son at the 1587 marriage; d. 1594
4. Matthew Webster (d. 1592)
5. Governor John (1590)

Wall: ~1485. The old pedigrees pushing to "Webster of Lockington" and a Scottish origin are unproven tradition.

7.11 The Noah correction — stated once, plainly

Noah Webster (1758–1843) descends: Gov. John → Robert → John (b. 1653, m. Sarah Mygatt) → Deacon/Captain Daniel Webster (m. Miriam Cooke, widow Kellogg) → Noah Webster Sr. (1722–1813, farmer, deacon, militia captain, justice of the peace; m. Mercy Steele 1749) → Noah Jr.

The Abbott line descends: Gov. John → Robert → Jonathan → Benjamin → … → Guy → Louise → Abbott.

Both lines share Robert; they split at Robert's sons. The user and Noah Webster Jr. are both 7th-generation descendants of Governor John Webster — distant cousins. The family's tradition "direct to Noah" is thus a compression of a true statement: direct to Governor John Webster — the same ancestor Noah had. The middle-name tradition ("Webster" across four Abbott generations) is how a cousin-branch keeps the famous name alive.

(For completeness: Noah Jr. had a brother Abraham Kellogg Webster whose son Frederick settled at Whitestown, Oneida Co., NY — the same county as the Abbotts; and Noah's son Richard Webster of Mauch Chunk, PA, appears in an 1848 letter. The historian Paul Leicester Ford was Noah's great-grandson through Noah's daughter Emily.)

7.12 Collateral bricks in the Webster wall

- Peck: Deacon Benjamin's wife Elizabeth Peck descends from Joseph Peck of Hingham — who arrived on the DILIGENT of Ipswich, 1638 (not the Bevis — an earlier hypothesis in this research, corrected).

- Treat: Richard Treat of Wethersfield descended from the Treats of Wetherden, Suffolk.
- Steele braid: Jonathan Webster's daughter Susannah married Thomas Steele of Farmington — the same Steele clan that married Mercy Bradford (below, §8.3).

* * *

8. Affinal and Collateral Lines (documented, but not the user's direct descent)

8.1 Bradford–Steele (Noah Webster's mother — the family the tradition may actually remember)

Governor William Bradford of Plymouth (bapt. Austerfield, Yorkshire, 19 Mar 1589/90 – d. 1657; son of William Bradford & Alice Hanson; Mayflower; governor 30+ years; author of Of Plymouth Plantation) married (2nd) Alice (Carpenter) Southworth — born probably at Wrington, Somerset, c. 1595, daughter of Alexander Carpenter (her sisters Juliana m. George Morton; Agnes m. Samuel Fuller; Priscilla m. William Wright — the Wrington Carpenter women all married into the Pilgrim circle). Their son Major William Bradford (1624–1703) m. Alice Richards; their daughter Mercy Bradford (bapt. Boston, 2 Sep 1660) m. Sergeant Samuel Steele of Farmington (b. 15 Mar 1651/2; son of John Steele & Mary Warner) in Hartford, 16 Sep 1680; their son Eliphalet Steele (b. 23 Jun 1700) m. Catherine Marshfield; their daughter Mercy Steele (b. 1727, West Hartford) married Noah Webster Sr., 12 Jan 1749. This is a fully documented Mayflower line (Society silver book MF22) — but it enters Noah Webster's family, not the user's. It becomes the user's only if an as-yet-unfound Steele marriage exists in the Abbott/Webster collateral lines — one reason the "direct to Noah" story may have started.

8.2 The Steeles in England

The Steele line is traceable to Fairstead, Essex: John Steele (b. 12 Dec 1591, Fairstead – d. 1653/4, Farmington/Fairfield) m. Rachel Talcott; his father Richard Steele (bap. 21 Apr 1549, Fairstead); the family reaches toward 1480 in the same parish [B — compiled pedigrees].

8.3 The kin-web (expanded, with relationship math and honest tags)

A. Presidents — blood kin if the Allerton line proves [S — GSMD/Mayflower Society-documented lines]:

- Zachary Taylor (12th President) — descends from Isaac Allerton twice: via Sarah Allerton → Elizabeth Lee (§6.1) and via the Virginia Allerton line; and from William Brewster via Fear (his 4th great-grandfather). He is the single blood descendant of the Lee–Allerton marriage, and Isaac Allerton's great-grandson through Sarah.
- Franklin D. Roosevelt (32nd President) — descends from Isaac Allerton via Mary Allerton → Thomas Cushman → … → Elizabeth Cushman → Warren Delano → Sara Delano (Allerton is his 6th great-grandfather per compiled kinship charts). FDR's other Mayflower lines (Richard Warren ×2, Degory Priest, Francis Cooke ×2, John Howland) are his own — the shared ancestor with the user is Allerton only (user via Remember/Maverick, FDR via Mary/Cushman — the sisters).
- Not your Mayflower kin (different passengers entirely): Grant (Richard Warren), Garfield (Billington), Coolidge (Doty), the Bushes' Mayflower lines (Howland/Cooke/Tilley/Samson). John Adams requires the careful phrasing: his Mayflower line is Alden–Mullins — but he is your confirmed Hawkes cousin through Susanna Hawkes & William Cogswell (§5.5, §8.3-G).

B. Signers and the Founding:

- Richard Henry Lee & Francis Lightfoot Lee — kin by marriage (§6). Robert Treat Paine (Signer) — blood cousin through Richard Treat of Wethersfield: Paine's mother Eunice Treat was daughter of Rev. Samuel Treat, whose father was Governor Robert Treat of Connecticut — the brother of the user's Susanna Treat (Robert Webster's wife). [S — Mass. Historical Society; CT State Library]
- The standard published lists of Richard Treat's other notable descendants include both Presidents Bush, Thomas Edison, J.P. Morgan, Henry Ford II, Tennessee Williams, Treat Williams, Samuel Colt, Gideon Welles (Lincoln's Navy Secretary), W. Edwards Deming, and Stephen Crane [B — published lists; individually unverified].

C. Civil War:

- Robert E. Lee — kin by marriage (§6.2); his blood cousin and wartime commander was the user's blood cousin Taylor (third cousins once removed, via Richard Lee).
- George B. McClellan — in the Brewster constellation (by-marriage).

D. The word "maverick":

- Samuel Augustus Maverick (1803–1870) — Texas Declaration of Independence signer, San Antonio mayor, and the man whose unbranded cattle gave the English language the word

"maverick" (first cited 1867) — belongs to the Maverick clan of Awliscombe, Devon (Rev. John Maverick & Mary Gye's family). The exact link of the Texas branch is unproven (Greenlaw listed five candidates, Register 96/102) — logged, not adopted. If the user's line proves, the word descends from the user's extended family.

E. Royal and Magna Carta descent — current honest status [PR]:

- Mary Gye, wife of Rev. John Maverick (the user's 9th great-grandmother if the line proves): daughter of Robert Gye & Grace Dowrish; granddaughter of John Gye & Mary Prowse (the 1538–40 inquisition post mortem of "John Gey of Devonshire," manors of Poughill and Doddridge, survives at The National Archives).
- The often-cited line to Henry III (via Hunt's 1961 article, NEHGR 115:248–253 — Henry III → Edmund Crouchback → Henry, Earl of Lancaster → Eleanor Plantagenet → Richard FitzAlan, Earl of Arundel → John FitzAlan → Joan FitzAlan → Joan Echyngham → Henry Baynton → Joan Baynton → Thomas Prowse → Mary Prowse) was carried by Roberts and Weis, but one generation (Joan Echyngham's marriage) has been challenged, and Douglas Richardson has broken the line in Royal Ancestry — the Henry III descent is currently unproven.
- What survives peer review: accepted lines from Mary Gye to King Henry I of England (1068–1135), including one through Henry II, and lines to three of the twenty-five Magna Carta Sureties. So the user (if the Hawkes link lands) descends from two kings of England and three barons who stood at Runnymede in June 1215 and forced King John to accept the rule of law — the Henry III-to-the-Conqueror extension awaits one more generation of proof.

- The three barons (family tradition: "there was a baron in our family" — confirmed in structure):

1. Saher de Quincy, 1st Earl of Winchester (c. 1155–3 Nov 1219) — created Earl of Winchester in 1207 through his wife Margaret de Beaumont, sister and co-heiress of the Earl of Leicester; one of the 25 Surety Barons; excommunicated by the Pope for enforcing the Charter against King John; went with Robert FitzWalter to offer the English crown to Prince Louis of France; captured at the battle of Lincoln (20 May 1217); submitted and was restored; took the cross on the Fifth Crusade and died at Damietta, Egypt, in 1219, buried at Acre — his heart was carried home to Garendon Abbey, Leicestershire. [S/B — Complete Peerage; WikiTree Magna Carta Project]
2. Roger Bigod, 2nd Earl of Norfolk (d. 1221) — hereditary Earl Marshal of England — and his son Hugh Bigod, 3rd Earl of Norfolk (d. 1225): a father-and-son pair among the twenty-five sureties. [A — standard lists]
3. William Malet (d. 1224) — lord of Curry Malet, Somerset; sheriff of Somerset and Dorset. [A — standard lists]

Of the twenty-five sureties, only seventeen left descendants; the family's three are among those seventeen. Richardson's Magna Carta Ancestry documents how these families became ancestors of 238 seventeenth-century colonists — the user's Hawkes–Maverick–Gye line among them [PR].

F. Kin by marriage — the Brewster constellation (Fear Brewster's other descendants; no blood):

Julia Child, Bing Crosby, Ted Danson, Richard Gere, Katharine Hepburn, John Lithgow, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Seth MacFarlane, Sarah Palin, Oliver Hazard Perry, Nelson Rockefeller, David Souter, Adlai Stevenson III, Arthur Sulzberger Jr. [B — Wikipedia-derived lists].

G. Already documented in this file: Governor John Webster (direct ancestor); Noah Webster (cousin, §7.11); the Lee dynasty (§6, §6.1, §6.2). John Adams & John Quincy Adams — confirmed Hawkes cousins via Susanna Hawkes & William Cogswell (their Mayflower line is separately Alden-Mullins). Princess Diana — confirmed cousin via the same Cogswell line. Daniel Webster — not proven kin: the orator descends from Thomas Webster of Hampton/Kingston, NH, and no relationship to Gov. John's line has been proven "even through DNA testing" (the old "collateral branch" claim in Curtis's biography is corrected in modern research) — logged, not adopted. Governor John Webster's public-figure descendants [A — the list is sourced to the 1915 History and Genealogy of the Governor John Webster Family (Webster & Webster), the standard compiled genealogy; individual lines per the book]:

- Presidents: Rutherford B. Hayes (19th), George H. W. Bush (41st), George W. Bush (43rd) — three presidents of the United States.
- Writers & artists: Emily Dickinson (the famouskin chart makes her Noah Webster's 4th cousin 3× removed through Gov. John — she and Noah are both documented descendants), William Faulkner (Nobel laureate), Katharine Hepburn, Johnny Carson, Janis Joplin, Henry Kitchell Webster (novelist), Rachel Scott.

- Builders & inventors: Samuel Colt (the revolver), William Robbins Barnes (co-founder of Barnes & Noble), Earl W. Bascom ("father of modern rodeo").
- Jurists & statesmen: Jared Ingersoll (signer of the Constitution — the Wikipedia list's "Declaration" is an error, flagged), Justices Tom C. Clark and John Marshall Harlan II, Senator Reed Smoot, Governors John Davis Lodge (CT, 79th) and Henry Hubbard (NH, 26th), W. W. Keeler (President of Phillips Petroleum and Principal Chief of the Cherokee Nation).
- The direct kin in office: Governor Robert Treat of Connecticut (also governor of New Jersey) was the brother of the user's ancestress Susanna Treat (wife of Lt. Robert Webster) — a two-colony governor in the direct kin; his father Richard Treat was a Hartford founder (Founders Monument).
- Removed, not forgotten: Daniel Webster — the orator descends from the New Hampshire Websters; no proven relationship to Gov. John's line (§8.3 ledger).

H. The Carpenter "Family of Heroes" — if the user's line proves Rehoboth: Capt. William Carpenter is called the father of "The Family of Heroes" (300+ male-line Revolutionary War soldiers); documented descendants include M. Scott Carpenter (Project Mercury astronaut/SEALAB aquanaut, via son Joseph's line), Francis Bicknell Carpenter (painter of the Emancipation Proclamation hanging in the U.S. Capitol; lived with Lincoln in the White House), Cyrus C. Carpenter (Governor of Iowa), James Henry Carpenter (founder of Carpenter Steel → Carpenter Technology), Donald Marshall Carpenter (naval aviator, USS Carpenter namesake), and Sabrina Carpenter. Note: Y-DNA testing shows the Rehoboth and Providence Carpenter lines are related, more remotely than once thought — the two candidate immigrant lines (§4) are one extended family either way.

8.4 The Deep-Ancestry Register — as far back as the records reach [PR/A/S]

(How to read this section: it was built as a working register, generation by generation — the densest part of the book. You do not need to read it straight through. Each block is one ancestral line, traced as far as the documents reach, with every generation carrying its evidence grade and every weak link named. Treat it as a map's key to the territory, not the territory itself — the story of what these lines mean sits in §1 and §8.3.)

The complete documented medieval chain (paternal, via Hawkes–Maverick–Gye), generation by generation:

[Note the poetry of the record: the Malet heiress carried Curry Mallet itself into the Vivonne family — Joan de Vivonis was born at the Malet caput in 1251 — and the Vivonne heiress then carried it into the FitzHerberts of Chewton. The family's two Somerset baronies married into each other.]

The Holland–la Zouche line (parents of Elizabeth de Holand), extended to the Conqueror:

Robert de Holand, 1st Baron Holand (b. c. 1283 — beheaded Oct 1328) m. MAUD LA ZOUCHE
(b. ~1290 — d. 31 May 1349), 2nd daughter & co-heiress of:

ROYAL GATEWAY (documented, mechanized): Henry II → William Longespée → Stephen → Ela → the la Zouche barons → Maud → the Holland barons → Elizabeth → the FitzRogers of Chewton → … → user. Thus, if the Hawkes link lands, the user descends from King Henry II (1133–1189), King Henry I (1068–1135), and — through them — William the Conqueror (c. 1028–1087); per standard royal scholarship (Richardson; Settipani) the Conqueror's own ancestry continues to the Carolingians and

Charlemagne. The Henry III line remains broken; the King John line remains broken. [PR — Richardson Royal Ancestry (Longespée, Zouche, Holland, Quincy); Magna Carta Ancestry; Complete Peerage; the 1289 proof-of-age IPM]

Magna Carta Sureties — now mechanized to three:

1. William Malet — direct, via Mabel Malet → Vivonne (above). Baron of Curry Mallet; crusader with Richard I; d. Dec 1215.
2. Saher de Quincy, Earl of Winchester — direct, via his granddaughter Elena de Quincy → la Zouche → Holland (above). Excommunicated; died on the Fifth Crusade at Damietta 1219.
3. Roger & Hugh Bigod, Earls of Norfolk — as previously documented (via the FitzAlan/Baynton/Prowse lines; see prior register and §8.3-E).

Also documented in these deep lines:

- Alan la Zouche, Justiciar of Chester & Ireland (d. 1270) — killed in Westminster Hall in a quarrel with the Earl of Warenne; Roger la Zouche, witness to Henry III's 1216 confirmation of Magna Carta; Alan la Zouche, 1st Baron (b. 1267) — Constable of Rockingham Castle, at Falkirk 1298 against William Wallace, his arms in the Caerlaverock Roll.
- The Longespée Earls of Salisbury (royal bastard line); the Quincy Earls of Winchester; the Segrave barons; the Belmeis heiress (Ashby-de-la-Zouch itself); the Porhoët viscounts of Brittany (the la Zouche name is Breton — "la Souche," the tree-stump).
- The de Beaumont Earls of Leicester (Saher de Quincy's wife Margaret was co-heiress of the earldom); the de Quincys' kinship by marriage to Robert Fitzwalter (surety leader) and the Scottish royal house (Matilda of St Liz, stepdaughter of King David I — flagged, not adopted here).

The royal prequel — mechanized [PR — Richardson, Royal Ancestry vol. V, Appendix, pp. 481–504]:

- CHARLEMAGNE (747–814) → William the Conqueror in twelve documented generations (Richardson Line A): Charlemagne → Pepin of Italy → Bernard → Pepin of Vermandois → Heribert I, Count of Vermandois → Heribert II → Robert of Vermandois → Adele of Meaux → Ermengarde of Anjou → Judith of Brittany → Robert I of France → William the Conqueror. Richardson's appendix prints five documented Charlemagne lines reaching the Conqueror or his wife Matilda of Flanders — the user descends from the emperor through both.
- ROLLO THE VIKING (b. Scandinavia c. 860 – d. 928×933) — founder of Normandy by the Treaty of Saint-Clair-sur-Epte (911); first recorded in the 918 charter — is the Conqueror's direct forebear: Rollo → William Longsword (d. 942) → Richard I the Fearless (932–996) → Richard II the Good (d. 1026) → Robert I the Magnificent → William I. (Rollo's own Scandinavian parentage is genuinely uncertain — the saga link to Rognvald of Møre is conjecture; the line is documented from Rollo himself.)

The Segrave chain — with a Chief Justiciar in the direct line [S — The National Archives, "The Segrave Inheritance"; Richardson MCA III:318–319; CP XI]:

- Gilbert de Segrave of Seagrave, Leics (fl. 1193, High Sheriff of Warwickshire & Leicestershire) — the family's documented head.

- His son STEPHEN DE SEGRAVE (c. 1171 – 9 Nov 1241), CHIEF JUSTICIAR OF ENGLAND (1232–1234) — Constable of the Tower of London, sheriff of seven counties; m. (1) Rohese le Despenser (of the Despenser family — her brother Hugh was father of Hugh Despenser the Justiciar, killed at Evesham 1265); (2) Ida de Hastings (daughter of William de Hastings & Margery Bigod, sister of the surety Earls of Norfolk).
- His son Gilbert (d. 1254, d. in French captivity) → Nicholas de Segrave, 1st Baron Segrave (d. 1295) m. Maud de Lucy → their daughter ELEANOR DE SEGRAVE — who, per the National Archives' own summary of the Segrave muniments, "married Alan Lord Zouche of Ashby (d. 1314)… Maud [their daughter] married Robert de Holland" — the user's direct ancestress, in an official archival source.
- The National Archives holds the family's charters: the Segrave inheritance papers, including the Brotherton marriage and the Segrave–Mowbray settlement.

The de Kyme barons [A/B — Wikipedia; WikiTree Kyme-21 citing Richardson MCA II:511 & ODNB]: the family were barons by tenure since the reign of King Stephen (1135–54) — Sir William, founder of the line, founded the Priory of Bolinton c. 1135. Philip de Kyme, 1st Baron Kyme (d. 1323) — summoned to Parliament 1295–1313, signatory of the 1301 Barons' Letter to Pope Boniface VIII, fought at Caerlaverock 1300; his wardship (as a minor in 1259) was granted to Hugh le Bigod for £3,000 — the surety earls holding the Kyme heir. Maud de Kyme, wife of William de Vivonis, belongs to this baronial house (exact placement per MCA, flagged).

The Bigod chain — mechanized to Domesday [A/S — Wikipedia; WikiTree Bigod-5 citing Keats-Rohan; DNB]:

- Roger Bigod (d. 1107) — sheriff of Norfolk & Suffolk (1081–1107); Domesday tenant-in-chief: 6 lordships in Essex, 117 in Suffolk, 187 in Norfolk — the greatest lay landholder in Norfolk; fought the Danes beside Robert Malet in 1069; founder of Thetford Priory; received Framlingham from Henry I (1101). Married Adelisa/Alice de Tosny, daughter & heiress of Robert de Tosny of Belvoir (the Tosny/Tony barons, tenants-in-chief at Domesday).
- His father Robert le Bigod — a knight of Duke William's household ("small of body, but very brave"), rewarded for exposing the treachery of William of Mortain; held lands in Normandy at Malitot, Loges, and Chanon. His parentage is conjecture — Keats-Rohan's hypothesis makes him a junior line of the Goz family (Viscounts of Hiemois, kin to Hugh d'Avranches, Earl of Chester). [flagged]
- The descent: Robert → Roger (d. 1107; his heir William drowned in the White Ship, 1120) → Hugh Bigod, 1st Earl of Norfolk (b. c. 1095; earl from King Stephen, 1141; m. Juliana de Vere, daughter of the hereditary Chamberlain — her nephew Robert de Vere was himself a Magna Carta Surety, Earl of Oxford) → Roger Bigod, 2nd Earl (d. 1221, Surety) → Hugh Bigod, 3rd Earl (d. 1225, Surety).
- THE IDA DE TOSNY CONVERGENCE: Roger Bigod, 2nd Earl's wife was Ida de Tosny (b. ~1155, dau. of Ralph de Tosny of Flamstead) — who was also the royal ward and mistress of King Henry II, and mother of William Longespée, Earl of Salisbury — the user's royal-line ancestor (§8.4, Holland–la Zouche). So the user's royal descent (via Longespée → la Zouche) and Bigod surety descent both pass through Ida de Tosny — the Surety earls Hugh and Roger Bigod were half-brothers of William Longespée. One woman carries both halves of the family's greatest inheritance.

The de Lucy chain — mechanized, with a second Chief Justiciar and a SAINT [S — Richardson's soc.genealogy.medieval analyses; Complete Peerage; FMG Foundations]:

- Fulbert of Dover — Domesday 1086, held Chilham of the Bishop of Bayeux; progenitor of the Lucy/Dover barony, one of the eight constabularies of Dover Castle. The family took its name from Lucé, Normandy.
- Sir Richard de Lucy (c. 1089/98 – 14 Jul 1179), CHIEF JUSTICIAR OF ENGLAND — co-justiciar with Robert de Beaumont, Earl of Leicester; excommunicated by Thomas Becket (1166, 1169); founded Lesnes Abbey as his penance for the Becket murder; resigned and died a canon there. His brother Walter was Abbot of Battle.
- His line: Richard → Geoffrey (d. v.p.) → Geoffrey de Lucy (d. 1252), crusader of 1240–44, m. Juliana Despenser (of the steward line: Hugh le Despenser, steward to King Henry I, living 1105) → Maud de Lucy, whose parentage Douglas Richardson established in 2018 (daughter of Geoffrey & Nichole): from the Chaucombe chronicle pedigree, the naming of her son Geoffrey, the 1278 hunting party of Bishop Thomas de Cantelowe (with Nicholas de Segrave and the Lucy brothers), and the 1289 record of her son John de Segrave as executor of Amaury de Lucy's will.

- Maud de Lucy married Nicholas de Segrave, 1st Baron → Eleanor de Segrave → Alan la Zouche → Maud → Holland → user.
- ✝ ST THOMAS DE CANTELUPE — canonized 1320, Bishop of Hereford — was the brother of Nichole de Cantelowe: a canonized saint and kinsman in the direct line's aunts and uncles.

The Anglo-Danish origins — the House of Bamburgh and Saint Waltheof [S/A — Wikipedia; WikiTree citing Richardson & ODNB; CP; Vita Waldevi]:

The convergence the whole file has been building toward: through Judith of Lens the user descends from William the Conqueror's own family — and through Saint Waltheof, the user descends from the man the Conqueror executed. The family's two deepest lines — the Norman and the Anglo-Danish — met in one marriage bed in 1070, ten years before the Bevis sailed.

Also documented in this block:

- Siward, Earl of Northumbria (d. 1055) — Waltheof's father — the giant Dane who defeated Macbeth at Dunsinane (1054)

(Shakespeare's Macbeth); his father Bjorn is real but shadowy; the Vita Waldevi "white-bear descent" is folklore, and Timothy Bolton's hypothesis (Nottingham Medieval Studies, 2007) that Siward's family was a lost line of the Danish royal house — cousin to Earl Ulf, King Cnut's brother-in-law — is flagged, not adopted.

- The Scottish royal connection: Maud of Huntingdon's second marriage to David I of Scotland made her the ancestress of every Scottish monarch — Malcolm IV, William the Lion, Robert Bruce, the Stuarts — and, through them, of the present British royal family. The user's deep ancestors are the Crown's deep ancestors.
- St Waltheof's cult — the executed earl was venerated as a saint at Crowland; a memorial Norse poem (Valþjófsflokkr) survives him.
- Robert FitzWalter, leader of the twenty-five Sureties, was the grandson of the user's ancestress Matilda of St Liz by her first marriage — the rebellion's leader is kin.
- Waltheof's other daughter Adelise married Ralph de Tosny — adding a third thread to the Tosny web (Ida de Tosny, §8.4-Bigod).

THE ORIGINS — the two documented floors of the entire descent:

- CAROLINGIAN FLOOR — c. 580 AD: Saint Arnulf of Metz (c. 582–640), bishop and mayor of the palace, and Saint Pepin of Landen (c. 580–640), duke and mayor — the two historical progenitors whose lines united in their children (Ansegisel m. St Begga → Pepin of Herstal → Charles Martel → Pepin the Short → Charlemagne). Both are documented in contemporary or near-contemporary sources (the Vita Sancti Arnulfi, the Annales Mettenses, charters). □ Everything earlier is rejected: the famous "Arnoald–Ansbert the Senator–Blithilda, daughter of Chlothar I" pedigree — the Carolingians' claim to Merovingian royal blood — was shown to be false (Arnulf's father was Bodegisel, not Arnoald); mainstream historians (Geary, Gerberding; the soc.genealogy.medieval consensus) hold the connection was likely "an invention by Charlemagne." Settipani's alternative reconstruction (via Flavius Afranius Syagrius) remains flagged speculation. The honest wall stands at c. 580 — the graves of two saints.

- BAMBURGH FLOOR — Eadwulf I of Bamburgh (d. 913), "King of the Northern English" (Annals of Ulster), dilectus — favourite — of King Alfred the Great, who ruled the last free English enclave from Bamburgh Castle. His dynasty's own genealogy (De Northumbria post Britannos) makes him son of Æthelthryth, daughter of King Ælla of Northumbria (d. 867 at York against the Vikings) — the dynasty's legitimating claim, carried by a 12th-century text with access to earlier material: flagged as semi-legendary (McGuigan: a family "with weak links to the Northumbrian royal line" that used the marriage to legitimise lordship). The saga descent from Ragnar Lodbrok attached to these houses in later legend is rejected. The charter-documented chain stands: Eadwulf I (d. 913, assassinated by Eadred son of Rixinc) → Ealdred I (d. c. 933, driven out by Ragnall Uí Ímair) → Oswulf I (fl. 946–963, first "high-reeve" of Bamburgh, master of all Northumbria after Erik Bloodaxe's fall) →

Waltheof I (fl. 994) → Uhtred the Bold (d. 1016) → the saint's line → user.

- NORMAN FLOOR — Rollo (d. 928×933): documented from the 911 Treaty of Saint-Clair-sur-Epte and the 918 charter; his Scandinavian parentage genuinely uncertain (the Rognvald-of-Møre saga link is conjecture).

The honest grand span of the documented line: c. 580 AD to 1980 AD — fourteen centuries, from the Austrasian court of Theudebert II to a family Bible on a shelf in New Jersey.

Hugh de Vivonne — the last open link, now mapped [A/PR — Wikipedia; FMG Foundations 4 (2012): 21–35]:

- A Poitevin knight from Vivonne — whose parents' names are unknown (Wikipedia, per Richardson/Vincent: "The names of Hugh's parents are unknown"); the tree attachment to "William de Forz/Vivonne & Aveline de Montfichet" is unproven and rejected (WikiTree: "this is unproven"). What IS documented: his brother Aimery, Seigneur de Vivonne (d. before 16 March 1247) — proven by the 1248 royal licence naming "Emery de Vivona, uncle of the said William" — and the house of Vivonne itself, one of the oldest of Poitou, seated at Vivonne from the 11th century (Joscelin de Vivonne, uncle of Hugh IV de Lusignan; Hugues de Vivonne d. before 1076 — FMG), later merged into the Rochechouart family. He may have come to England with Savaric de Mauleon's contingent.
- The 1215 irony: on 20 December 1215 — six months after Runnymede — King John granted Hugh the estates confiscated from William Malet, the Surety; by November 1223 Hugh had married the Surety's daughter Mabel (widow of Nicholas Avenel).

The rebel baron's bloodline thus returned to his own lands through his daughter's marriage to the king's loyal foreigner — and their descendants inherited both.

- Career: held Bristol Castle 1216; Seneschal of Gascony and Poitou; at Henry III's side at Taillebourg 1242; his 1220 letter to the king survives — "so that I and mine can stay in England." Died before 16 Oct 1249, at Wells.
- Their son William le Fort de Vivonne (d. 22 May 1259) m. Matilda de Ferrers (daughter of William de Ferrers, Earl of Derby, and Sibyl Marshal — granddaughter of William Marshal, Regent of England) → the four Vivonne heiresses: Joan (b. c. 1251 — the user's direct ancestress), Sybil, Mabel, Cecily — Sybil m. Anselm de Gournay (kin by marriage to the Gournays of §8.4), Cecily m. John de Beauchamp of Hatch.
- Joan de Vivonis's three husbands — RESOLVED against the primary record [S — Calendar of Patent Rolls; Richardson RA II:622–625; FMG Foundations 4:21–35]:

1. Ingram de Percy — marriage granted 2 Aug 1259; married 1262; he died October 1262, no children (son of William de Percy & Ellen de Balliol).
2. Aimery X, Vicomte de Rochechouart (contract 28 Apr 1264; step-siblings by their parents' later marriage) — children: Aimery XI (d.s.p. 1307) & Jeanne (d.s.p.); he died before 3 Jan 1279.
3. Sir Reynold Fitz Peter (m. before 3 Jan 1279, probably by 1272) — four sons and two daughters: PETER FITZREYNOLD (b. c. 1274, d. 18 Nov 1322 — Lord of Chewton, the user's direct line), Reynold, Matthew, William, Isabel, Beatrice.

Joan died 1 June 1314; her IPM (writ 8 June 1314) spread across Bedfordshire, Southampton, Essex, Berkshire, Somerset, Dorset — the Somerset and Dorset lands passing to her sons Reginald and Peter. Her long widowhood was spent largely in France (letters of protection to go overseas 1290, 1292, 1301, 1307).

The Tosny line — documented to the Archbishop's family (late 900s) [A — Wikipedia House of Tosny; Complete Peerage XII/1: 755–7]:

- The house begins with Raoul I of Tosny (fl. ~1000, d. 1024/25) — son of Hugh de Calvacamp, brother of Hugh III, Archbishop of Rouen (942–989), who granted the family its lands from the church's holdings. (The later claim, inserted by Orderic Vitalis, that the Tosnys were "of the lineage of Malahul, uncle of Rollo" — flagged as a 12th-century pedigree-building interpolation.)
- Roger I de Tosny "the Spaniard" (b. ~990, d. 1038/9) — banner-bearer of all Normandy; four years fighting in the Spanish Reconquista; rebelled against the boy-duke William on the ground that "a bastard ought not to rule"; killed by Roger de Beaumont in 1040 with two of his sons.
- Raoul II de Conches (d. 1102) — the Norman standard-bearer at Hastings (a candidate for the figure on the Bayeux Tapestry); received Flamstead and 35 manors; m. Isabelle de Montfort. His descendants: Raoul III (m. Adelise, daughter of Waltheof of Huntingdon — the SAINT's own line entering the Tosny web a second time), down to Raoul/Ralph V de Tosny (d. 1162) m. Margaret de Beaumont, daughter of the Earl of Leicester.

- IDA DE TOSNY (b. ~1154, d. 1226) — the convergence woman — was documented by a primary discovery: William Longespée's own charter naming "Comitissa Ida, mater mea" ("Countess Ida, my mother"), found in 1979; and by Marc Morris's The Bigod Earls of Norfolk (2005). Royal ward; given to Roger Bigod at Christmas 1181 with three manors restored. She descends from the Beaumont Earls of Leicester on both sides (Marguerite of Leicester × Constance de Beaumont in successive generations).

The Marshal–de Clare–Irish-royal branch — Maud de Ferrers mechanized [S/A — Calendar of Patent Rolls; Richardson; Historia & encyclopedia entries]:

- Maud de Ferrers (b. ~1230, d. 12 Mar 1298) — daughter of William de Ferrers, 5th Earl of Derby (d. 1254; gout-ridden, died thrown from his litter while crossing a river; buried at Merevale Abbey) and Sibyl Marshal (c. 1201 – d. bef. 1238), 3rd daughter and co-heiress of William Marshal, Earl of Pembroke — "the greatest knight in Christendom": landless fourth son who rose by hostage-taking and unflinching loyalty to become Regent of England (1216–1219) for the boy Henry III, and a named guarantor of Magna Carta's regency — and Isabel de Clare, heiress of Pembroke and Leinster.
- Isabel de Clare (c. 1174–1220) — daughter of Richard "Strongbow" de Clare, 2nd Earl of Pembroke (d. 1176), conqueror of Ireland, and Aoife (Eva) MacMurrough of Leinster (b. 1145 – d. 1188) — daughter of Diarmait Mac Murchada (Dermot MacMurrough), King of Leinster. The user's deep line therefore includes the Irish royal house of Uí Cheinnselaig — through the most famous marriage in Irish history.

- Maud's three husbands, in order: (1) Simon de Kyme of Lincolnshire (d. by 30 Jul 1248 — hence her style "Maud de Kyme"); (2) William de Vivonne/de Forz of Chewton — the user's line; (3) Amaury IX, Vicomte de Rochechouart.
- The Ferrers–Chester branch: William 5th Earl's mother was Agnes of Chester (d. 1247), daughter of Hugh de Kevelioc, 3rd Earl of Chester, and Bertrade de Montfort of Evreux — so the Ferrers earls carry the Meschine earls of Chester (Ranulf le Meschin, 1st Earl, son of Ranulf de Briquessart, Viscount of the Bessin — the same deep Bessin root as Alice de Belmeis in the la Zouche line: the Meschines enter the family twice) — and the Montfort–Evreux blood of Simon de Montfort's kin.
- The Ferrers male line itself descends from Henry de Ferrers (Domesday commissioner; castle of Tutbury) — the family is Domesday-documented.
- Sibling notes: Maud's sister Sibyl Ferrers m. Francis de Bohun of Midhurst — a line from which Daniel Boone descends (per compiled pedigrees; flagged [B/NA]); her sister Eleanor m. (2nd) Roger de Quincy, 2nd Earl of Winchester — the surety earls once more (a famously tangled step-relation flagged in the sources). William Marshal's parents were John FitzGilbert the Marshal & Sibyl of Salisbury (the d'Evereux–Salisbury line).

The de Clare line — from the ducal house itself [PR/A — Altschul, A Baronial Family in Medieval England: The Clares; J.H.

Round, DNB "Clare"; 1911 Britannica]:

- GODFREY (GEOFFREY) OF BRIONNE (d. 1015) — eldest illegitimate son of RICHARD I "THE FEARLESS," Duke of Normandy — the Conqueror's great-grandfather; granted Brionne; Count of Eu by his half-brother Duke Richard II after 996. [A THIRD documented descent into the pre-Conquest Norman ducal house.]
- His son Gilbert "Crispin," Count of Brionne (c. 1000 – assassinated 1040) — one of the young Duke William's guardians (1035); murdered by Ralph de Gacé's faction while peaceably riding near Echauffour; his sons Richard and Baldwin fled to the court of Baldwin V of Flanders and were restored by the Conqueror's marriage to Matilda.
- Richard fitz Gilbert de Clare (d. 1090) — granted Bienfaite and Orbec; in England 176 lordships (95 in Suffolk), Clare Castle and Tonbridge Castle; JOINT CHIEF JUSTICIAR OF ENGLAND with William de Warenne (the family's third Chief Justiciar); suppressed the revolt of 1075; m. Rohese Giffard (of the Longueville Giffards — 30 ships at the invasion, Earls of Buckingham, Marshals of England).
- The descent: Richard fitz Gilbert → Gilbert fitz Richard (d. 1115, first hereditary Marshal of England) → Richard fitz Gilbert (d. 1136) → Gilbert, created Earl of Pembroke (1138) → Richard "Strongbow" de Clare, Earl of Pembroke (d. 1176), conqueror of Ireland → his daughter & heiress Isabel de Clare m. William Marshal → Sibyl Marshal → Maud de Ferrers → William de Vivonne → Joan → FitzRogers → user.

- Kin note: Richard fitz Gilbert's daughter married William de Montfichet — "their descendant was one of the twenty-five barons of Magna Carta" (Montfichet surety).

The Galloway line — the Norse-Gaelic lords [S/A — POMS (King's College London); Wikipedia Helen of Galloway; DGNHAS Transactions (Kippax/Lacy analysis); CP XII/2: 752–3]:

- Helen of Galloway (b. ~1208 – d. aft. 21 Nov 1245, buried Brackley) — daughter & co-heiress of Alan, Lord of Galloway (d. 1234), High Constable of Scotland, by his first wife — her mother's identity is debated: CP leaves her unnamed; Richardson's argument (from the Kippax descent) makes her a daughter of Roger de Lacy of Pontefract, Constable of Chester; Turton's older "of the Isles" assignment is flagged. Helen's marriage made Roger de Quincy Constable of Scotland.
- The Galloway dynasty: Alan ← Roland (Lochlann) of Galloway (d. 1200) m. Elena de Morville (of the constable Morvilles of Lauderdale) ← Uchtred of Galloway (d. 1174 — blinded and murdered at the orders of his brother Gilbert) m. Gunnild of Dunbar — the house of Fergus of Galloway (d. 1161), the greatest of the Gall-Gaidhil — the Norse-Gaelic lords who held a semi-independent principality in southwest Scotland.
- Royal Scottish kin (again): Alan of Galloway's second wife was Margaret de Huntingdon (daughter of David, Earl of Huntingdon — grandson of King David I); their daughter Devorguilla of Galloway married John de Balliol — and their son became KING JOHN BALLIOL OF SCOTLAND (r. 1292–96). Helen's half-nephew was a crowned king of Scots; through Devorguilla, the user descends from the Balliols' kin-network of the Scottish succession.

ALFRED THE GREAT — the Anglo-Saxon royal floor, documented [S/A — Symeon of Durham; De obsessione Dunelmi; CP; Scots Peerage]:

- Gunnild of Dunbar (wife of Uchtred of Galloway — the Galloway-line ancestress) was daughter of Gospatric, Earl of Dunbar/March — whose mother Ealdgyth was daughter of Uhtred the Bold and his wife Ælfgifu, daughter of King Æthelred II "the Unready."
- Thus, via one woman — Ælfgifu — the line ascends: Gunnild → Gospatric → Ealdgyth & Ælfgifu → ÆTHELRED II (r. 978–1016) → Edgar the Peaceful → Edmund I → Edward the Elder → ALFRED THE GREAT (849–899), King of Wessex. The Wessex royal house, documented in the regnal tradition of the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle.
- The pre-Alfred genealogy, honestly graded [S/A — the Parker Chronicle's 855 pedigree; Stenton; Heather Edwards ODNB; Naismith]: Alfred → Æthelwulf → Egbert (d. 839, first King of all England) → Ealhmund, King of Kent (documented by charter of 784) → Eafa and Eoppa — named nowhere else in any source (uncertain links) → Ingild, brother of King Ine of Wessex — documented by the Chronicle's own 718 annal → Cenred → Ceolwald → Ceawlin → Cynric → Cerdic (d. 534, the Chronicle's founder — possibly himself of British, even Romano-British stock: "Cerdic" is the Welsh Ceredic/Caradog) → then the pedigree mounts "through some nine generations of dim, mysterious beings" to Woden — the god — and, by borrowing from the Bernician genealogy, to Geat and finally, "by the device of a son born to Noah in the ark," to Adam. The honest floor stands at Ingild (fl. 718); above him the links thin to legend, and the document says so.

- The descent of Elizabeth II from the same line is carried in the standard tables (51 generations from Cerdic) — the user's Wessex kin and the Crown's are one.
- Gospatric himself is one of the great figures of the north: maternal grandson of Uhtred the Bold; claimed descent from Crínán (possibly of Dunkeld, father of King Duncan I — the Macbeth connection, challenged by modern historians and flagged); BOUGHT the earldom of Northumbria from William the Conqueror in 1067; deprived 1072; granted Dunbar by Malcolm III; ancestor of the Earls of Dunbar & March (to 1435) — and, through Uchtred and Æthelred, kin to both the Bamburgh dynasty and the house of Wessex.

BRIAN BORU — the Irish high-kingly floor [A/S — Byrne, Irish Kings and High-Kings; Wikipedia; DIB]:

- Dermot MacMurrough's great-grandmother Derbforgaill was a daughter of Donnchad, King of Munster — and granddaughter of BRIAN BORU (d. 1014), High King of Ireland, victor of Clontarf. The blood of Ireland's greatest high king runs in the line.
- The male-line Uí Cheinnselaig kings are annal-documented to Domnall mac Cellaig (d. 974); the dynasty's claim to the ancient line of Crimthann mac Énnai (d. late 400s) is flagged as legend. Father-flag: Diarmait's father is Donnchad mac Murchada (d. 1115, the king buried with a dog) per the standard sources; a conflated "Enna" tradition is noted and rejected.

- Compiled kin-lists through Aoife (flagged [B/NA]): George Washington, Marie Antoinette, Lord Edward Fitzgerald, Robert Emmet, Charles Darwin, Winston Churchill.

The Évreux–Gloucester block behind Bertrade de Montfort [S/A — FMG MedLands; CP; Richardson]:

- Bertrade de Montfort, wife of Hugh de Kevelioc, Earl of Chester: her father Simon III de Montfort, Count of Évreux was son of Simon II and Agnes d'Évreux — daughter of Richard, Count of Évreux, granddaughter of Robert, Archbishop of Rouen — son of Richard I of Normandy: the Évreux ducal descent (the Archbishop was brother to the Tosny's patron-duke Richard II). Her mother was a Maud — parentage uncertain per FMG; the Gloucester assignment in some charts is flagged.
- Hugh de Kevelioc's own mother was Maud FitzRobert of Gloucester — daughter of Robert, 1st Earl of Gloucester, illegitimate son of King Henry I: a FIFTH documented royal line (Henry I again, via the Gloucester earls).
- The Ridlesford in-laws: Emmeline de Ridlesford's grandfather Walter I de Ridelesford (d. ~1200) rode in Strongbow's own 1169 expedition — granted twenty fiefs in Kildare, built Bray Castle, garrisoned Gisors in 1173–4; his son Walter II, Chief Baron of Leinster, was at the Curragh in 1234. Emmeline's first husband was Hugh de Lacy, Earl of Ulster — another earl in the family. The de Ridelesfords' Irish barony ended with Christina de Marisco's 1290 petition to Edward I.

The Porhoët (Breton) floor — Josselin Castle, c. 990 [A/B — Wikipedia Porhoët; WikiTree Porhoët-17; the 1108 Joscelin charter]:

- Guithenoc (c. 990–1040), born at Guilliers — the first recognized Vicomte de Porhoët — built Josselin Castle on the River Oust and named it for his son. The castle remains in the family's line to this day — described as the longest continuously held private estate in the world.
- The line: Guithenoc → Josselin (1025–1074) → Odo/Eudon I (1049–1092) m. Anne de Léon → Geoffrey de Porhoët (1082–1141) m. Hawisa Fergant — and Geoffrey's son, recorded in the Wikipedia article itself: "Alan de Porhoët, younger brother of Odo II, left for England and became Alan la Zouche, great-grandfather of two English barons" — the user's direct ancestor.
- The family's reach: a cadet branch founded the House of Rohan (Viscounts of Rohan — later Dukes of Montbazon and French princes); the senior line contested the Ducal Crown of Brittany (Odo II, regent for Conan IV, son-in-law of Duke Conan III — deposed by Henry II's invasion of 1156, which razed Josselin); and the English branch = the Barons Zouche of Ashby-de-la-Zouch — the la Zouche name is Breton: "la Souche," the tree-stump.

The Dál Cais floor — Cennétig's line, c. 896 [S/A — DIB; Annals of Ulster; Byrne, Irish Kings and High-Kings]:

- The male line runs: Brian Boru (d. 1014) ← Cennétig mac Lorcáin (b. c. 896, d. 951) — King of Dál gCais/Thomond, styled rígdamna Caisil ("king-material of Cashel") — ← Lorcáin mac Lachtna (king of the Uí Thairdelbaig branch, fl. 934). The annals remember Cennétig losing four sons in his wars of ascent; the Annals of Ulster for Clontarf calls Brian "the Augustus of the whole of north-west Europe."

- The dynasty's own origin-tradition (the Uí Thairdelbaig claim to the ancient Déisi stock) is flagged legend — the documented male floor stands at c. 896, with Brian's mother Bé Binn ingen Urchadh adding the Uí Briúin Seóla of Connacht.
- Kin note: the Ó Cinnéide (O'Kennedy) surname descends from Cennétig — the Dál Cais stock is shared with the Kennedy family of later centuries [B — flagged]; Brian's third great-granddaughter was Gwenllian ferch Gruffydd, the Welsh patriot princess [A — flagged].

The Beaumont–Meulan line — and the French royal house [A/S — Complete Peerage (via Sharp); the Newberry ancestry; 1911 Britannica; Geni pedigree]:

- Thorold/Thurolf de Pont-Audemer (b. c. 950, d. c. 979) — the first known lord of Pont-Audemer, installed by Bernard the Dane, Rollo's own companion; married Duvelina des Arques. (The Harcourt family springs from the same root.)
- Humphrey de Vieilles (b. c. 980, d. 28 Sep 1044) — founder of the abbeys of Preaux, St. Leger, St. Acqueline — m. Aubreye de la Haye, heiress of the Forest of Brotonne.
- Roger de Beaumont (b. 1010/22, d. 1094) — Seigneur of Pont-Audemer, Beaumont-le-Roger, Brionne and Vieilles — contributed 60 vessels to Duke William's invasion fleet — m. Adeline/Avelina de Meulan, daughter & heiress of Waleran III, Count of Meulan (the Meulan counts join the web).
- Robert de Beaumont, 1st Earl of Leicester (1046–1118) — co-Justiciar of England with Richard de Lucy (the family's fourth Chief Justiciar; the two men governed England together under the Conqueror) — m. Isabel de Vermandois, granddaughter of King Henry I of France (daughter of Hugh Magnus, Duke of France, and Adelaide of Vermandois): the Capetian royal line of France joins the documented descent (Hugh Capet → Robert II → Henry I → Hugh Magnus → Isabel → the Leicester earls → user).

- The double-Beaumont convergence: Isabel de Beaumont (Robert's daughter) married Gilbert de Clare, 1st Earl of Pembroke — she was STRONGBOW'S OWN MOTHER; and Margaret de Beaumont married Ralph de Tosny V — Ida's line. The house of Leicester thus enters the family twice — and Ida de Tosny descends from it on both sides.

The de Vere wall — honest and low [A — EB1911; Wikipedia/FMG; Keats-Rohan]: Aubrey I de Vere (d. 1112), Domesday chamberlain and tenant-in-chief, came from Ver, near Bayeux — part of the ducal demesne included in Duchess Judith's dowry of 1026 and granted to the family within thirty years ("Aubri de Ver occurs in 1058"). His origins are obscure — the late-medieval "Alphonsus" father and the claims of descent from the Conqueror's sister are rejected as pedigree-building (Keats-Rohan). The documented de Vere wall stands at c. 1058, with the family itself later Earls of Oxford (1142–1703) and hereditary Great Chamberlains — Robert de Vere, 3rd Earl, was one of the twenty-five Magna Carta sureties.

Three more documented floors — Meulan (947), Gournay (989–996), Senlis (c. 1030):

• MEULAN [S/A — FMG MedLands; the De Gruyter Brill study of Waleran I]: the county begins with Liegardis, Countess of Meulan and Mantes — a charter of October 947 ("Liutgarde, widow of Count Raoul") — and Waleran I de Chartres, her second husband; their line runs Galeran I (d. before 985/87) → Galeran II → Hugues I (d. after 25 Aug 1005) → Galeran III (d. 8 Dec 1069), whose daughter Adeline married Roger de Beaumont and whose son Hugh's death (1081) passed Meulan to the Beaumont earls — the user's line.

• GOURNAY [A — Three Hundred Years of a Norman House (1867), from the family charters]: "Eudes, the follower of Rollo" and "Hugh, the fortifier of Gournay" are tradition; the first lords known by charter are RENAUD & ALBERARDA — a charter of 989–996, contemporaries of Richard the Fearless. The line: Renaud → Hugh I → Hugh II "Old Hugh" (1036–1074) → Hugh III m. Basilia Flaitel (widow of Raoul de Gacé — son of Robert, Count of Évreux and Archbishop of Rouen: the ducal connection again) → Gerard de Gournay, the Crusader (d. c. 1104), who married Edith de Warenne — daughter of William de Warenne, 1st Earl of Surrey (companion of the Conqueror, d. of wounds 1088) and Gundrada. CORRECTION (kept in the file's spirit of honesty): the old claim that Gundrada was a daughter of William the Conqueror — inscribed even on her 1845-rediscovered lead coffin at Lewes — is refuted (Stapleton 1846; Freeman, English Historical Review 1888; modern consensus): the Lewes Priory assertions are self-interested monastic fabrications, and Gundrada was Flemish — sister of Gerbod the Fleming, Earl of Chester 1070–71. The Conqueror-descent through this line is therefore not established and the earlier "third descent" note is struck; the Warenne kinship stands through the baronial line alone. Gerard's English barony (Caistor caput) rooted the Gournays of the West; the Gurney family of Norfolk descends from this house to this day. The line runs to the barons of Beverston → Milicent de Gournay, Countess of Évreux (wife of William de Cantelowe) → Nichole → Maud de Lucy → the Segraves → user.

- SENLIS / ST LIZ [A — Wikipedia; WikiTree citing Anselme, Cawley's FMG, and ODNB]: Simon I de Senlis, Earl of Northampton and Huntingdon (d. La Charité-sur-Loire, 1111×1113) — builder of Northampton Castle and the surviving round church of the Holy Sepulchre; witness to Henry I's coronation charter (1100); crusader; prisoner of Louis of France in 1098. His parentage carries an honest flag: son of Laudri de Senlis, sire of Chantilly and Ermenonville (Anselme; Wikipedia) or of "Ranulf/Randel le Riche" (ODNB; Cawley's recent research) — possibly the same man under variant names. The DNB legend — offered the widowed Judith of Lens, refused "on account of his lameness," married instead her daughter Maud of Huntingdon — is preserved as story. Maud de Senlis married (1) Robert Fitz Richard of Little Dunmow (the de Clares) and (2) Saer de Quincy — the user's direct line.

The Irish king-list floor — Crimthann mac Énnai (d. 483) [B/NA — the Book of Leinster king-list (Ríg Hua Cendselaig); FMG Ireland]:

- The Uí Cheinnselaig royal genealogy — preserved in the Book of Leinster from genuinely older material — names the user's male-line kings in an unbroken list: Crimthann mac Énnai (d. 483) → Brandub mac Echach (d. 605, the famous king) → the seventh- and eighth-century kings (Cú Chongelt d. 724; Sechnassach d. 746) → Cellach Tosach (d. 809) → Cairpre mac Diarmata (d. 876) → Fáelán (d. 894) → Tadg mac Fáeláin (d. 922) → Cináed (d. 935) → Cellach mac Cináeda (d. 947) → Donnchad mac Taidg (d. 965) → Domnall mac Cellaig (d. 974 — the annal-documented wall) → … → Murchad mac Diarmata (d. 1070) → Donnchad (d. 1115) → Diarmait (d. 1171) → Aoife.

- Honest grading: the seventh century onward is annal-documented; the fifth-to-sixth-century names (Crimthann's generation) are semi-legendary, carried by the medieval king-list tradition. The dynasty's continuity is real long after Aoife: Diarmait's son Domhnall Caomhánach (d. 1175) founded the Caomhánach (Kavanagh) line, Kings of Leinster in name into the fifteenth century and chiefs claiming the kingship into the modern era.

The Bessin viscounts mechanized — with a ducal marriage at the root [A/B — the Register of Wetheral Priory; Orderic Vitalis; the Durham Liber Vitae; FMG]:

- Anschitil, Viscount of the Bessin — married a daughter of Duke Richard III of Normandy (the Conqueror's first cousin) — the ducal blood in the Bessin viscountal house, documented via the chronicle tradition.
- His line: Anschitil → Ranulf I, Viscount of the Bessin m. Alix of Normandy → Ranulf de Briquessart, Viscount of the Bessin m. Margaret d'Avranches (sister of Hugh d'Avranches "Lupus," Earl of Chester — the Goz kin) → Ranulf le Meschin, 1st Earl of Chester of the second creation (d. 17/27 Jan 1129), founder of Wetheral Priory — commander of the royal army in Normandy 1124; his earldom came when his cousin Richard d'Avranches drowned in the White Ship (1120). His wife Lucy of Bolingbroke (heiress of the Spalding/Taillebois/Roumare lands — her own parentage per Keats-Rohan's Prosopon study) carried the Lincolnshire inheritance; his sister Agnes married Robert de Grantmesnil (the family of Pernelle de Grantmesnil, wife of the 3rd Earl of Leicester — yet another convergence).

- This root now explains the family's double Meschine descent: the line surfaces in the la Zouche branch through Alice de Belmeis and in the Ferrers branch through Agnes of Chester — two branches of the same Bessin viscountal tree, both documented to Anschitil.
- Flag: Ranulf le Meschin's first marriage to Maud de Vere (daughter of Aubrey de Vere) appears in the compiled pedigrees — the de Vere connection recurring; second marriage Lucy. Logged.

The Goz wall — the Chester line's documented floor [A/S — DNB; Complete Peerage III:165; the Hiémois charter tradition]:

- Hugh d'Avranches "Lupus" (c. 1047–1101), Earl of Chester — was son of Richard le Goz, Vicomte d'Avranches (d. 1082; the father who contributed 60 ships to the invasion fleet) — son of Turstin Goz, Viscount of the Hiémois (the rebel against the boy-duke William in 1040, reconciled by his son's loyalty) — son of Amfrid/Ansfrid the Dane (first Viscount of the Hiémois, d. c. 970). The documented Goz floor stands at Ansfrid the Dane, c. 970 — with the pedigree tradition ("Hrolf Turstain," fl. early 900s) flagged beyond.

- Hugh's own maternity is honestly unknown: the old claim that his mother was Emma de Conteville, half-sister of William the Conqueror, is rejected (C. P. Lewis, ODNB: "unsatisfactory evidence"; David Douglas: "no evidence that such a person ever existed"); the St Werburgh manuscript's "son of a Duke of Brittany and nephew of the Great William" is adjudged romanticized. Hugh's wife was Ermentrude de Clermont (daughter of Hugh, Count of Clermont-en-Beauvaisis, and Margaret de Roucy — the Roucy-Montdidier counts join the web).
- The Bigod conjecture re-stated at its root: Keats-Rohan's hypothesis makes Robert le Bigod (Roger Bigod's father) "a junior branch of the Goz family descended from Turstin I's son Robert" — i.e., if the conjecture holds, the Surety Bigods and the user's Chester (Goz) line share Turstin Goz as common ancestor — kinsmen through the same vicomtal house. Flagged, not adopted.
- The Chester succession: Hugh Lupus → his son Richard d'Avranches (drowned in the White Ship, 25 Nov 1120) → his cousin Ranulf le Meschin — the user's line.

The Warenne wall — documented to the 1020s [A/S — Loyd, Yorkshire Archaeological Journal 31; Keats-Rohan NMS 37; C. P. Lewis, ODNB]:

- Ralph de Warenne appears in charters from 1027–1035 (with wife Beatrice; the 1059 charter names Emma as mother of William — Keats-Rohan's two-generation reconstruction resolving the conflict) — from the hamlet of Varenne, Seine-Inférieure. William de Warenne, the younger son (b. ~1035, d. of wounds 24 Jun 1088, first Earl of Surrey), became the Conqueror's kinsman by marriage — Gundrada the Fleming — and one of the greatest magnates of the realm. The possible Gunnora-kin connection (a niece of Duchess Gunnor's family — Keats-Rohan's cautious identification of Beatrice as a daughter of Tesselin, vicomte of Rouen) is flagged, not adopted.

The Montfort line — a Capetian grantee of c. 990 [S/A — Britannica; Wikipedia Amaury I, Lords of Montfort-l'Amaury; the armorial genealogy]:

- Guillaume de Montfort, of Hainaut — the first lord — grandson of Regnier II, Count of Hainaut, cousin of Regnier IV of Mons — came to France after Regnier III's rebellions, and was invested with the lordship by King Hugh Capet (the castle built 996, for Robert the Pious, against the counts of Blois); by 1003 he had married an heiress of Montfort. The Hainaut line — the House of Reginar, ancestors of the House of Brabant — carries a possible Carolingian-Lotharingian descent (flagged as tradition).
- His son Amaury I (c. 1003 – d. c. 1053) — the town's namesake — m. Bertrade de Gometz; the family's own medieval claim of descent from Judith, daughter of Charles the Bald (through Baldwin Bras-de-Fer of Flanders) is flagged as origin-legend.
- The descent runs through Simon I (m. Agnes d'Évreux — daughter of the Count of Évreux) to Simon III, Count of Évreux, father of Bertrade de Montfort (wife of Hugh de Kevelioc — the user's line).

- Kin notes: the Montforts intermarried the web repeatedly — Amaury III's daughter Agnes married Waleran IV de Beaumont, Count of Meulan (the user's Beaumont family); the family's later fame — Simon IV de Montfort, the Albigensian crusader, and Simon V, founder-figure of the English parliament — and the Breton Montfort dukes (1365–1514, through Yolande) ending in Anne of Brittany, twice Queen of France.

The Valois–Vexin line — Carolingian at the root, and a hero of the chansons [S/A — Wikipedia Counts and dukes of Valois; FMG MedLands; Flodoard]:

- The Valois counts of the Carolingian age were Pepin I and Pepin II, Counts of Vermandois and Valois — sons of Bernard, King of Italy, grandson of Charlemagne — and Herbert I of Vermandois (893–895), Bernard's other son — the very line of Richardson's Charlemagne Line A. The later counts — Ermenfroi (895–919), Ralph I of Ostrevent (915–926) — are of "disputed origin" per the standard lists.
- Ralph II de Cambrai (926–943, killed 944) — Liegardis of Meulan's FIRST husband — is the historical original of the epic hero of the Chanson de Geste Raoul de Cambrai; Flodoard records his death invading Vermandois, and Alberic of Trois-Fontaines calls him nepos ex sorore of King Louis IV — kin to the Carolingian royal house (flagged, source unidentified). His line passes to Walter I, Walter II the White, and Ralph III/IV of Valois — whose daughter Adele of Valois married into the Meulan line, closing the loop: Liegardis's two marriages bound Valois, Vexin, and Meulan into one inheritance that descended to the Beaumonts — and to the user.

The Giroie–Grantmesnil block — Orderic Vitalis's greatest story, in the direct line [S — FMG MedLands quoting Orderic Vitalis and Guillaume de Jumièges]:

- Giroie, Lord of Échauffour (d. before 1035) m. Gisla, daughter of Thurstan de Bastembourg — the Bastembourg marriage: the same Bessin-vicomtal clan from which the Chester Meschines descend (§8.4, Bessin), intersecting the family yet again.
- Their daughter Hawise Giroie married (1) Robert de Grantmesnil (killed in battle 17 June 1040, in the great feud their family waged with the Bellême/Talvas clan) — children: HUGH DE GRANDMESNIL (1032–1094), commander at Hastings, Domesday tenant-in-chief (100 manors, 65 in Leicestershire), governor of Leicester and sheriff of two counties — and (2) Guillaume d'Évreux, son of Archbishop Robert (the Évreux ducal line) — their daughter Judith married Roger, Count of Sicily (the Hauteville).
- The line runs Hugh de Grandmesnil (d. 1094) → his son Robert → his son William (the name given by Pernel's own charter; the Leicester Abbey narrative's "Hugh" is rejected by the Complete Peerage as fictitious) → Pernel/Petronilla de Grandmesnil (d. 1212), heiress of the Norman honour of Grandmesnil, wife of Robert de Beaumont, 3rd Earl of Leicester → their daughter Margaret of Leicester m. SAHER DE QUINCY, the Magna Carta Surety — the user's line. (Correction kept in the file: the user descends from Hawise Giroie's FIRST marriage — the Grantmesnils — not the Évreux second marriage.)

- The story inside the story: the same feud that killed Robert de Grantmesnil also produced the blinding and mutilation of his brother-in-law William fitz Giroie at the wedding of William I Talvas, and the poisoning of Arnold d'Échauffour by Mabilia (wife of Roger de Montgomery) — and, at the feud's origin, the assassination of Gilbert "Crispin," Count of Brionne — the user's OTHER direct ancestor (§8.4, de Clare), whose orphaned sons fled to Flanders. The user's two Norman houses stood on opposite sides of the generation of knives: the Giroies feuded for the Crispins' blood, and their descendant married the Surety.

The Giffard block — Gunnor's own kin [A/B — Wikipedia; WikiTree Bolebec-30 quoting NEHGR 75 and the Staffordshire Collections]:

- Osbern de Bolebec, Lord of Longueville m. a sister of Gunnor, Duchess of Normandy (Wevia/Avelina — the Crépon sisters, daughters of the forester of Saint-Vaast-d'Équiqueville): by this marriage the Giffards were "first cousin twice removed of William the Conqueror" (Wikipedia). (The two-generation reconstruction and the Wevia/Avelina/Duvelina sister-assignment debate are flagged per the WikiTree/NEHGR analysis.)
- Walter Giffard — thirty ships at the invasion; offered the honor of carrying Duke William's standard at Hastings (declined — an old warrior who wanted both hands free); barony of Long Crendon (107 manors); a Domesday commissioner; founder of St Michel de Bolbec priory (1079) — m. Ermengarde, daughter of Gerard Flaitel.

- Their daughter ROHESE GIFFARD married Richard fitz Gilbert of Clare — the mother of the line that produced Strongbow (§8.4, de Clare): so the user descends from the Giffards through the Clare marriage, and the Giffard kin-of-the-duke connection runs in the family through Gunnor's sisters.

The Breton ducal connection — Hawise Fergant [S — the UMich genealogy (S-grade); Wikipedia Porhoët; the Morice charters]:

- Hawise "Fergant" — wife of Geoffrey de Porhoët and mother of Alan la Zouche — was daughter of ALAN IV "FERGANT," Duke of Brittany (d. 1119) and ERMENGARDE OF ANJOU (daughter of Fulk IV, Count of Anjou). Your direct ancestress was a daughter of the Duke of Brittany — and by her mother, of the house of Anjou, the Plantagenets' own ancestral dynasty. Alan IV himself took the Cross and went on the First Crusade; the Breton ducal house (Cornouaille) and the vicomtal Porhoët intermarried into the same blood that crossed to England as the la Zouches.
- The family's Breton orbit also produced the era's most lurid scandal: Eudo II de Porhoët claimed in 1168 that Henry II had impregnated his daughter Alix 'treacherously, adulterously and incestuously; for the king and Eudo's wife were the offspring of two sisters' — Alix de Porhoët was Henry II's mistress (logged as contemporary allegation, Given-Wilson & Curteis).
- Odo I's wife, Anne/Emma de Léon (daughter of Guihomar II, Viscount of Léon) was buried at the Josselin priory in 1092 — her funeral witnessed by three bishops and a gathering of barons, per the Morice charters.

The Flaitel line — seneschals of the ducal court [S — the Winchester PhD thesis on the Giffards; the St Wandrille pancarte]:

- Gerard Flaitel (d. c. 1047) — in the court circle of Duke Richard II and Duke Robert I — his daughter Ermengarde married Walter Giffard (the standard-refuser, §8.4-Giffard). His family made gifts to St Wandrille in the 1082×1087 pancarte alongside Walter's — the churches of Chambois, Courbépine, Betthonis, Longueil — with his sons William (Bishop of Évreux), Anscherius, Robert and Albertus named. The documented Flaitel floor stands at Gerard, c. 1047.

The Clermont–Roucy block — and another Capetian doorway [S/A — Complete Peerage III:165; FMG; Richardson RA]:

- Hugues de Clermont (1030–1101), seigneur of Clermont, Creil, Gournay, Luzarches, Mouchy and Breuil-le-Vert — son of Renaud de Creil (d. 1088), Great Chamberlain of France — married Marguerite de Ramerupt (de Roucy), daughter of Hilduin IV, Count of Roucy and Montdidier (d. 1063), and Adelaide de Roucy (daughter of Ebles I, Count of Reims and Roucy, and Beatrice of Hainaut — daughter of Regnier IV, Count of Hainaut, and Hedwige Capet, daughter of King Hugh Capet: the French royal line enters yet again, through the same Reginar-Hainaut house as the Montforts).
- The sister-marriages: Ermentrude de Clermont married Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester (the user's Chester line); her sister Adeliza de Clermont married Gilbert fitz Richard de Clare (the user's de Clare line). Both of the user's great Norman houses married daughters of the same Clermont–Roucy couple.

- The Roucy counts themselves (Hilduin II, III, IV) are documented to the mid-900s; the deeper Carolingian claims attached to the house are flagged as the family's own tradition.

The Morville block — the constables of Scotland [S/A — ODNB; Weis AR 38-25; Turton]:

- The family takes its name from Morville, in the Cotentin. Hugh de Morville (d. 1162), hereditary Constable of Scotland — founder of Dryburgh Abbey (1150) and Kilwinning — married Beatrice de Beauchamp; their son Richard de Morville (d. 1189), Constable of Scotland 1162, married Avice/Hawise de Lancaster (daughter of William I de Lancaster, Baron of Kendal — the Taillebois line — and Gundred de Warenne, the Fleming's granddaughter). Their daughter ELENA DE MORVILLE (1166–1217), sole heir, married Roland (Lochlann) of Galloway (d. 1200) — son of Uchtred of Galloway and Gunnild of Dunbar — the user's Galloway line; the hereditary constableship passed with her. The family's dark footnote, honestly separated: the Westmorland Morvilles (Hugh of Knaresborough) were among Thomas Becket's killers (1170) — kinsmen, not the direct branch.
- The Complete Peerage's Chester note adds that the first earl's hereditary barons included the constable/marshal line "whose descendants took the name of De Lacy" — the Lacy thread at the Chester root.

The Lucy–Taillebois block — Keats-Rohan's solution, and two rejected pedigrees [S — Keats-Rohan, Antecessor Noster (Prosopon 2, 1995); CP; the Croyland-forgery scholarship]:

- Lucy of Bolingbroke — wife in turn of Ivo Taillebois, Roger fitz Gerold, and Ranulf le Meschin, Earl of Chester (the user's line, mother of Ranulf de Gernon) — was, per Katherine Keats-Rohan's definitive study, daughter of Thorold (Turold), the English sheriff of Lincoln holding before the Conquest, and a daughter of William Malet — the Surety's family intersecting yet again.
- Two rejected claims, kept in the file as warnings: the story that Lucy was a daughter of Ælfgar, Earl of Mercia (sister of Edwin and Morcar) derives from the Croyland Chronicle's first section — 'now known to be a later forgery from the 14th century' — and the Coventry genealogia fundatoris, 'a dubious document'; the Peterborough version shares the contamination. Peter of Blois's curse on Ivo Taillebois ("the accursed lineage of that wicked man perished by the axe of the Almighty") is preserved as the chronicler's venom, not genealogy.
- Lucy's daughter Beatrice m. Ribald of Middleham (half-brother of Alan Rufus) — the Richmond honour kin.

THE DEEPEST FLAGGED LAYER — "Descent from Antiquity" (the Kelley–Settipani reconstruction) [S — Don Stone's soc.genealogy.medieval chart; Kelley, NEHGR 101 (1947); Settipani, Les Ancêtres de Charlemagne (1989); the consensus: "no Descent From Antiquity is accepted as established at this time"]:

- Plausible but unproven: the Carolingian line may continue — Flavius Afranius Syagrius (fl. 345–382; Praefectus Urbi of Rome 381; Consul 382; Praetorian Prefect of Italy; buried at Lyons beneath a monument "not quite a full bowshot" from the church) → his daughter m. Ferreolus → Tonantius Ferreolus (b. ~405,

d. after 469), Praetorian Prefect of Gaul from 451 — the senator whose diplomacy helped break Attila's siege of Arles after the Catalaunian Plains — m. Papianilla, niece of Emperor Avitus (the general-emperor who had helped defeat Attila) and cousin to the other Papianilla, wife of Sidonius Apollinaris, last of the Roman poets of Gaul — → Tonantius the younger → Ferreolus of Narbonne (m. St Dode of Rheims) → Ansbertus → [the disputed Merovingian link] → Arnulf's forebears.

- The weak links are named, not hidden: generations 6–8 rest on the same spurious Genealogia Karolorum that modern historians dismiss (Schieffer); Moriarty called the Syagrius line "very problematical"; the Arnoald/Blithilde claim is dismissed; Arnulf's father was probably Bodegisel — Settipani's own alternative runs through Mummolin of Neustria and Mundéric.

The deepest honest statement: the family plausibly descends, by a reconstruction no authority accepts as proven, from the Roman senatorial consuls of Gaul in the 4th–5th centuries — the age of Sidonius, Avitus, and the last days of Roman rule.

THE ORIGINS TABLE — where every line ends:

Line	Documented floor	Hypothetical (flagged)	Legendary (rejected)
---	---	---	---
Carolingian/Frankish	c. 580 (St Arnulf, St Pepin of Landen)	Syagrius the Consul, 382 (Settipani/Kelley)	Merovingian blo (dismissed); Fra & King Priam o Troy (Fredegar, 660)
West Saxon	718 (Ingild) · 784 (Ealhmund)	—	Cerdic (semi, d. → Woden → Gea Noah → Adam (myth)

Line	Documented floor	Hypothetical (flagged)	Legendary (rejected)
Northumbrian	913 (Eadwulf I)	King Ælla's line (dynastic claim, flagged)	Ragnar Lodbro (saga)
Irish	896 (Cennétig) · 974 (Domnall) · 700s (annals)	Crimthann's dynasty (graded 483)	the Milesians o Spain (Lebor Gabála); Oengus Turbech
Breton	c. 990 (Guithenoc of Josselin)	—	Conan Meriado (the Trojan-Wels founder-legend)
Norman	918 (Rollo)	Rognvald of Møre (conjecture)	Odin & the Æsi Fornjot (Snorri's euhemerized "Tu of Troy")
Danish	Siward's father Bjorn (shadowy)	Danish royal kin (Bolton's hypothesis, flagged)	the white-bear descent (Vita Waldevi folklore)

The medieval world kit-bashed every nation out of Troy — Fredegar's Franks under Priam and Francio, Brutus for Britain, the Milesians for Ireland, Snorri's Norse gods as Trojan refugees — and the modern scholarly verdict on the whole apparatus is the one this file has carried since its first page: legend, faithfully recorded, never adopted.

The Reginarid (Hainaut) line — probable Carolingian, honestly unconfirmed [A/S — Wikipedia; FMG MedLands; the Taylor & Francis Lotharingian genealogies]:

- The Montforts' Hainaut line runs to Reginar I "Longneck" (c. 850 – d. Meerssen, between 25 Aug 915 and 19 Jan 916), head of the Reginarids — "probably" the son of Gilbert (Giselbert), Count of the Maasgau, and an unnamed daughter of Emperor Lothair I — a marriage born of Gilbert's abduction of the princess in 846 (reconciled to Lothair in 848, Annales Fuldenses). The honest flags, verbatim from the sources: the mother's name is unknown (Hiltrude, Bertha, Irmgard, Gisela are candidates — none verified); "the primary source which confirms his parentage has not yet been identified" (FMG); the Annales Hanoniæ's pedigree passage "must be incorrect"; the Carolingian tie, if real, would give the Montforts (and the user) a fifth Carolingian descent — probable but unconfirmed.

- His career is fully documented: lay abbot of Echternach (897–915), Maastricht, Stablo-Malmedy; fought ROLLO — the user's other deep ancestor — beside Radbod of Frisia (Guillaume de Jumièges: "Rainier au long cou duc de Hasbaigne et du Hainaut et Radbold prince de Frise" against the Viking); regent of the kingdom in the 877 Capitulary of Quierzy; broke with Zwentibold; led the magnates who elected Charles the Simple. His descendants — Reginar II (Count of Hainaut 924–931) → Reginar III → Reginar IV (d. 1013) m. Hedwig, daughter of King Hugh Capet (the Roucy/Capetian line of the Clermont block) → the Counts of Hainaut, Leuven (Lambert I, d. 1015, founder of the House of Leuven/Brabant) and the Montforts' own line.
- Note the web's ironies: the user's Hainaut ancestors fought the user's Norman founder; the user's Porhoët kin feuded the Plantagenets; the family's medieval lines fought each other for three centuries.

The Angevin (Ingelgerian) line — the Plantagenets' own root [A — Wikipedia; the academic study of Angevin historiography; Bachrach, Fulk Nerra]:

- Ingelger (d. 886/898) — "the first documented member of the Angevins" — a ninth-century charter names him father of Fulk the Red; a "semi-legendary soldier of fortune who carved out an estate for himself in the Loire valley"; viscount of Orléans, prefect of Tours; m. Adelais of the lords of Amboise (whose uncles were the archbishop of Tours and the bishop of Angers). His putative father Tertullus — and Tertullus's father Tortulfus — rest on the debated Gesta Consulum material: "No dates have ever been attested."

- The most honest sentence in the medieval record: Count Fulk Rechin (d. 1109), writing his family's history in 1096, admitted he could record the deeds "neither of Ingelger nor of Fulk the Red nor of Fulk the Good — because they lived so long ago that we do not even know where they are buried." His own mythology — a descendant of Charlemagne bestowing the county, the counts seizing Anjou "from the hands of pagans" — is flagged as the family's invention.
- The line, once solid: Ingelger → Fulk I the Red (first Count of Anjou, 898–941) → Fulk II the Good → Geoffrey I Greymantle → Fulk III "Nerra" the Black (987–1040) → Geoffrey II Martel → [cognatic] → Fulk IV the Ill-Tempered (1067–1109) m. Bertrade de Montfort → Fulk V, King of Jerusalem & Ermengarde of Anjou (m. Alan IV of Brittany — Hawise Fergant's parents, the user's direct line) → Geoffrey V Plantagenet → Henry II. The user descends from the sister of the King of Jerusalem and the aunt of the Plantagenet founder.

The Cogswell block — documented to ~1484, and a first-cousin marriage resolved [A/B — WikiTree Cogswell-72/73 citing the Great Migration and Jameson's Cogswells in America (1884)]:

• Margaret Cogswell (wife of Moses Hawke, 1659) was the daughter of Deacon William Cogswell (b. Feb 1619/20, Westbury Leigh, Wilts – d. 15 Dec 1700, Chebacco/Ipswich) — who married, at Lynn in 1649/50, SUSANNA HAWKES — daughter of Adam Hawkes himself. The flagged question resolves as a first-cousin marriage: Moses Hawke (son of John Hawkes & Rebecca Maverick) married Margaret Cogswell (daughter of his aunt Susanna Hawkes & William Cogswell) — both grandchildren of Adam Hawkes. William Cogswell is also the documented ancestor of President John Adams (and of Diana, Princess of Wales, per the earlier Cogswell finding).

• The Cogswell English line: John Cogswell (1592–1669; the Angel Gabriel wreck survivor; "The Mylls called Rippond," Frome Selwood — Cogswell-owned cloth mills still operating in 1884) ← Edward Cogswell ← Robert Cogswell (b. 30 Nov 1510 – d. 7 Jun 1581), woolen-cloth manufacturer ← the Leigh, Wiltshire family documented to ~1484. John's wife was Elizabeth Thompson, daughter of Rev. William Thompson, vicar of Westbury, & Phillis Rycharde Lychston.

• Family color: the 1675–77 suit Cogswell v. Cogswell (nephew v. uncle over the sea-drowned brother's estate — nephew lost, paid the costs); five Cogswells among the twenty signers of the Rev. John Wise petition for Goodwife Proctor at the Salem witch trials; the family coat of arms "wrought most exquisitely with silk on heavy satin," lent to a stranger in the 1880s and never returned.

The Maverick block — three generations of clergy, documented [S/A — NEHGR 69 (1915) Elizabeth French; the ordination books;

English Origins of the Mary & John Passengers]:

- Robert Maverick, clerk, of Awliscombe (d. 1573) — described in the parish records as a "clerk" (cleric); his predecessor in the Awliscombe church was installed in 1554; of yeoman stock, origins unknown.
- His son Rev. Peter Maverick alias Bull (b. ~1550; ordained deacon in the Bishop's Palace chapel, Exeter, 1573/4; instituted vicar of Awliscombe 1580; d. a violent death c. 1616) — the alias never explained; the best surmise is that Peter was a step-son who bore his step-father's name. Married Dorothy Tucke (daughter of tenants of the Mayor of Exeter, 1577).
- Their son Rev. John Maverick (1578–1636) — the Dorchester founder. Brothers: Rev. Radford Maverick (b. 1561; vicar of Ilsington — the guardian who raised the orphaned Mary Gye and performed her marriage to his nephew John in 1600) and Alexander, Nathaniel, et al.
- Mary Gye's gateway status [S — Richardson MCA; the WikiTree Magna Carta Project]: Mary Gye is a documented Gateway Ancestor with a badged Richardson trail to Magna Carta Surety Roger le Bigod (MCA II:325–326), further trails to sureties Saher de Quincy and William Malet, and accepted royal lines to Henry I (including via Henry II) — the Henry III line remains broken (the Echyngham/Baynton generation). Her 1508-IPM forebears John Guy & Elizabeth Spencer (the Spencer-of-Devon link) remain flagged "proof lacking."
- Kin notes: through her Stukeley kin, Mary Gye was connected to Sir Lewis Stukeley, who married Frances Monck — aunt of George Monck, Duke of Albemarle, the kingmaker of the Restoration (her son Samuel's later position as royal commissioner plausibly ran through this kinship — flagged); and a later Maverick kinsman, Samuel Maverick (1753–1770) of Boston, was one of the five victims of the Boston Massacre.

The Cushman block — documented to 1475, and a Flemish origin [PR/A — NEHGR 68:181 (French); PGM; WikiTree Cushman-136; the 2018 Mayflower Descendant household-inventory article; Thomas Fuller's Church History]:

- Robert Cushman (bap. 9 Feb 1577/8, Rolvenden, Kent — mis-transcribed in the register as "Robert Dutcheman" – d. 1625, London) — the Chief Agent of the Plymouth Pilgrims (1617–1625), the organizer of the Mayflower voyage itself: he and John Carver negotiated the patent, and when the Speedwell failed he stayed behind and sent the Mayflower on; he crossed instead on the Fortune* (November 1621) with his son Thomas, preached the famous sermon of 9 December 1621 — "The Sin and Danger of Self-Love and the Sweetness of True Friendship" — obtained the colonists' signatures on the articles they had refused the year before, and returned to England 13 December, dying in 1625 before he could make Plymouth his permanent home. The memorial on Burial Hill, Plymouth, records it all. His wife Sara Reder/Reader (married 31 July 1606 at St. Alphege, Canterbury — "dwelling within the precincts of Christ Church," the cathedral close); his step-brother was Joseph Tilden (through his father's marriage to Ellen Cowchman Evernden).

- The English line: Robert ← Thomas Couchman (1538 – d. by 14 Feb 1585/6, Rolvenden) m. Elinor Hubbard (1568) — his household inventory published in the Mayflower Descendant (2018) ← Thomas Croucheman (bap. 9 Mar 1512, Hawkhurst – d. 14 Jun 1567) ← the Rolvenden line documented to 1475.
- The name and the origin tradition: per Fuller's Church History, the Couchmans were cloth-makers, Flemish in origin, who came to Kent at the invitation of King Edward II, c. 1336 — the Flemish weaving migration. (Flagged as the Fuller tradition; the documented wall stands at 1475.)
- Robert Cushman's line continues: son Elder Thomas Cushman (1607/8–1691) — Bradford's ward; ruling elder 1649–1691; m. Mary Allerton (the last Mayflower survivor) — the user's Allerton-granddaughter line through Sarah Cushman & John Hawkes.

The Townsend note — the Lynn family [A/B — the 1887 chart; Genealogy of the Townsend Family]: Susannah Townsend, wife of John Hawkes (b. 1704/5, Lynn – d. 1748) — son of Moses Hawke (1659–1709) & Margaret Cogswell per the sourced reconstruction (the 1887 chart's intermediate generation slightly conflated; the Mayflower Society's line runs instead through Moses (1699–1760) m. Susannah Hichins — both flagged). The Lynn Townsends descend from Thomas Townsend, who came to Lynn in 1634.

The confirmation from the Great Migration-based profile [B — WikiTree Hawkes-406, citing the Mayflower Index and Hawkes Talks vols. 5 & 11]: "When he married, in both instances he chose brides who were descendants of Mayflower passengers… thus all descendants of John Hawkes by either his first or second marriage may claim Mayflower ancestry. Those descended through the first wife Rebecca Maverick ALSO have the lineage through Mary Gye… traced directly back to two Magna Charta Barons — (1) the Baron William Malet and (2) Baron Saher De Quincy. Still earlier generations include King Henry the First of England, William the Conqueror, and Charlemagne." — the file's own conclusions, independently stated by the family's own researchers, citing the same Weis Ancestral Roots pedigrees.

The Brewster block — documented floor: William Brewster b. ~1505, Bentley cum Arksey, Yorkshire [A/B — Mayflower Society profile; WikiTree Brewster-131/4 citing the MHS Proceedings and Hunter's Collections]:

- Elder William Brewster (b. ~1566, Scrooby – d. 10 Apr 1644, Plymouth), the only college-educated Pilgrim (Peterhouse, matriculated 3 Dec 1580), Secretary to Davison, postmaster of Scrooby, ruling Elder — son of William Brewster (b. ~1535, Doncaster – d. summer 1590), whom Archbishop Grindal appointed bailiff and receiver of Scrooby Manor for life on 4 Jan 1575/6 — "our trusty and well-beloved servant" — postmaster of the royal post on the Great North Road; m. (1) Mary Smythe, widow of John Simkinson of Doncaster, daughter of William Smythe of Stainforth (sister of John Smythe, alderman of Hull); (2) Prudence.
- The grandfather: William Brewster (b. ~1505, Bentley cum Arksey, Yorkshire – d. bef. 1558) m. Maud Mann (1510 – aft. 11 Oct 1558) — the documented floor. The widely copied "Galfridus Brewster b. 1380" / "John Brewster of Rushmere, 1279" pedigrees are formally rejected as unsourced (WikiTree's research note); the family was Yorkshire postmaster-gentry, not armigerous stock.

- Elder Brewster's wife Mary — surname genuinely unknown: the Wentworth theory disproved; Wyrall, Stubbe, Butler, Smith all unproven. Fear Brewster (b. ~1606 — Isaac Allerton's second wife) was named for her great-aunt Fear Brewster, who died unmarried c. 1608. He died at Plymouth 10 April 1644, aged ~78, leaving over 400 books.

The Eaton block — Mayflower stock, and a Welsh claim [A — History, Genealogical and Biographical, of the Eaton Families (archive.org full text)]:

- The Eaton family into which Polly Eaton (b. Dec 29, 1782) was born includes FRANCIS EATON — carpenter of the Mayflower, signer of the Compact, d. 1633 — whose descendants intermarried the other Pilgrim houses: his son Samuel Eaton m. Martha Billington (daughter of John Billington, the Mayflower passenger executed for murder) and Elizabeth Fuller (daughter of Rev. Samuel Fuller), with Alden blood through other branches ("granddaughter of John Alden and Priscilla (Mullins) Alden"). A cousin in the family papers bore the given name Maverick Eaton (Revolutionary service) — the Hawkes–Maverick name floating through yet another family. Polly's own branch (the Francis Eaton line of Plymouth/Kingston vs. the John Eaton of Dedham line, Elizabeth & Ann 1635) is unopened — flagged for the future.
- The Eaton book also carries the family's claimed Welsh pedigree — the Eytons of Shropshire, to Madog Eyton (d.

1331, buried at Gresford), through the Welsh genealogies of Llewelyn ap Griffri — flagged as the book's own pedigree, unverified against modern standards.

The Breton royal line — documented to Nominoe, d. 851 [S — FMG MedLands citing the Annales Bertiniani, the Chronicle of Nantes, and the Redon annals; Britannica; Wikipedia]:

- Hawise Fergant's line runs through the Dukes of Brittany: Alan IV "Fergant" (c. 1063 – 13 Oct 1119, buried at Redon) — Duke of Brittany 1072–1112, "the last Breton-speaking Duke" — son of Hoel II (d. 13 Apr 1084) & Hawise of Rennes (daughter of Alan III of Brittany & Bertha of Blois; regent for her son until 1084). Hoel II was of the House of Cornouaille — eldest son of Alain Canhiart (d. 1058), Count of Cornouaille, m. Judith of Nantes.
- Behind them: the Cornouaille counts ascend to Alan II "Barbetorte" (d. 952) — the restorer who expelled the Vikings (r. from 937) — grandson of Alan I "the Great" (d. 907) — crowned KING of the Bretons at Grandmeau (r. 888/890–907) — and to the dynasty of NOMINOE (d. 7 March 851, buried at Redon Abbey) — the emperor Louis the Pious's missus imperatoris in Brittany (appointed 831), victor over Charles the Bald at Ballon (845), founder of the Breton state and Tad ar Vro — "Father of the Country" — whose death the Annales Bertiniani record as "Nomenogius Britto." His son Erispoë (defeated Charles at Jengland, 851; murdered 857) and grandson's generation (Salomon, d. 874; Pasquitan & Gurvand, d. 877×888) carry the line; the Viking occupation (913–937) interrupts; the dynasty is restored and descends to the Cornouaille counts.

- Honest flags: the generational links inside the dynasty between Nominoe's sons' generation and Alan I have the usual early-medieval gaps (kinship asserted by the Chronicle of Nantes rather than proven charter-by-charter); Nominoe's own father, Erispoë I, Count of Poher (b. ~770s), is named in the chronicle tradition — flagged. The dynasty itself, however — Nominoe through Alan IV — is documentary, annal by annal.
- The depth table gains a line: the Breton royal house now stands at 851 — the family's deepest royal line after the Carolingians (580), and deeper than Wessex (718), Bamburgh (913), the Dál Cais (896), or the Normans (918). The user descends from the founder of the Breton state.

The Tosny block — documented floor: Hugues I de Calvacamp, b. c. 890 [S/A — the Acta Archiepiscoporum Rothomagensium; Orderic Vitalis; the Fécamp hoard coin; the Tosarn tombstone; Complete Peerage XII/1: 754; the Pattou study (2012)]:

- Hugues I de Calvacamp (b. c. 890 – d. c. 980) — the Acta calls the family of "illustrious stock"; the modern scholarship (Stewart, Pattou, Keats-Rohan) considers the family French/Frankish of the Île-de-France rather than Norman — the "Calvacamp/Calvocampo" name itself analyzed as a humble "bare field" appellation. Orderic Vitalis's interpolation, making the Tosnys "of the lineage of Malahulc, uncle of Rollo," is flagged as 12th-century pedigree-building, exactly as for the Allertons.
- His sons: Hugues II (b. by 915, monk of St-Denis; Archbishop of Rouen 942–989 — a coin of the Fécamp hoard minted "in the name of Hugh the Dane," datable to the 980s, and the reused tombstone at Tosarn naming "Hugh, soldier of Richard, king of the Normans," survive him) — and Raoul I (b. c. 915, first Seigneur de Tosny — the archbishop's gift of the church's Tosny lands; in 991 he witnessed the accord between Duke Richard I and King Æthelred II — the first surviving international treaty in Norman history).

- The line runs through Roger I "the Spaniard" (d. c. 1040, four years in the Reconquista; killed by Roger de Beaumont; his widow Godehildis m. Richard, Count of Évreux) → Raoul II (d. 1102; m. Isabelle de Montfort — the "War of the Beautiful Women" against Helvisa d'Évreux) → Raoul III (m. Adelise/Alice, daughter of WALTHEOF, Earl of Northumbria — the saint's line) → Raoul IV (m. Margaret of Leicester) → Ida de Tosny (mistress of Henry II; mother of WILLIAM LONGESPÉE — the user's royal line) — and, in a collateral branch, ADELISE/ALICE DE TOSNY married ROGER BIGOD, 1st Earl of Norfolk: the user's Surety-Bigod line is kin to the Tosnys by marriage.
- Depth-table addition: the Tosny line stands at c. 890 — the family's second-deepest documented line after the Carolingians (580), beside Rollo (918) and the Bretons (851).

The Brewster–Mann refinement — Hunt's articles as the authority [PR — John G. Hunt, TAG 41:1–5 (1965) and NEHGR 124:253 (1970); the GSMD Silver Book (2014) names these "the current state of research"]:

- Maud Mann (b. ~1510, Doncaster) — daughter of John Mann, sister of Christopher Mann (whose will, 13 Jan 1558, names her and is witnessed by William Brewster and John Simkinson); Alice, widow of Christopher Mann, is named in the 1558 will of Thomas Simkinson, alderman of Doncaster.
- The kinship proven by a will: John Smythe of Hull's will (8 Aug 1592) names "my nephews William Brewster, John Smythe and Thomas Simkinson" as executors — proving Elder Brewster's mother Mary Smythe was the sister of the alderman of Hull, and his half-brother Thomas Simkinson of Hull (to whom the Leiden Brewster gave power of attorney in 1609).
- The grandfather: William Brewster, b. ~1505–1510 (Bentley cum Arksey / Doncaster / Hatfield variants flagged); the unsourced deeper pedigrees remain rejected. Prudence (the second wife of the Scrooby bailiff) — maiden name unproven (Peck/Perkins postulated).

The Valois–Meulan correction — Liegardis's real family [S/A — FMG MedLands citing Rodulfus Glaber & her own 978 charter; Wikipedia Ralph II of the Vexin]:

- Ralph II of the Vexin (Count of the Vexin, Amiens & Valois, 926–943 — built the fortress of Crépy-en-Valois; killed 943×944 fighting the Vermandois — the historical original of the Chanson de Raoul de Cambrai) — son of Ralph I de Gouy, Count of Ostrevent (d. 926) & Eldegarde of Amiens (daughter of Ermenfroi) — married Liegardis, and died without issue by her.
- Liegardis (b. before 925 – d. 14 Nov. after 985, buried Chartres, Abbaye de Saint-Père) — daughter of HERBERT,

COUNT OF MEULAN (Trecensis) — her own 978 charter names "patris mei Heirberti, Trecassini comitis." She married secondly THIBAUT OF BLOIS — "le Tricheur," founder of the great house of Blois — by whom her sons Odo, Count of Blois, and Hugh, Bishop of Auxerre. (Source conflict flagged: Rodulfus Glaber makes her childless by her first husband; the Meulan genealogy makes her the mother of the Meulan counts — both logged.)

- The loop closes: the Valois counts descend from the Carolingian Vermandois — Pepin I & Pepin II, Counts of Vermandois and Valois (sons of Bernard, King of Italy — Charlemagne's grandsons), and Herbert I (893–895), Bernard's other son — the exact line of Richardson's Charlemagne Line A — then through Ermenfroi ("of disputed origin") to the Gouy counts (Ralph I d. 926 → Ralph II d. 943) → Walter I → Walter II "the White" → Ralph III → Ralph IV (whose third wife was Anne of Kiev, the dowager Queen of France) → Simon de Crépy → Adele of Valois → the Meulan counts → Adeline of Meulan → Roger de Beaumont → the user's line. Valois, Vexin, Meulan, Blois, and Vermandois — the whole Oise-line of counties braided into one inheritance, rooted in Charlemagne's grandsons.

The Capetian–Robertian line — documented floor: Robert the Strong, d. 2 July 866 [S/A — the Annales Fuldenses; the Historia Francorum Senonensis; Flodoard; Settipani's Robertian studies; Wikipedia]:

- Hugh Capet (b. c. 941 – d. 24 Oct 996), founder of the Capetian dynasty — every King of France from 987 to 1848 descends from him — son of Hugh the Great (b. c. 898 – d. 16 June 956), Duke of the Franks, the most powerful man in West Francia — and Hedwig of Saxony.

- Hugh the Great — son of ROBERT I OF FRANCE (b. 15 Aug 866, posthumous – d. 15 June 923, killed at the Battle of Soissons), King of West Francia 922–923 — and BEATRICE OF VERMANDOIS (c. 880 – after 26 March 931), daughter of Herbert I of Vermandois & Bertha of Morvois — a Carolingian, a male-line great-granddaughter of King Bernard of Italy through Charlemagne's son Pepin (per the Abbreviatio of Frater Andreas and Alberic of Trois-Fontaines) — the Vermandois loop again, closing Charlemagne's Line A from the other side.
- Robert I — son of ROBERT THE STRONG (c. 830 – 2 July 866) — Charles the Bald's missus dominicus for Maine, Anjou and Touraine (853), Marquis of Neustria — killed at the Battle of Brissarthe defending Francia against the joint Breton-Viking army of Salomon of Brittany and the chieftain Hastein; the Annales Fuldenses hail him "a second Maccabaeus" — and Adelaide of Tours (b. c. 820 – d. by 886; her epitaph preserved in a poem of Walahfrid Strabo), daughter of Hugh of Tours. The documented floor of the Capetian line stands at Robert the Strong, d. 866 — with the son-of-Robert-III-of-Worms / Hesbaye-origin links flagged as conjectural (Settipani's Rhine-clan hypothesis).

The Ottonian line — the user's other new royal house [A/S — Widukind of Corvey's Res gestae Saxonicae; the Vitae of St Matilda; Wikipedia]:

- Hedwig of Saxony (c. 910 – 10 May 965) — third wife of Hugh the Great (m. 937, arranged by her brother), regent of the Robertian estates for the boy Hugh Capet (956–c. 967) alongside her brother Archbishop Bruno — daughter of HENRY I "THE FOWLER" (c. 876 – 2 July 936), King of Germany from 919, founder of the Ottonian dynasty, victor over the Magyars at Riade (933), buried at Quedlinburg — and ST MATILDA OF RINGELHEIM (c. 894/97 – 14 March 968), daughter of Dietrich, Count of Westphalia, & Reinhild of Denmark; founder of Quedlinburg Abbey; canonized (patroness of widows, large families, and the falsely accused).
- Hedwig's siblings — the user's great-uncles and great-aunt of that generation: OTTO I THE GREAT, King of Germany and first Holy Roman Emperor (962); St BRUNO THE GREAT, Archbishop of Cologne & Duke of Lorraine; Gerberga, Queen of France (m. Louis IV); Henry the Quarrelsome, Duke of Bavaria. The Liudolfing male line (Otto the Illustrious d. 912; Liudolf d. 866) is documented; the deeper Saxon stem (the Billung/Widukind claims) is flagged legend.
- The user descends from Hugh Capet through two daughters — Hedwige (m. Regnier IV of Hainaut, the Roucy/Hainaut line) and, through Hugh Magnus's daughter Isabel of Vermandois, the Beaumont line — and from Henry the Fowler & St Matilda once, through Hedwig.

The Liudolfing floor — Liudolf of Saxony, d. 866, "the oldest verified member" [S/A — the Annales Xantenses; Widukind of Corvey; the FMG; Wikipedia]:

- Liudolf (c. 805/820 – 11/12 March 866), Count of Saxony, count of Eastphalia, *dux orientalis Saxonum — named "Liudolfus comes" in the Annales Xantenses at his death; founder of Brunshausen (852, with Pope Sergius II's approval; removed 881 to become Gandersheim Abbey), where he is buried. The Chronica sancti Pantaleonis (12th c.) puts him at the head of the Ottonian pedigree.
- His wife Oda of Billung (d. 17 May 913 — the Vitae give her an incredible 107 years), daughter of Billung, a Frankish princeps, and Aeda — the Billung ancestors of the later Saxon dukes. Their children: Bruno, Duke of Saxony (d. 880, killed fighting the Danes — progenitor of the Brunonids), Otto the Illustrious (father of Henry the Fowler), Liutgard (m. Louis the Younger, son of Louis the German — a Carolingian marriage), Hathumoda (first Abbess of Gandersheim), Gerberga, Christina. His own parents — a Count Bruno (d. ~830s) and a Gisla — are semi-documented and flagged.
- And the Babenberg thread: Otto the Illustrious's wife Hedwiga — daughter of Henry of Franconia, the Babenberg duke, and Ingeltrude — is a great-great-granddaughter of Charlemagne (per the FMG): the house of Babenberg (the future margraves of Austria) enters the line here. The claimed descent of St Matilda from the Saxon hero Widukind remains flagged legend.

The Breton push beyond Nominoe — Saint Judicael (c. 590 – 657), graded [S — the Cartulary of Redon (AD 869); the Liber Historiae Francorum; Fredegar; the Chronicle of Nantes; the FMG; the Brest academic study (2024)]:

• In the Redon cartulary of 869, the noblewoman Roiantdreh — adopting King Salomon as heir after her son Owain's death — details her paternal ancestry over eight generations: *"Jedechael begat Urbien, Urbien begat Judon, Judon begat Custentin, Custentin begat Argant, Argant begat Judwal, Judwal begat Louenan, Louenan begat Roiantdreh" — eight named forebears reaching a Jedechael whom modern historians (including Alan J. Raude) identify as King Judicael, on the strength of the Domnonée royal name-cluster (de la Borderie's dissent logged).

• SAINT JUDICAEL (c. 590 – 16 Dec 657) — high king of Domnonée, uniter of Domnonée and Broërec — is documented in the Frankish sources: his submission to Dagobert I at Clichy (c. 636–37) with a tribute of 500 wild horses and sundry hawks and falcons; his retirement to the monastery of Saint-Méen, where he died (feast 16 December). His 11th-century Life states "all the princes who reigned in Brittany since Judicael were descended from this king" — the dynasty's own claim.

• Honest grade: the line to Nominoe stands documented from 851; the eight-generation Roiantdreh pedigree (a primary source of 869) with the Judicael identification is probable, not proven — carried in the file at that grade, with the century-long silence the Brest study itself concedes ("what happened in Brittany for the century that followed is unknown as there are no records").

• A meeting of the user's two deepest lines: Alan II Barbetorte (d. 952) — whose grandson continues the user's Breton descent — was reared from infancy at the court of Æthelstan of Wessex (the Vita quoted by William of Jumièges:

"brought up from infancy with Æthelstan, Edward's eldest son"), where the Breton exiles prepared the Viking reconquest of 936–939. Wessex and Brittany — the family's two island dynasties — shared one household.

THE ROBERTIAN STEM — CANCOR, d. 771: the convergence of the Capetian and Ottonian-Babenberg lines [A/S — the Annales Nazariani; the Cancor memorial stone at Lorsch (764); Wikipedia Popponids; the FMG]:

- The Popponids/Babenbergs and the Capetian Robertians are one stem: Poppo I of Grapfeld (d. 839–841), founder of the Babenberg dynasty, was the grandson of Heimrich, Count in the Upper Rheingau (740–795) — son of CANCOR (d. 771) — the Robertian count. Cancor and his mother Williswinda founded Lorsch Abbey (764), where the Cancor memorial stone — among the oldest noble monuments of Germany — still stands. The documented floor of BOTH royal houses stands at Cancor, d. 771 — "an early collateral line of the Robertians related to the French royal family of the Capetians."
- The chain to the user: Cancor (d. 771) → Heimrich (740–795) → Poppo I (d. 839/41) → [Christian I, c. 870 — a gap] → Henry of Franconia (d. 886 — the Annals of Fulda's princeps militiae of Louis the Younger; killed defending Paris against the Vikings in 886) & Ingeltrude (possibly a daughter of Eberhard of Friuli — the Unruoching Carolingians, flagged) → their daughter Hathui (Hedwig) (d. 903) m. Otto the Illustrious of Saxony — "mother of King Henry the Fowler" → Henry the Fowler → Hedwig of Saxony → Hugh Capet → the user. The Babenberg Feud (902–906) nearly exterminated the house — Henry's brothers killed, Adalbert beheaded at Hatto's word — but Hathui's marriage had already carried the blood into the Ottonian line.

- The two great royal houses of the user's tree — the Capetian kings of France and the Ottonian emperors — converge at Cancor of the Robertians, d. 771.

The Ringelheim refinement — St Matilda's own family [A/B — the Vitae; Weis AR 141-18; the FMG; flagged pedigrees]:

- Dietrich of Ringelheim (d. 8 Dec 917), Count in the Westphalian Hamaland — son of Reginhart, Count of Ringelheim, and Matilda (the Immedinger counts of the lower Elbe; her grandmother Matilda was abbess of Herford where the young queen was raised). His wives — Gisela of Lorraine (daughter of King Lothair II of Lotharingia — a Carolingian, Charlemagne's great-great-granddaughter) and Reinhild (Ragnhilde), of Danish-Frisian descent — probably a daughter of King Godefrid of Haithabu, the Danish king — with the mother-assignment of St Matilda disputed between the sources (both logged). The biographers' claimed descent from the Saxon hero Widukind remains flagged legend; her sister Frederuna married Count Wichmann the Elder (Billung).

The de Lacy block — documented floor: Hugh de Lacy of Lassy, b. c. 1020 [A — Wikipedia De Lacy; Complete Peerage; the libbyashworth charter study]:

- Hugh de Lacy, Lord of Lassy, Calvados (c. 1020 – d. Hereford 27 March 1085) — "the name is first recorded for Hugh de Lacy"; his feudal lord was Odo, Bishop of Bayeux — the Conqueror's half-brother and the patron of the Bayeux Tapestry; m. Emma de Bois-l'Évêque (daughter of Ilbert, Marshal of Normandy).

- His sons rode with the Conquest in two trains: Ilbert de Lacy (1045, Lassy – 1093, Pontefract) — in Bishop Odo's party at Hastings; 150+ lordships; Pontefract Castle (park eight miles in circumference); participant in the harrying of the north — progenitor of the Barons of Pontefract, Lords of Bowland & Clitheroe (Kirkstall Abbey, the Clitheroe keep); and Walter de Lacy (in William fitz Osbern's party) — progenitor of Ludlow Castle and the Lords of Meath in Ireland (Trim Castle). Hugh's sons held their Lassy lands jointly under Norman parage — their mother Emma's own surviving charter (22 acres at Montmain to the nuns of St Amand) names her "mother of Ilbert de Lacy."
- The kin-by-marriage surety: the de Lacy barony passed through the female line (Albreda de Lisours) to Roger FitzEustace, who took the de Lacy name and whose son JOHN DE LACY, 2nd Earl of Lincoln, was one of the twenty-five MAGNA CARTA SURETIES — chosen alongside his cousin Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford — the user's kin-web gains its sixth surety family (by marriage); the line later married into the Duchy of Lancaster (Thomas of Lancaster, beheaded at Pontefract 1322 — the duchy's origin).

The Orabilis resolution — the mother of the Surety [S/A — Wikipedia; WikiTree Quincy-78 citing Richardson & Cokayne; the FMG]:

- Orabilis (Orabella) FitzNess of Leuchars (b. c. 1135, Fife – d. by 30 June 1210) — daughter and heiress of Nes fitz William, Lord of Leuchars (the Scoto-Norman lordship with lands in Fife, Strathearn and Lothian) — married Sir Robert de

Quincy (c. 1140 – bef. 1208), Justiciar of Lothian — and the marriage produced SAHER DE QUINCY, 1st Earl of Winchester — THE MAGNA CARTA SURETY BARON, the user's direct ancestor (through his granddaughter Elena de Quincy, wife of Alan la Zouche). The marriage was later formally dissolved (Robert m. secondly Eva — of Galloway kin per some, logged).

- Through Orabilis the Surety carried the blood of the Scoto-Norman Leuchars lords; through his grandmother MAUD DE SENLIS — daughter of MAUD OF HUNTINGDON, the daughter of WALTHEOF — he carried the sainted earl's line a second time (the St Liz connection of §8.4-Bamburgh).
- The Surety's siblings and children carried the kin-web further: a sister married into St Andrews; a daughter Lora m. William de Valognes, Chamberlain of Scotland; Hawise m. Hugh de Vere, Earl of Oxford; a son Robert m. Elen, daughter of Llywelyn the Great of Wales; and — per the 269#1 source — one de Lacy daughter married Alan, Lord of Galloway (d. 1234), the user's Galloway line's own circle.

The Samlesbury block — documented floor: Gospatric de Samlesbury, fl. c. 1180–90 [A — the Victoria County History; the Southworth genealogy; FamilySearch]:

- The user's Holland line (via Elizabeth de Samlesbury, wife of Sir Robert de Holland, the 1st Baron Holand) runs: Gospatric de Samlesbury (held the manor at the end of Henry II's reign) → Roger de Samlesbury (d. 1227) m. Margaret de Clifton (daughter of Walter son of Osbert; the 1194 fine for marrying without the chief lord's consent) → Sir William de Samlesbury

(b. c. 1227 – d. c. 1256) m. Avina de Notton (heiress of Breightmet) → three daughters & co-heiresses: Margery (d. s.p.), Cecily (m. John d'Ewyas — the Southworth moiety, Samlesbury Hall, 1325), and ELIZABETH m. Sir Robert de Holland of Upholland — the user's line (the Hollands, earls of Kent & Huntingdon, dukes of Surrey & Exeter). The Gospatric forename — the name of the great Anglo-Scottish earls — is flagged as a possible Dunbar kinship-mark.

The Billington block — origins honestly unknown, the kinship web documented [A — Wikipedia; WikiTree Billington-3 citing Whiston, NEHGR 124:116–18; Anderson; the Mayflower Society profile]:

- John Billington (b. c. 1580 – hanged at Plymouth, Sept/Oct 1630, for the killing of John Newcomen — the first Englishman executed in New England) — "Nothing is known about John Billington's life in England"; the documented clues are the 1612 three-life lease of Francis Longland of Welby naming "Francis Billington son of John Billington" among the lives, and the 1650 survey noting Francis in New England — the hypothesis that his wife Elinor was a Longland sister is flagged unproven by the Society. Y-DNA haplogroup R1b-BY14737.
- The documented Plymouth web that enters the user's Eaton kin: the executed man's son Francis Billington married Christian (Penn) EATON — the widow of Francis Eaton, the Mayflower carpenter — and their daughter MARTHA BILLINGTON married SAMUEL EATON — the Mayflower carpenter's son — at Plymouth, 10 January 1660/61: the executed murderer's granddaughter married the Compact signer's son — her own step-brother (Christian being mother to both by different fathers). The Billington blood — and the Penn blood — entered the user's Eaton line there.

The Alden block — origins unknown, the theories logged, one rejected [A — Wikipedia; WikiTree Alden-63 citing Alicia Crane Williams's Mayflower Descendant articles; the Mayflower Society]:

- "John's parentage and origins are unknown" (the Society). Theories logged: Harwich, Essex — the seafaring Aldens, kin by marriage to Captain Christopher Jones (Carlyon-Hughes; Banks "a fair presumption" — but no records found); Southampton — George Alden the fletcher (d. c. 1620) & Jane, "a fair presumption" (Banks), weakened by the naming-pattern objection; Windsor — Thomas Alden the brewer (d. 1611), son of Thomas (d. 1607), son of John Alden, brewer, d. 1567, lessee of the Crown Inn from 1551 (the Hollingsworth will-and-lease research), with the orphaned John baptized at Windsor 1602 — flagged. The John Alden of Swanscombe, Kent (patent of arms 1607) is formally rejected — Williams: "This Alden coat of arms was published in the Encyclopædia Britannica and has led many unsuspecting [genealogists] astray."
- The cooper who chose to stay: hired at Southampton; married Priscilla Mullins (c. 1623); died 1687, "the ancient Magistrate of Plymouth" — the most-descended Mayflower passenger (with Warren & Howland): Presidents John Adams & John Quincy Adams, Longfellow, Marilyn Monroe, Dan Quayle among his posterity.

The Holland map, completed [A/B — the Farrer Lancashire Hollands; the Victoria County History; WikiTree Columbers-1]:

- Mathew de Holland of Upholland (d. before 1224) m. Margaret de Harcourt → their son Sir Robert de Holland (b. c. 1201 – d. 1242) m. Cecily de Columbers — daughter and heiress of Alan de Columbers, Lord of Hale & Halewood, and Cecily de Waleton — (married c. 1219–21) → Thurstan de Holland → Sir Robert de Holland m. Elizabeth de Samlesbury (1258/9) — the user's direct line (the Barons Holand, earls of Kent & Huntingdon). The Columbers of Hale and the de Harcourts now stand documented beside the Samlesburys.

The Hastings resolution — two branches, one forged cartulary, one royal napery [S — the FMG Domesday Corrections (Lancaster & Bevan, 2016); Clarence Smith's study (1966–68); C.N.L. Brooke's forger-identification; Dugdale citing the Glover collection]:

- The Little Easton branch — the barony's descent survives largely through the Wix Priory charters, of which Brooke identified twenty-four as the work of two late-12th-century forgers — "whether the forgeries were made to fill in undocumented gaps, replace destroyed documents, or if they were part of an elaborate scheme to fraudulently claim rights over tenements, is not clear" — though the genealogy they reveal is mostly proven from alternative sources: Walter the Deacon (Domesday tenant, brother of Theodoric) → Robert fitz Walter (d. by 1128) → William fitz Robert (d. 1162) m. Hawise de Guerres → Robert de Hastings (d. 1189) m. Maud de Flamville → Alice, heiress of Little Easton (m. Godfrey de Louvain, brother of the duke of Louvain). Keats-Rohan's grafting of the dapifer line onto this house is disproved (William fitz Robert d. 1162 ≠ the dispenser d. c. 1182).

- The Bury-dapifer branch — the user's line: William de Hastings, steward (dapifer) to King Henry I — holding by the serjeanty of THE NAPERY: "the service of taking charge of the table-clothes and linen at the solemn coronations of the Kings of this realm" (the Dugdale/Glover charter, confirmed by Henry II) → his son Hugh (obtained by the King's gift the lands of Robert de Flamville, with Erneburga, daughter of Hugh Flamville) → … → William de Hastings → his daughter IDA DE HASTINGS, wife of Stephen de Segrave, the Chief Justiciar — the user's direct line. The Flamville heiresses married into both Hastings branches.

The Vivonne detail — cousins who were sureties, and "a daughter of a hundred Earls" [S — the FMG Foundations article (Schooling, 2012)]:

- Hugh married Mabel before 18 November 1223; the Oléron record calls the lost Vivonne forebear "Hugues de Vivonne, his grandfather (patris sui?)" — the French editors' own uncertainty logged. When William le Fort died (1259), Henry III granted the four daughters' wardships to four household knights — and Matilda de Ferrers swore her famous corporal oath that two of the girls were "in parts beyond the seas," her guarantee given by her cousins ROGER BIGOD, Earl of Norfolk, and RICHARD DE CLARE, Earl of Gloucester — the Surety-Bigod again. Of Joan's and Sybil's Rochechouart children, all died without issue — the user's line runs solely through Joan's third marriage, to Reynold FitzPiers. And the Athelney Register's note on Cecily survives: "this recalcitrant lady… a daughter of a hundred Earls," deriving descent from "Sibilla, co-heiress of William Marshall, William de Ferras Earl of Derby, Hugh de Vivonia, and William Malet — men of great renown in ancient times."

The Bradford floor — the governor's own wall [A — Wikipedia; the Mayflower Society profile]: Governor William Bradford (bapt. Austerfield, 19 March 1590 — son of William d. 1591 & Alice Hanson) — his grandfather William Bradforthe (b. c. 1553) is the documented floor; the researcher George J. Hill's "probably of noble ancestry" and the claimed royal descent from the Mortons of Morton & Austerfield are flagged conjecture — the file rejects what the records do not show.

The Clifton wall — Gervase de Clifton, fl. c. 1180–1216, with the Alvaredus claim rejected [A — the University of Nottingham; A. C. Wood's Thoroton-based notes]:

- The Clifton family antiquaries' own claim — descent from "Alvaredus de Clifton, Warden of Nottingham Castle" at the Conquest — is formally rejected: "No mention of any Nottinghamshire tenant named Clifton appears in Domesday Book or in the other surviving records of the century which followed the Conquest; and the succession of four men in lineal descent who were all knights is in itself a suspicious factor." The documented floor is Gervase de Clifton — the first of the name to appear with certainty (reigns of Henry II, Richard I, John; his daughter Cecilia married the house of de Cressi); his grandson acquired Clifton and Wilford before 1280 and served as sheriff four times. The Cliftons even reached Shakespeare: "Clifton" is named in Henry IV, Part 1 before the Battle of Shrewsbury — Sir John Clifton died there in 1403. The Lancashire Cliftons (Westby/Lytham) are a related branch; the user's Margaret de Clifton (m. Roger de Samlesbury, c. 1200) descends from the Walter son of Osbert de Clifton of the 1194 fine.

The Harcourt wall — Torf the Rich, fl. c. 1000, with "Bernard the Dane" rejected [A — Wikipedia citing Dudo's silence and the FMG]:

- The celebrated pedigree from "Bernard the Dane" is a fabrication: "Despite Dudo suggesting nothing more than Bernard the Dane having an unnamed 'beautiful wife,' this hasn't stopped genealogists from creating a family for him. Notably, Gilles-André de La Roque in his 1663 work… ascribes a family to Bernard that is not found elsewhere… This has since been replicated very widely… La Roque's 'sources'… do not provide a source."
- The documented floor: Torf the Rich, Lord of Tourville and Pont-Audemer (fl. c. 990s–1020s) → his son Turquetil de Harcourt (d. 1020s×1035, murdered for his attachment to the boy-duke William; m. Anceline of Montfort-sur-Risle) → Anquetil d'Harcourt — the first seigneur of Harcourt known under that title (Pipe Rolls 1130; m. Ève de Boissey). The tradition that Torf married Wevia of Crépon — sister of Gunnor, Duchess of Normandy (the same family as the Giffards and, through her sister Duvelina's marriage to Thorold, the Beaumonts) is logged at its grade.

The Louvain/Brabant line — Lambert I, d. 1015, and a Carolingian wife [A — the FMG; Burke's Peerage]:

- The Little Easton heiress Alice de Hastings married (c. 1199) Godfrey de Louvaine (d. by 26 Apr 1226) — son of Godfrey III, Count of Louvain & Duke of Brabant, custodian of his half-brother Duke Henry I's English honour of Eye, a baronial rebel against King John.
- His line: Lambert I "the Bearded," Count of Louvain (b. c. 950 – d. Florennes, 12 Sept 1015, killed fighting the Duke of Lorraine) m. Gerberge of Lorraine — daughter of Charles, Duke of Lower Lorraine, a Carolingian of the line of Louis IV → Henry I → Lambert II (m. Oda of Lorraine, daughter of Gozelo I) → … → Godfrey I "Barbatus," first Duke of Brabant (1106) → Godfrey III → Godfrey de Louvaine m. Alice de Hastings. The house of Louvain is the Reginarid stem — the same dynasty as the Hainaut/Montfort line (§8.4-Reginarid) — and its Carolingian marriage adds yet another descent from Charlemagne's house to the kin-web.

The Segrave line — Hereward de Segrave, fl. mid-12th century [S — the National Archives, "The Segrave Inheritance"; Complete Peerage XI: 596–610]:

- Hereward de Segrave — "the earliest (thus far confirmed) ancestor" (a mid-12th-century sale of land confirmed by "Herbert, son of Roger" — Farrer, Honors and Knights' Fees II:71) → Gilbert (d. before 1202 — resigned his lands and retired a monk at Leicester) → Gilbert de Segrave (d. 1200×1, High Sheriff of Warwickshire & Leicestershire, the "obscure but rising Leicestershire subtenant") → STEPHEN

DE SEGRAVE (1171 – 9 Nov 1241), CHIEF JUSTICIAR OF ENGLAND, Constable of the Tower — m. (1) Rohese le Despenser (2) IDA DE HASTINGS — the user's line — → Gilbert de Segrave (captured at Pons, Poitou, despite a safe-conduct from Louis IX; d. in prison 8 Oct 1254) m. Amabil de Chaucombe → Nicholas de Segrave, 1st Baron Segrave (summoned 1295) m. Maud de Lucy → ELEANOR DE SEGRAVE m. ALAN LA ZOUCHE — the user's direct ancestress (the 1289 proof-of-age connection). Matthew Paris's verdict on Stephen: "though come of no high parentage, was in his youth of a clerk made a knight; and in his latter days... so exalted that he had the reputation of one of the chief men of the realm." The barony later united with Mowbray; young John de Segrave was nearly betrothed to Blanche of Lancaster — who instead married John of Gaunt.

The Despenser block — the King's-Stanley family, with the Complete Peerage's warning [A/S — TCP IV:259 & 287–8 via Stirnet; the FMG]:

- The TCP's own warning heads the file's entry: the Despenser pedigrees have been "distorted by the unscrupulous efforts of many heralds and genealogists to derive the Spencers of Althorpe from an illustrious origin: with the result that (1) these Despensers, who appear to have been dispensatores of the Earls of Chester, (2) the Despensers of King's Stanley, co. Gloucester, who were dispensatores Regi, and (3) the above-named (now ducal) family of Spencer, who emerge from obscurity, as wealthy graziers, towards the end of the 15th century, have been associated in a single pedigree in which 'fact and fiction are cunningly intertwined.'" — three families, one fabricated pedigree, all three kept separate in this file.

- Rohese le Despenser — Stephen de Segrave's FIRST wife (the user's line descends from his second, Ida de Hastings; Rohese is the half-brothers' kin — logged) — was "probably also of" the King's-Stanley Despensers: Thurstan le Despenser (steward to William II, 1087–1100) → Hugh le Despenser (steward to Henry I in 1105, m. Hawise) → Thurstan → Aymer (m. before 1186 Amabel de Chesney) — the documented floor: Thurstan le Despenser, royal steward of 1087–1100; a name, per the sources, "taken from the position of a dispensator or steward."
- The famous Despensers — Hugh the Justiciar (d. at Evesham 1265, killed by Roger Mortimer), and Hugh the Elder & Younger (Edward II's favorites, both executed 1326) — belong to the Loughborough family, the earls' dispensers, a DIFFERENT house; the Mortimer feud began with the Justiciar's killing.

The Flaitel block — Gerard Flaitel, d. c. 1047 [A — Wikipedia citing Orderic Vitalis; the FMG]:

- Gerard Flaitel († c. 1047) — "a Norman knight and a 'most powerful lord in Normandy at the time of the Richards' according to Orderic Vitalis." A companion of Duke Robert I on the pilgrimage to Jerusalem (1035), entrusted at the duke's deathbed at Nicaea with a holy relic — a finger-bone of St Stephen — which he carried home and gave to the Abbey of St-Wandrille, where he took the cowl.

- His documented children: William Flaitel, Bishop of Évreux († 1066); ERMENGARDE, wife of WALTER GIFFARD of Longueville — the user's ancestress; Basilia, wife of Ralph de Gacé (son of Archbishop Robert of Rouen) and secondly of HUGH DE GOURNAY — the Gacé and Gournay marriages. His parentage is unknown — the floor stands at Gerard; the variant death-year (1047 vs. 1076) is logged.

The Scottish royal line — documented floor: Kenneth MacAlpin, d. 13 Feb 858 [S/A — the Annals of Ulster; the Chronicle of the Kings of Alba; the Duan Albanach; Wikipedia; Dr Bruce Durie's study]:

- The kin-line runs through Maud of Huntingdon's second marriage: her sons by King David I of Scotland — Malcolm IV, William the Lion — founded the royal line of Scotland (Duncan I ← Malcolm III ← the Dunkeld house; then the Bruces & Stuarts), which therefore descends from Waltheof and Siward exactly as the user's own line does: the medieval and modern Kings of Scots — and the present British Crown — are the user's cousins through the sainted earl. Their line reaches:
- KENNETH MACALPIN (c. 810 – d. 13 Feb 858, Forteviot, of a tumour; buried Iona) — King of the Picts, An Ferbasach, "the Conqueror," the founder of the dynasty that ruled Scotland until 1034 and of the united kingdom of Alba: he united Dál Riada and Pictland (843–850), moved the Stone of Destiny to Scone, founded Dunkeld (849), and was "the father of the dynasty which ruled that country for much of the medieval period." His mother per the tradition was a Pictish princess — sister of Constantine, king of the Picts — carrying the matrilineal claim.

- The deeper claims, honestly graded: the Rawlinson B 502 genealogy (c. 1130) traces Kenneth to Fergus Mór mac Eirc (d. c. 501, the legendary founder of Dál Riata from Ireland) through the Cenél nGabráin kings — "medieval genealogies are unreliable sources, but many historians still accept Kenneth's descent from the established Cenél nGabráin"; the genealogy has internal flaws (two missing generations) — carried at that grade, as is the Scota/Egyptian myth at the very bottom, rejected.

The Danish royal line — Gorm the Old, d. 958×64, and the Siward hypothesis [A/S — Adam of Bremen; the Jelling stones; Wikipedia; Bolton's Nottingham Medieval Studies article (2007)]:

- Gorm the Old (b. before 900 – d. winter 958–959, dendrochronologically fixed) — "the earliest reliably verified Danish ruler," the traditional head of the Danish monarchy; the Jelling stones he raised to Queen Thyra, tanmarkar but — "Denmark's Adornment" — are the oldest in Denmark, the nation's birth-certificate; his son Harald Bluetooth won all Denmark and Norway and made the Danes Christian. His father Harthacnut — who "came from Northmannia" (Normandy!) to seize power per Adam of Bremen — is semi-legendary; the saga line through Sigurd Snake-in-the-Eye to Ragnar Lodbrok is rejected as legend.
- The kinship thread — flagged, but scholarly: Timothy Bolton's hypothesis (2007) makes Siward's father Bjorn a brother of Thorgil Sprakling, making Siward first cousin to Earl Ulf — husband of Cnut's sister Estrith and progenitor of the dynasty that succeeded Cnut's. If it holds, the user's line (Waltheof's) is kin to Gorm's line — Harald Bluetooth, Sweyn Forkbeard, Cnut the Great, and the Estrithson kings of Denmark. The bear-descent folklore (the Vita Waldevi's Ursus) is rejected as Germanic folklore, like Ragnar.

The Welsh royal line — documented floor: Merfyn Frych, d. 844 [S/A — the Annales Cambriæ; the Annals of Ulster; the Brut y Tywysogyon; the Harleian Genealogies; the Dictionary of Welsh Biography]:

- The kin-thread runs through the Surety's own house: Robert de Quincy (son of the Surety) married Elen ferch Llywelyn the Great — daughter of Llywelyn ab Iorwerth, Prince of Wales, and Joan, Lady of Wales, the illegitimate daughter of King John of England. The Welsh princely line (House of Aberffraw): Llywelyn the Great ← Iorwerth ← Owain Gwynedd ← Gruffydd ap Cynan ← … ← Anarawd ap Rhodri (d. 915) ← RHODRI MAWR (d. 877×878) — "Rhodri son of Merfyn, king of the Britons, was killed by the Saxons" (the Annals of Ulster), slain with his son Gwriad by Ceolwulf II of Mercia's force; the Annales Cambriæ record the Battle of the Conwy as "Gueit Conguoy, digal Rotri" — "God's vengeance for Rhodri." His grandson Hywel Dda. well the Good — gave Wales her law.
- The documented floor: MERFYN FRYCH ("the Freckled"), King of Gwynedd and Man (d. 844) — "the earliest undisputed ancestor of this line" — founder of the dynasty called the Merfynion; his father Gwriad (b. 738) is "speculation as to origins" (flagged); the line's Isle-of-Man origin appears in the Annals' poem, Ruaidrí Manann. The Harleian genealogies — the oldest Welsh genealogical collection — were possibly compiled in Rhodri's own reign (858, Abergele). The deeper claim to Cunedda Wledig (c. 450, the founder-hero of Gwynedd) rests on the Historia Brittonum tradition — flagged as legendary-era.

The O'Brien line — DNA-confirmed, with the Crown among the kin [S/A — the O'Brien surname Y-DNA project; O'Hart's Irish Pedigrees; the Telegraph obituary of the 18th Baron Inchiquin; the Dromoland history]:

- The royal house of Thomond — the Uí Bhriain — the male-line descendants of Brian Boru: Y-DNA haplogroup R-DC782 (dating to ~900 CE) is Brian Boru's own genetic signature, confirmed across the O'Brien surname project; Conor Myles John O'Brien, 18th Baron Inchiquin (d. 3 June 2023), was the 32nd direct male descendant of Brian Boru — the present chief, the 19th Baron, is styled The O'Brien, Prince of Thomond, Chief of the Dalcassian Council. The line ruled Thomond until 1542 (~30 monarchs); Dromoland Castle — "the Hill of Litigation" — was their seat.
- The royal-descendant list published by the O'Brien DNA project includes Charles III, Elizabeth II, William Prince of Wales, and Catherine Princess of Wales — the present British Crown descends from Brian Boru through the Stuarts, and therefore shares the High King with the user.
- The pedigree's honest grades: documented from Lorcán mac Lachtna (d. 942) and Cennétig (896–951) — the user's own ancestors through Dermot's great-grandmother Derbforgaill; the legendary stratum above them (Cas, b. 347, the eponym; Aodh Caomh of St Patrick's era) is flagged as the medieval pedigree it is.

The Etichonid line — documented floor: Eticho, 1st Duke of Alsace, d. 20 Feb 690 [S — the FMG citing the charters of 673/677/692; the Vita Germani; the Hohenburg chronicle]:

- Eticho (Adalrico/Adalrich), son of Leudesius, *maior domus — named "Chadicho duce" in Childeric II's charter of 4 March 673 (succeeding Boniface as duke in 666); the Vita Germani names him among the mighty of his day; the dynasty he founded — the Etichonids, dukes of Alsace from the 660s to the 10th century — is the root from which medieval tradition derives the Habsburgs, the house of Baden, the house of Lorraine, the counts of Flanders, and the Eguisheim-Dagsburgs ("one of the most notable noble families of the early Middle Ages").
- The line to the web: Eticho (d. 690) → Adalbert I (d. 722) → the Sundgau counts → Liutfrid II (d. 802) → HUGH OF TOURS (d. 837, "the Timid" — Count of Tours & Sens, ambassador to Constantinople in 811 to renew the Pax Nicephori, father-in-law of the Emperor Lothair I) → his daughter ERMENGARD OF TOURS m. Emperor LOTHAR I — mother of three Carolingian kings (Louis II, Lothair II, Charles of Provence) — and (per the traditional, now-disputed identification) Adelaide of Tours → Robert the Strong.
- Saint Odile of Alsace (b. c. 662 – d. c. 720) — the patroness of Alsace — was Eticho's daughter: a canonized aunt of that remote generation.
- The honest correction (kept, as always): the identification of Adelaide of Tours — Robert the Strong's wife — as Hugh of Tours's daughter rests on "some misunderstandings in the Chronicle of Saint-Bénigne" (Settipani); the Werner/Mistral alternative makes her a daughter of Odo of Orleans & Ingeltrude — sister of Queen Ermentrude — which would make Robert the Strong the brother-in-law of Charles the Bald. Both views are logged; the Etichonid line itself (to Eticho, 690) stands documented regardless, through Ermengard's imperial marriage.

Adelaide of Aquitaine's line — the scholarly balance, and Rollo's daughter [S — Stewart Baldwin's Henry Project; the Lot/Merlet/Settipani vs. Bouchard debate]:

- Hugh Capet's wife: "probably the daughter of duke Guillaume I(III) 'Tête-d'Étoupe' of Poitou and Aquitaine (d. 963)" — the balance of three independent strands (Richer's Historiae; the Translatio sancti Maglorii — "filla Pictavorum comitis, de progenie Karoli magni imperatoris"; the Bourgueil charter), with Constance Bouchard's dissent logged.
- Her mother: Gerloc/Adele of Normandy — daughter of ROLLO (per the same balance) — the Norman thread entering the Capetian house.
- The Ramnulfid dukes behind William: William III ← Ebalus Manzer (d. 935) ← Ranulf II (d. 890) ← RANULF I (b. 820 – d. 19 Oct 866, Count of Poitiers 835, Duke of Aquitaine 852 — dying of wounds from the Battle of Brissarthe, the very battle where Robert the Strong fell) — the documented floor of the house, "considered a possible son of Gerard, Count of Auvergne, and Rothild, daughter of Louis the Pious" — a Carolingian marriage, carried at its flagged grade. The Translatio's claim that the Poitou counts were "of the lineage of Charlemagne" rests on this thread.

The last pre-floors — Leudesius, the Billungs, and the Unruochings [S/A — the FMG; the mayors-of-the-palace lists; the Henry Project; the Cysoing testament]:

- Leudesius — the historical Neustrian MAYOR OF THE PALACE OF 675 ("Leudesius (675), chosen but later deposed" — between Wulfoald and Ebroin's return), named by the FMG as Eticho's father — with the caveat logged: "his parentage is unproven in any contemporary 7th-century charter." The Merovingian-princess claim for Eticho's wife Berswinda — daughter of King Sigebert III of Austrasia, sister of King Dagobert II, per the Cronica Hohenburgensis ("filiam sororis sancti Leodegarii, sororem videlicet regina" — niece of the martyred St Leogar and sister of the queen) — is flagged as the chronicle tradition; the Chronicon Ebersheimense instead names her father Garinus, a count of Poitiers.
- The Billung line — and the Liudolfings' own Carolingian charter: Billung, *princeps — "little is known of him beyond his name" (perhaps the Billung of the Fulda donations of 837 and 863); the Wenskus/Hlawitschka conjectured parents (Count Bernhard & Christina — an onomastic argument) logged at its weak grade. But his wife Aeda carried, per their daughter's own foundation charter of 885, royal blood: "Oda comitissa, Pipini regis Italiæ ex filia neptis, Hliudolfi Ducis vidua" — "the widowed Countess Oda, great-granddaughter of King Pepin of Italy" — a CAROLINGIAN descent (the Lombard line) entering the Liudolfing house through Aeda; the FMG's honesty preserved: "the accuracy of this document is not known." The falsely attributed children (the Egbert/St Ida conjecture) are rejected.

- The Unruochings — Eberhard of Friuli (d. 16 Dec 866×7) m. GISELA, daughter of Emperor Louis the Pious & Judith — a Carolingian imperial marriage; his testament of 867 (the famous Cysoing will, dividing Lombardy, Anappes, Cysoing, Vitry and a great library among Unruoch, BERENGAR — later BERENGAR I, KING OF ITALY, the last Carolingian crowned by the Pope, d. 924 — Adalard, Rudolf, Engeltrud, Judith & Heilwich) is a document of the first rank. The claim that his daughter Engeltrude married Henry of Franconia — grandmother of Henry the Fowler — is REJECTED by the modern scholarship (Werner/Hlawitschka: Gisela would not have arranged Engeltrude's burial if she were then married); the Henry-the-Fowler-mother question stays open. Eberhard's own paternity (Unruoch II / Bérenger / Hunroch — the theories) and his mother Engeltrude (possibly a daughter of Beggo, Count of Paris — the Robertian link) are logged.

THE ARNULFING PRE-FLOOR — the FMG's own verdicts [S — FMG Merovingian Nobility, Family of Arnulf; the Gesta Episcoporum Mettensis; WikiTree's blunt summary]:

- Arnulf's wife: "DODA, daughter of ---" — the Vita Sancti Arnulfi says he married an "inclitam et nobilissimam puellam" and gives no more; the 11th-century Vita Chlodulfi names her; Settipani grades that source "de médiocre valeur."
- Arnulf's parentage — the discipline, stated verbatim: the Metz episcopal tradition names an early bishop "patre ex nobili senatorum familia orto, ex Chlodovei regis Francorum filia procreatus" — "the alleged senatorial and Merovingian ancestry appearing to provide the basis for the 9th century genealogy"; an 8th/9th-century fragment names "Buotgisus"* as Arnulf's father (another source: "Burtgisus, qui a multis cognominatur Arnoaldus"); and WikiTree's verdict on all of it: "All parentages for him are fanciful." The fashionable identification of Arnulf's father with Bodegisel, Duke of Provence (Gregory of Tours's contemporary, murdered by a Carthage mob in 584/588 on his return from a Constantinople embassy) rests on the 1977 discovery of St Chrodoara's gravestone at Amay — which "helped confirm previous assumptions" but, as Wikipedia concedes, "does not prove that he was the father of Arnulf of Metz." Settipani argues the Bodegisel descent (not Arnoald); David Kelley considered the Arnoald-connection probable. The full Ripuarian pedigree above them (Mellobaude → Richemir → Theodemir → Clovis the Ripuarian → Childebert → Siegbert the Lame → Cloderic the Parricide → Munderic → Bodegisel I & Palatina → Bodegisel II & Oda) is a named fantasy: "may be a genealogical fantasy to flatter the Carolingians... none of whom are attested in a near-contemporary source."

- The 613 overthrow — Arnulf & Pepin of Landen destroyed Queen Brunhilda (torn apart by wild horses) and the reunited Frankish realm began; Ansegisel was murdered in a feud by his enemy Gundewin (Settipani's wider-vendetta analysis; d. [655/65]); and the Chaume/Settipani theory that Ansegisel's daughter Doda (Chrothechildis/Rotilde) married King Theoderic III — becoming Merovingian queen-regent — is carried at its flagged grade. St Wandrille of Fontanelle (d. 665, aged 96 per his Vita — exaggerated) was Pepin's cousin ("Walchisus consobrinus Pippini").

The Merovingian horizon — Sigebert III & Dagobert II, both canonized [S/A — Fredegar; the Liber Historiae Francorum; the Vita Dagoberti; Britannica; Wikipedia]:

- The Berswinda chronicle-claim's kings are real, documented, and saints: Sigebert III (b. 630/1 – d. 1 Feb 656, Metz). ng of Austrasia 634–656, the first *roi fainéant, raised by the Austrasian nobility against Neustria, defeated by Duke Radulph of Thuringia (Fredegar: "weeping in his saddle"), governed by the mayors Adalgisel, Pepin of Landen and Grimoald — canonized (St Sigebert of Austrasia, feast 1 February); and his son DAGOBERT II (652/6 – murdered 23 Dec 679 in the Woëvre forest on Ebroin's order; buried Stenay) — tonsured and exiled to Slane Abbey in Ireland by Grimoald, restored in 676 through St Wilfrid, King of Austrasia 675–679, a martyr since the 9th century, canonized (feast 23 December) — whose charter of 1 August 677 names "genitor noster Sigibertus rex." If the Berswinda identification ever proved, the user would descend from two canonized Merovingian kings; as the file has always said, it is carried as the chronicle tradition it is.

Deepest-floor pushes via the prominent lines (28 Sept 2026):

- Charlemagne's mother's line — deeper than stated: his grandfather Charibert, Count of Laon (d. bef. 762) was the son of BERTRADA OF PRÜM — known from contemporary records: she and Charibert signed the Prüm foundation act (721) and donated to Echternach the same year ("Bertrada seu Berta et filius meus Chairibertus" — the 720 charter, possibly spurious per FMG, flagged). Her parentage is disputed — daughter of Hugobert (seneschal of Theuderic III, d. ~697) & Irmina of Oeren per one reconstruction (Settipani: she married an unnamed son of Irmina), or of Theuderic III himself per another — both flagged; the Hugobertides link is the scholarly favorite. This is a NEW documented floor at ~697 on the Laon line.

- The two Brunos, separated (accuracy): Liudolf's father was Bruno, Count (d. 843), m. Gisla (named in the early sources; the Chronica sancti Pantaleonis heads the pedigree with him) — while St. Bruno, Duke of Saxony (c. 830/840 – d. Feb. 2, 880), the Ebsdorf martyr, was Liudolf's son — venerated, brother of Otto the Illustrious. The file previously conflated them; corrected.
- Poppo of Grapfeld, resolved: Poppo I (d. 839–841), Count in the Grapfeld 819–839 — grandson of Heimrich (740–795), son of Cancor (d. 771) — founder of the Popponids/Babenberg; the link down to Henry of Franconia (d. 886) carries the FMG's own "father or grandfather" gap [flagged].

The two Brunos — full dossiers [S/A — Annales Fuldenses; Gesta Francorum; Thietmar; Britannica; Wikipedia; FMG]:

- ST. BRUNO OF SAXONY (c. 830/840 – Candlemas Day, 2 Feb. 880), Duke of Saxony 866–880, dux orientalis Saxonum (perhaps dux totius Saxonum per Widukind) — eldest son of Liudolf & Oda of Billung; called ducem et fratrem reginæ — "the queen's brother" (his sister Liutgard married Louis the Younger, whom he supported against Charles the Bald). Killed at the Battle of Lüneburg Heath/Ebsdorf fighting the Norsemen — probably a Danish remnant of the Great Heathen Army that Alfred had shattered — in a crushing midwinter defeat: the bishops of Minden and Hildesheim and twelve counts with him, the Annales Fuldenses naming each; Thietmar adds that he drowned in a flooded river during the retreat (2 Feb.). Succeeded by his brother Otto the Illustrious — grandfather of Henry the Fowler. A 877 charter of Louis the Younger names "Brun et Otto nostri fideles comites…Liutolf genitor eorum…Gerbirg soror eorundem comitum." Relics translated c. 1160 by the Dannenberg counts to Ebstorf Abbey — feast February 2; patron of Brunswick; legend's founder of that city and forebear of the Brunonid counts (the 1002 royal candidate Brun I) — with the FMG-flagged caveat that some "Brun" references may belong to an earlier margrave, "Brun the Younger."

• ST. BRUNO THE GREAT (b. May 925, Cologne – d. Oct. 11, 965, Reims), Archbishop of Cologne 953–965, Duke of Lorraine 954–965 — the archdux of his biographer Ruotger — youngest son of Henry the Fowler & St. Matilda; educated at Utrecht under Bishop Balderich; Otto's chancellor from 940; abbot of Lorsch and Corvey, where he restored Benedictine observance; consecrated at Cologne 25 September 953 as Otto's answer to the rebellion of Ludolf and Conrad the Red — then Duke of all Lorraine, "the most powerful man after Otto, not just in Germany but beyond." Regent of West Francia: guardian of King Lothair from 954 and of Hugh Capet from 956 — brother-in-law to both their dead fathers and maternal uncle to both boys — and from 962 co-regent of the Empire with William of Mainz, guardian of the child Otto II. He died at Reims on a peace mission between his two quarrelling nephews — Lothair of France and Hugh Capet — and lies in his own foundation of St. Pantaleon, Cologne, where Theophanu was later entombed beside him; feast October 11; his Vita by Ruotger is counted among the best medieval biographies.

- The kinship, made exact: the two saints are uncle and nephew to each other — Thietmar calls the Ebsdorf martyr the "great-uncle" of the Archbishop of Cologne. Both are the user's kin through different siblings of one dynasty: St. Bruno of Saxony was the brother of the user's direct ancestor Otto the Illustrious; St. Bruno the Great was the brother of the user's direct ancestress Hedwig of Saxony. And the Henry Project quotes the contemporaries: Hugh Capet and his brother came to the king "mediante avunculo ipsorum Brunone" — "by the mediation of their uncle Bruno" — the same Bruno who was regent while Hedwig, his sister, held the boy Hugh's household. Flodoard calls Hugh consobrinus — cousin — of King Lothair. The dynasty governed two kingdoms with a brother, a sister, and two saints.

The Brunos' lines — backward and forward [S/A — Wikipedia Brunonids; FMG; Britannica Billung dynasty; the 2025 ancient-DNA preprint]:

Backward (the floors, unchanged): paternally Bruno, Count (d. 843) & Gisla — Liudolf's father, semi-documented, the Chronica sancti Pantaleonis heading the pedigree; maternally Billung, princeps, & Aeda (her 885 charter claims descent from King Pepin of Italy — accuracy unknown, flagged) — and beyond both, only the Widukind legend.

Forward — where the saints' blood went: St. Bruno of Saxony is the progenitor of the BRUNONIDS [A]: Brun I, Count of Brunswick (d. 1015/16) — Count in the Derlingau, the unsuccessful candidate for King of the Romans in 1002 against Henry II, m. Gisela of Swabia (her first husband; she later married Emperor Conrad II) → Liudolf (d. 1038) & Gertrud of Frisia → Bruno II, Margrave of Frisia (d. 1057) and Egbert I (d. 1068) → Egbert II, Count of Brunswick & Margrave of Meissen (c. 1060 – July 3, 1090) — rebel against Henry IV, besieged at Gleichen, "fell in combat, undefeated but isolated" — his death ended the Brunonid male line. His sister Gertrude of Brunswick & Henry the Fat, Margrave of Frisia → Richenza (d. 1141) m. Lothair of Süpplingenburg — Duke of Saxony and Holy Roman Emperor Lothair III → their daughter Gertrude m. Henry the Proud of Bavaria — and the Welf dynasty inherited the Brunonid lands around Brunswick, which they held until the twentieth century.

And the maternal kin — the Billungs: Oda of Billung's dynasty ruled Saxony for five generations — Hermann Billung (d. 973), Otto's sword against the Slavs, founder of Lüneburg St. Michael; Bernhard I (d. 1011); Bernhard II (d. 1059); Ordulf (d. 1072, m. Ulfhild of Norway); Magnus (d. Aug. 1106, m. Sophia of Hungary) — extinct 1106, the duchy passing through Magnus's daughter Wulfhild m. Henry the Black of Bavaria (Welf) — the same Welf house. Both the saint's descendants and his mother's kin ended in the Welfs — the dynasty that became Electors and Kings of Hanover and, in 1714, Kings of Great Britain: the blood of both saints sits in the present British royal house through the Guelf succession.

And the final, scientific footnote: the 2025 ancient-DNA study of the exhumed remains of Otto I and Henry II — the user's direct-line kin — confirmed their shared Y-haplogroup (R1b-FTA63331), the Ottonian genome recovered from bone nearly 1,100 years on.

The 120-year gap filled, and the Welf line to its founder [FMG; Britannica; Wikipedia]:

- Between St. Bruno (d. 880) and Brun I (d. 1015): the FMG documents Bruno, Count in the Derlingau ([905/15] – aft. Nov. 16, 958) — "no proof that Bruno was the brother of Hermann Billung but this looks probable" — named in Otto I's [951/57] charter with his sons Liudolf, Gero, Christian, Liuthard, Frederick — and Bruno, Bishop of Verden ([920/25] – Jan. 26, 976), the Corvey monk, cognatus of Hermann Billung, whom Wikipedia makes the son of Wichmann the Elder & Frederuna — niece of Queen St. Matilda herself — the bishop famous for refusing the burial of Duke Hermann Billung in his own church (Thietmar's great scene: Bernhard pleading, Bruno unmoved, the excommunication standing). The saint's line thus runs through the Derlingau counts — probable, not proven, and the file says so.
- The Welf line, founder to throne: Welf I (fl. first quarter of the 9th c.) — the dynasty's first discernible ancestor, whose daughters Judith and Emma married respectively Louis the Pious (Charlemagne's son) and Louis the German — two empresses at the founding. Down the centuries: Otto IV (1175–1218), the only Welf emperor — Henry the Lion's son by Matilda of England, Henry II's daughter — fostered by Richard the Lionheart, Earl of York, crowned by Innocent III, unmade at Bouvines when his wounded horse bore him from the field; Otto the Child (d. 1252), enfeoffed by Frederick II with Brunswick-Lüneburg in 1235 — the male-line ancestor of all later Welfs — then Electors of Hanover (1692), Kings of Great Britain (1714, George I — fifty-six closer claimants passed over as Catholics) — and the dynasty extant today, its head Ernst August of Hanover, husband of Princess Caroline of Monaco, with Queen Sofia of Spain and King Constantine of Greece among its recent throne-holders, and Ivan VI of Russia a Welf through Wolfenbüttel.

The two queen-lines, bottomed out (28 Sept 2026) [FMG MedLands AQUITAINE; Henry Project; Wikipedia]:

Adelaide of Aquitaine's line (the first Capetian queen — the user's direct ancestress as Hugh Capet's wife): Ranulf I of Poitou and Aquitaine (b. 815 – d. of wounds, Oct. 866, the Battle of Brissarthe — the same field where Robert the Strong fell) — "Ramnulfum filium Girardi comitis Arvernis" (Adémar de Chabannes) — installed Count of Poitou 839, Duke of Aquitaine 852, m. [845] a daughter of Rorico I, Count of Maine (per Abbo) → Ranulf II (b. 845/50 – aft. Jul. 892, claimed the crown of Aquitaine 888) → Ebalus "Mancer" (illegitimate) → William III "Towhead" m. Gerloc of Normandy — ROLLO'S DAUGHTER → William IV "Iron Arm" → William V → William VI → William VII → William IX the Troubadour (1071–1126) — the first troubadour whose poems survive → William X (1099–1137) → Adelaide (b. ~950) m. Hugh Capet, 968 — Queen of France (and her sister-house gave an Empress of Germany: Agnes of Poitou m. Henry III). The claimed Carolingian link (Ranulf as son of Gerard of Auvergne & Rothild, daughter of Louis the Pious) is carried as "possible" per Weis — flagged; the blog-claim that Ranulf married Charlemagne's daughter Rotrude is chronologically impossible (his great-aunt) — rejected.

St. Eberhard of Friuli's line (the Unruochings — corrected per the Henry Project): Eberhard, Duke of Friuli (d. 865×6) — "Everwinus gener Ludewici regis" (son-in-law of Louis the Pious), m. Gisela, the emperor's daughter — his own 867 Cysoing testament names all seven children and his library. His documented father: Hunroch (Unruoch), Count of Ternois, d. Nov. 13, 844×852 (per Sedulius Scottus's poem) — the older "Unruoch II of Friuli" attribution is a listed FALSE attribution (Mühlbacher); the mother, conjectured Engeltrude daughter of Bego of Paris, is flagged. Their son Berengar I, King of Italy 887–924 and Emperor from 915 — the last Carolingian crowned by the Pope. And the Henry Project formally rejects the two old family legends this file already flagged: Heilwig ≠ Hedwig of Saxony (Otto the Illustrious's wife — "Hedwig and Heilwig are not the same name"), and Engeltrude ≠ wife of Henry of Franconia (Gisela would not have arranged her daughter's burial had she been married).

The last three deep-pushes, verdicts in (28 Sept 2026):

- Hugobert & Irmina of Oeren — DOCUMENTED [S/A]: Hugobert (635 – after 14 Mar. 697), seneschal and count of the palace under Theuderic III and Childebert III (disproven as the Liège bishop — Irmina appears as his widow at Echternach in 698), and Irmina of Oeren (abt. 635 – bef. 710), abbess and founder of Echternach — she gave Willibrord the land. Their daughters, graded: Plectrude (c. 650–718), wife of Pepin of Herstal — queen and regent, joint signatory of his every surviving instrument, founder of St. Maria im Kapitol — "no hard evidence that Irmina was her mother, but highly probable as both women held land inherited from the same source" (Fouracre) — and possibly Bertrada of Prüm (b. c. 670 – aft. 721), mother of Charibert of Laon and grandmother of Charlemagne — the link carried at its flag. The Hugobertides are thus the in-laws — and probable ancestors — of the entire Carolingian dynasty.

- Gerold of Anglachgau & Imma — DOCUMENTED [A]: Gerold I (c. 725 – 784/786/795), Count of Kraichgau and Anglachgau, m. before 754 Emma/Imma, daughter of Hnabi, Duke of Alamannia — their daughter Hildegard (b. 754 – d. 30 Apr. 783) married Charlemagne in 771 — his queen and the mother of Louis the Pious; their sons Eric of Friuli (d. 799, killed by the Avars) and the Udalriching/Orléans lines. Gerold's own parents are unknown — the Agilolfing connection is "inconclusive at best" (WikiTree, citing the FMG). The Alemannian ducal line (Hnabi) stands documented to the mid-700s.
- Godefrid of Haithabu — the Danish king is DOCUMENTED; the link to St. Matilda is REJECTED [S]: Godefrid (b. bef. 826 – murdered June 885), son of Harald the Dane ("Godefridus, Herioldi Dani filius" — Annales Bertiniani), baptized at Mainz in 826 with Lothair I as godfather, Duke of Frisia 882, m. (882) Gisela, illegitimate daughter of Lothair II of Lotharingia — murdered in 885 at the connivance of the user's own ancestor Henry of Franconia (Annales Vedastini). His daughter as St. Matilda's mother Reinhild: "presumably a guess based on the Vita's description… the chronology is not ideal" — the FMG's rejection, adopted; the Danish royal line remains documented-but-unlinked, exactly as the file's ledger has always carried it.

The three final pushes, verdicts in (28 Sept 2026):

- Judith of Bavaria — DOCUMENTED [S — Columbia Epistolae; Wikipedia]: daughter of Welf of Bavaria & Heilwig (abbess of Chelles), "the first member of the Elder House of Welf to have a leading role in the Frankish kingdom"; m. Louis the Pious at Aachen 819, crowned empress; mother of Gisela (820–874) m. Eberhard of Friuli — the user's own Unruoching kinsman — and Charles the Bald; her sister Emma m. Louis the German — the two Welf sisters married the emperor's two sons. The Welf–Carolingian marriage ties the dynasty the saints' blood later reached back into the user's own kin-web.
- Ermengarde of Hesbaye — DOCUMENTED with the Thegan genealogy [A/S — Henry Project]: daughter of Ingram, Duke of Hesbaye, "filius fratris Hruotgangi sancti pontificis" — son of the brother of St. Ruotgang, bishop — per Thegan's near-contemporary Vita Hludowici; "probably a member of the Robertian dynasty" (Wikipedia) — the same Hesbaye-Robertian conjecture as Robert the Strong's origin, logged at its flag. And the Aquitaine link now has a specific documented pathway: her daughter Rotrude (b. 800) m. Gerard, Count of Auvergne — parents of Ranulf I of Poitou — the Carolingian-Aquitaine descent carried at Weis's "possible" grade (the FMG's flag kept).

- Arnulf's parentage — the deepest artifacts in the family [S/A — UMich genealogy; Wikipedia; the Amay excavation]: the 634 WILL OF ADALGISEL-GRIMO (one of the few preserved Merovingian testaments) names "my aunt… interred in the church of Amay" — and the 1977 discovery in the Amay crypt of the sarcophagus of ST. CHRODOARA — the aunt herself, of the Chrodoinides clan (Tholey, Wissembourg, Beaulieu). Her 13th-century Vita names her husband "Boggis" — the Bodegisel/Bobo conflation (Herrmann & Nonn) — i.e., Bodegisel, Duke of Provence, rector of Marseilles, whom Venantius Fortunatus praised, who escorted Rigunth toward Spain in 584 and was murdered at Carthage on his return from Constantinople, torn by the mob (Gregory of Tours). "This history does not explicitly identify Bodegisel's heirs — notably, it does not prove that he was the father of Arnulf of Metz" — the caveat kept. The University of Michigan's genealogy adopts Bodegisel & Chrodoara as Arnulf's parents; the Arnoald claim stands rejected as fabrication; and the later tradition makes Chrodoara the great-grandmother of Plectrude, queen of Pepin of Herstal — the Amay clan bound to the Carolingians by the family's own lore.

Walls that still stand: Cossington Websters to ~1485; Carpenters to William b. 1575/6 (the 1299–1505 tree rungs are the rejected fabrication); Adam Hawkes's parents unknown (PGM); Allerton to the 1580s; the Malet connection to the Domesday Robert Malet of Eye remains conjectural (Arthur Malet's own "belief," per the Somerset Archaeological Society paper — the documented Malet wall stands at Robert, d. before 1156); the Porhoët line beyond Geoffrey I and the Meschine/Belmeis lines beyond Alice are the next medieval frontier (Breton/Cheshire baronial pedigrees).

9. The Hannay Thread — Clan Hannay of Sorbie

Family tradition: "Our relatives were the Hanna clan of the Sorbie castle." — identified as Clan Hannay of Sorbie Tower ("the Old Place of Sorbie"), Wigtownshire, Galloway, Scotland.

Documented clan history [A/B — clan records, published pedigrees]:

- The name appears on the Ragman Roll of 1296 (Gilbert de Hannethe submitted to Edward I); the clan's sway over the Machars of Galloway was such that the region was called "Machars Hannay."
- Sorbie: Odo Hannay, first recorded owner (mid-1400s) → Robert (sheriff-depute of Wigtownshire, 1498) → Patrick (murdered 1543) → Alexander A'hanna, who built the surviving tower house c. 1550–1580 while feuding with the Murrays of Broughton, the Kennedys, and the Stewarts.
- 1601: the Hannays were outlawed; the estate was broken up (sold 1626 to Sir Patrick Agnew); the diaspora ran through Ulster to America — hence the variants Hanna, Hannah, Hanney, Hannay.
- The tower survives to the second floor; the Clan Hannay Society (chief: Dr. David Hannay of Kirkdale, descended from a younger Sorbie son who acquired Kirkdale, 1532) stewards its restoration. Published pedigrees: Hanna of Castle Sorbie, Scotland, and Descendants and The House of Hanna — both free on archive.org; the latter opens: "All bearing the name are undoubtedly to be traced to a lowland clan of Scotland, whose chief had his residence in Sorbie Castle."

THE HANNAY DEEP TRACE — the line that goes way back (29 September dive) [NA — electricscotland.com (Anderson's Scottish Nation), scotclans.com, clanhannay.org]: the clan — 'a surname originally Ahannay*, also met with as* De Anneth*, belonging to an old family in Galloway, supposed to be of Scandinavian origin*' — is first documented in 1296, when GILBERT DE HANYETHE appears on the RAGMAN ROLL among those swearing fealty to Edward I (he chose John Balliol, the local lord, against Bruce). 'The family early obtained the lands of Sorby or Sorbie, from which the parish is called,' and held them until the late 1600s. The documented members read like the family's own stories: John de Hanna, 1424; Robert Hannay of Sorbie, son of Odo, 1488; Alexander Hannay of Sorbie, 1500; the arms in Sir David Lindsay's emblazoned volume; the tower of Sorbie, built from James IV's reign — 'anciently a tower of some strength, now a picturesque ruin'; Patrick Hannay sat for Wigtown in 1581; Sir Patrick Hannay the poet, whose 1622 verses were eulogized by a dozen hands — one naming the clan's legendary pride: 'Thy Ancestors were ever worthy found, Else Galdus' grave had grac'd no Hannays ground'. ldus, the Galgacus of the Caledonians, whose grave the clan's tradition claimed on their own lands; Dean James Hannay of St Giles', at whom Jenny Geddes threw her stool on July 23, 1637, opening the riots against the liturgy; Sir Robert Hannay of Mochrum, created a Nova Scotia baronet in 1630, whose daughter Jane's blood 'flows in the noble houses of Hamilton and Abercorn'; the Kirkdale branch founded by Alexander Hannay in 1582 — the present chiefly line (Sir Samuel Hannay, d. 1790 → the present chief of that Ilk). The fall: the long feud with the Murrays of Broughton ended in the Hannays being outlawed in 1601; the tower and lands were lost around 1640; the diaspora ran to Ulster and the world. The name itself — 'possibly deriving from the Gaelic O'Hannaidh, or Ap Shenaeigh' — is carried as Gaelic-or-Scandinavian, unweighed [B]. THE FULL DOCUMENTED CHAIN (29 September dive) [A — the Ragman Roll text; MacKerlie, History of the Lands and Their Owners of Galloway I:455; Anderson, Scottish Nation II:450; Agnew, Hereditary Sheriffs of Galloway; the Hanna of Castle Sorbie and House of Hanna books, archive.org]: at Berwick in 1296 the Roll records not one but TWO: 'Gilbert de Annethe and Gilbert a'Hannay, both of Sorbie, Galloway, appeared before the herald and signed the Ragman Roll of Landed Gentry and attached the seal containing the Hanna Coat of Arms' — the arms: three roebucks' heads azure, collared and belled, motto 'Per ardua ad alta' — 'Through difficulties I seek higher things' (Nisbet gives the crest a Crusader origin); Gilbert de Annethe was then 'one of the clerks of King Edward I (whether he was Norman or not is open to argument)'. The clan's stances: for Balliol against Bruce (suffering Edward Bruce's raid, 1308), against the Douglas tribute, with the king at the Douglas stabbing (1452) and the battle of Wigton (1455). The named line: Fynlaus Ahanna, Canon of Whithorn, 1390; John de Hana, shipmate of King James II, 1424; Dougall Ahanna, granted Capenoch, 1457; Rev. Gilbert Hanna, Chaplain of the Scottish Parliament, 1466; Andrew Hanna of the Royal Archer Bodyguard of the Scots in France, 1469; ODO HANNAY — first of the lairds, granted the Sorbie lands by KING JAMES IV, 1488–1494 [S-MacKerlie]; Robert 1494–1500; Alexander; JOHN 1524–1544, m. (MARGARET) STEWART, daughter of Sir Alexander Stewart of Garlies (the Stewarts of Garlies → Earls of Galloway — kin of the Scottish royal house); Patrick 1544–1581 (Parliament); Margaret the heiress (through whom Sorbie passed to the Stewarts); Donald (Gustavus Adolphus's service, 1620); Alexander (Kirkdale, 1582 — the present chiefly line). The progenitor of tradition: PATRICK A'HANNA, c. 1250, southwest Scotland — 'earliest known name of the present-day Hanna family' [B — the family genealogy's own claim, carried at its grade]. *The name's origin — the scholarly battery, all quoted: Dr. Black (Surnames of Scotland [A]): 'Ahannay, now Hannay, may be for "ap Sheanaigh," son of Senach'; Agnew [A]: 'of Pictish descent… an aspirated form of Sennach… "sean," old, venerable'; Anderson: 'supposed to be of Scandinavian origin'; W. S. Hanna: 'in Norse, Hani; in Danish, Henne; in Saxon, Hane' — Galloway itself was Brittonic-Pictish, ruled by an Anglo-Saxon kingdom c. 700–900, then Gaelicized-Viking after 900. The Ulster diaspora (Plantation 1608–1620) and the American stream ('many Hannas came with' Rev. Thomas Clarke's Presbyterian companies, Pennsylvania–New York–Virginia, 1730–1760 — the probable vein of the Albany Hannays). GRADE: the clan's documented floor is the Ragman Roll, 1296; its traditional floor Patrick a'Hanna c. 1250; the user's bridge to it (Andrew Hannay, 1733–1808, below) is [B] — the way-back line the family remembered is real as far as the record reaches, and the record reaches eight centuries.

The American bridge [B — FamilySearch Library catalog]: Andrew Hannay, b. 1733 in Galloway, eldest son of Andrew Hannay & Margaret McCaw, emigrated 1774 aboard the Gale of Whitehaven, settled first at Bethlehem, then Westerlo, Albany County, New York (d. 1808). His descendants spread through Albany, Schoharie, and Oneida counties — his son David (b. Westerlo 1784 – d. 1866; m. Hannah Ter Bush) fathered fifteen children, among them Henry T.B. Hannay of Annsville, ONEIDA COUNTY — the same county, one town over, from the user's Abbott–Webster ancestors at Hanover. Even Andrew's third wife was named Hannah Wendell.

The two "splits" named by the family:

1. At Parke: Dr. Roger Parke Jr. of Hopewell (Hunterdon Co., NJ — the user's grandmother's line) married Susannah Hannah Robinson, b. 1668, Hexham, Northumberland, England — border country within sight of Galloway — daughter of Thomas Robinson of Crosswicks Creek, NJ (testator 1690; his will left "the younger Roger Parke" a colt) and his wife Susannah (who remarried soon after, per Quaker records). Her maiden name is the open name. The "Hannah" preserved in her daughter's name is precisely the kind of marker a Hanna–Robinson marriage would leave. One FamilySearch profile conflicts (born 1687 Gedney, Lincolnshire — a probable same-name merge; the Hexham identification is the one Parke Society researchers support). Next record: the Robinson marriage entry (Quaker monthly meeting records, Nottingham/Chesterfield).

The parentage search (28–29 September) — an honest negative: open-web searches for the Carpenter–Parke wedding (NYT announcement, NJ newspapers, FamilySearch, obituaries) returned no indexed record — the marriage (c. 1953–1956, NJ) is not on the open web. The fastest document in the whole case: the user's parents' marriage certificate (one photocopy names Jane Parke's father and mother), or the NJ marriage index at Ancestry/FamilySearch. Same-name warning logged: a Joanne Carpenter Parke (1926–2011, Odessa/Ithaca NY — a Carpenter-born woman who married a Parke) is indexed online; she is NOT the user's grandmother (different configuration) and is logged to prevent a future merge.

The Parke deep-read (28 September) [A/B]: the cluster is now mapped against its authorities — Ralph Ege, Pioneers of Old Hopewell (1908), pp. 182–212, described as 'the best overall authority on the Parke family,' and Dorothy Robertson Becker, The Parke Family: Earliest Pioneers of New Jersey (1979). Roger Parke Jr. (1684 – d. Nov. 5, 1755, Hopewell; 'Dr.') married Susannah Hannah Robinson about 1703 and had at least nine children [A — FS]. The two-Rogers problem — DISSOLVED IN STRUCTURE [A — rootedancestry outline]: the cleanest sourced reconstruction is now (1) Roger Parke (d. ca. 1690) of Hexham/Crosswicks Creek/Rye, N.Y. — m. (1) an unnamed wife — (2) Dr. Roger Parke (ca. 1666 – Nov. 5, 1755, Hopewell), m. '___?Robinson' (the Robinson identity proposed by Becker 1979, 1–4, on the colt-legacy will) — (3) William Parke (1711 – bef. 1764) & Sarah

Jewell — (4) among their children, Penelope Parke (1738 – bef. 1794), m. Richard Stout of the Western Precinct, Somerset Co. (per Nathan Stout's History of the Stout Family, 1929, p. 12, and Stillwell's Miscellany 4:326–7). The tree platforms' 'Roger Jr. (1684–1755) with sons John 1706, Thomas 1708, Joseph 1710' (FindAGrave/FS) sits athwart this structure — flagged as a merged/parallel profile, not adopted; the elder Roger's d. ca. 1690 fits the year of the Thomas Robinson will exactly. Ege context: the book is 'from newspaper reports originally published in 1905' (serialization, pp. 182–212). New Lancashire cluster logged: Croston, Lancashire — James Parke & Jane Crooke's family (Ancestry index) [NA]. Coincidence-orbit flag (weighed at zero): some trees give Allen Parke a wife 'Elizabeth Hodgson' — the same given-name/surname cluster as Dea. John Willis's wife Elizabeth Hodgkins — logged, not adopted, needing the Cartmel marriage entry. Westward thread confirmed [B]: 'Roger Parke, b. abt. 1710 Hopewell – d. July 7, 1773, Hampshire Co., VA (WV)' — the birkey westward branch; an early record fragment lists 'John and Roger Parke, ye children of Rogr. Parke' [NA]. (2) an active dispute — a Geni manager asserts 'He did NOT marry Susannah Robinson,' against the rooted-ancestry outline which carries 'm. ?Robinson' on the strength of the 1690 will of Thomas Robinson of Crosswicks Creek leaving 'the younger Roger Parke' a colt — carried as disputed, not resolved; (3) Susannah's birth year — 1668, Hexham (WikiTree Robinson-1583, matching this file) vs. 1687 (FS) — flagged. The geography note that strengthens this section's Hannay thread: both sides of this marriage trace to Hexham, Northumberland — the Parke Rogers and the Robinsons alike — border country within sight of Galloway, exactly where the family's tradition placed the Sorbie bridge. Ege's full text is now located (29 September) — the complete 1908 book at hopewell-history.org (1908-Ege-R-Pioneers-of-Old-Hopewell-Google.pdf) and archive.org (historygeneologyege00eget_djvu.txt) — and Betty Gantz's Hopewell's Past (1976–87) summarizes its Parke pages, which run from p. 188 to the book's end. Her summary of Ege's own account: Dr. Roger Parke 'lived from about 1664 to 1755' (Ege's dating — against the FS 1684); his children 'born from about 1690(?) to 1711(?): his daughters were Anna, Grace, Sarah and Kesiah; his sons were John and William, and possibly Roger, Jr.' — Anna (for whom he bought 100 acres in 1698) m. William Merrill Jr.; Grace m. Jacob Stout; Sarah m. Thomas Schooley; Kesiah m. James Larison; John m. Sarah Smith, daughter of Andrew Smith the first settler; William Parke, b. about 1711, m. Sarah Jewell (b. ~1720) — eleven children (Ege p. 204), born 1738–1762, marrying into the Stouts, Roberts, Larisons, Sextons, Rowland and Kirkendalls. This puts the Robinson-wife claim in active tension with Ege: the family authority's account names six children and no Susannah Hannah Robinson — the FS profile (nine children, m. ~1703) must be tested against Ege's pages directly. Structural match found (flagged [B]): the file's §3.2 candidate for the grandmother's line, Noah Parke Sr., b. ~1743, falls squarely inside William Parke & Sarah Jewell's 1738–1762 child-bearing window — William (b. 1711) is now the prime candidate grandfather of the cluster. Also logged (orbit-note, not kinship): a George Willis appears among the 1703 executor-bond signers in the Hopewell Smith-Parke papers ('George Willis was the father-in-law of Emanuel Smith') — a Willis name in the Hopewell, NJ orbit, to be held beside the §4.4 'Cedar Swamp' thread.

THE CROSSWICKS WILL — at last verbatim, and the caveat it forces [A — genealogytrails.com's transcript of the Burlington County will calendar]: '1690 April 23 — Robinson, Thomas, of Crosswick Creek; will of. Wife Susannah. An expected child; legacies to Roger Park junior, William Emley*, his children…*' — the will confirms the legacy to Roger Park junior but does NOT name a daughter married to him; the identification of Dr. Roger's wife as Thomas Robinson's daughter is Becker's inference (accepted by FS: Susannah Hannah Robinson, b. Jan. 1687 – d. 1731, daughter of 'Thomas Robinson Jr.,' b. ~1650, one of thirteen children), and it is actively disputed (Geni: 'many researchers dispute'; birkey: 'Roger Parke Jr. did NOT marry Susannah Robinson — the name of his wife is unknown'). Carried as contested: the bequest is fact [A]; the wife's identity is inference [B] — and EGE'S OWN ACCOUNT ADDS A THIRD VERSION (29 September dive) [NA — Gantz quoting Ege]: 'In April 1697 Dr. Roger Parke and wife Sarah bought 400 acres. On June 12, 1698 he bought 100 acres for his daughter Anne or Anna…' — Ege/Gantz gives the wife's name as SARAH (no surname, no Robinson), Ege's daughters are Anna, Grace, Sarah, Kesiah, and Ege never names a Robinson connection. THE GANTZ FULL TEXT — EGE'S ACCOUNT CONFIRMED, AND THE SETTING (29–30 September dive) [A/NA — Gantz, Hopewell's Past, quoting Ege pp. 188–end]: 'Dr. Roger Parke lived from about 1664 to 1755. His son William Parke, born about 1711, married Sarah Jewell, born about 1720. This family bought land and settled in 1755 north of Hopewell

Boro… Their eleven children (P204 in Ege), born from 1738 to 1762, married into the Stouts, Roberts, Larisons, Sextons, Rowland and Kirkendalls.' The daughters confirmed: Anna (the 1698 100 acres; m. William Merrill Jr.), Grace (m. Jacob Stout — eight children marrying into the Drakes, Hutchinsons, Brush, Van Kirk and Stout), Sarah (m. Thomas Schooley), Kesiah (m. James Larison — ten children, 1737–1757, into the Peltons, Greens, Severnes, Andersons, Sextons, Runyans, Humphreys, Stouts, Smiths, Drakes; the Larison tract of the Parke land). And the settlement's own record: 'the next settlement was made by one Roger Parkes… the land was purchased in 1697. Roger Parkes and his son Roger Parkes, JR., who was also an INDIAN DOCTOR, lived on this tract for many years and both lie buried on the farm.' RALPH EGE HIMSELF was born (Nov. 23, 1837) in the house Dr. Roger Parke built c. 1715 'on the north side of Stony Brook at Wissamenson' — the Ege family lived on Parke land for four generations; his family tree, seven feet tall, carries 1,100 names. The wife's identity now stands two-to-one — Ege and the settlement record carry 'Sarah'; FS's 'Susannah Hannah Robinson' (1687–1731) stands alone; birkey's 'unknown' is the cautious floor. Also logged from the Gantz text: the SCHENCK genealogy's Charlemagne claim ('Edgar De Schencken, chief butler to Charlemagne, who about 798 granted… a title of nobility') — the Schencks being another Hopewell family with a claimed royal descent, logged at the 1896 genealogy's grade [B]; and Robert Titus & wife HANNAH, who emigrated in 1635 on the ship HOPEWELL, Capt. Bunlock — a ship and a Hannah both bearing the town's name [A — Ege, quoting the New England record]. (The wife's identity's three ways — FS: 'Susannah Hannah Robinson' (1687–1731); birkey: unknown; Ege: 'Sarah' — with Ege the family authority and the Burlington will calendar silent on any daughter. The direct read of Ege pp. 188–end (archive.org: pioneersoldhope00egegoog_djvu.txt; data.hopewell-history.org PDF) is the decider. Whatever her name, the Hannah the user's family remembered may ride on the daughter Sarah or on the name's independent recurrence — logged, not forced.

THE HANNAH THREAD — the user's instruction, documented on both sides of the Atlantic (28–29 September): (a) New Jersey: the name the family preserved — 'Susannah Hannah Robinson' — FS giving her as born January 1687, died 1731, daughter of Thomas Robinson Jr. (b) King's Stanley, Gloucestershire: the Glos cluster has its own Hannah matriarch — Hannah (of Preston, c. 1650 – 1713), wife of Samuel Parke Sr., mother of Samuel Jr., Elizabeth (Bennett), Martha, Lieutenant Robert Parke, and William Parke [B — Geni]; 'Samuel Parke & Hannah Baker' — married at King's Stanley, in the parish's own marriage transcript (1573–1835) [A — archive.org, gloucestershire00blaggoog]; Hannah (Arnold) Parke (b. 1705) of the same cluster [B — WikiTree Arnold-4118]; and Daniel Parke (b. bef. 1749 – 1820) marrying at King's Stanley, 9 May 1774 [B]. 'Of Preston' points to Preston, Gloucestershire (near Uley and Wotton-under-Edge, ~10 miles from King's Stanley) — the cluster's second seat.

THE KING'S STANLEY MARRIAGE WEB — verified in the parish transcript at [A] (29 September dive, usgenealogyexpress vol. 2, 1697–1705): 'Parke, Samuel / Baker,

Hannah — 1699 Dec. 14*' □ (the Hannah marriage, now date-exact); 'Parke, William / Wood, Elizabeth — 1700 Oct. 7'; 'Parke, Francis / Levetts, Mary — 1700 Mar. 3'; 'Parke, Abell / Dane, Hannah — 1703 Jun. 23' (a SECOND Hannah: Abell Parke & Hannah Dane); 'Parke, John / Mayo, Ann — 1705 Jul. 30' — the cluster's marriages, name by name, in the register itself. And the FreeReg surname index for St George's, King's Stanley, holds the family's other names in the same parish: TOWNSEND and TOWNSHEND, WEBSTER, WILLIS, WARREN, HAWKER, PALMER, WRIGHT, COOKE, WEBB — the user's Glos web is one parish deep. The parish's own documented history [S — VCH Glos X, King's Stanley]: the manor passed the Earls of Arundel (1393–1560); Aumary le Despenser granted an estate there in 1306; Stanley House was built by the Clutterbuck clothiers (completed 1593); Sir George Onesiphorus Paul, the prison reformer, held Stanley Park; John Notelyn held the parish's highest tax assessment in 1327. The name Hannah recurs through the Parke generations in both candidate homelands — exactly the kind of fossil the family's memory would keep. 'Of Preston' RESOLVED — the maiden name itself (29 September dive) [A-FS]: 'Hannah of Preston' was HANNAH PRESTON by birth — FS profile of her son Joseph Parke (1682–1706): parents '*Samuel Parke Sr. · Hannah Preston' — with the children confirmed: Elizabeth, Samuel Jr., Martha, Lieutenant Robert Parke, William. The 'of Preston' of the older note and the maiden name are the same fact: she was a Preston, and the Prestons of Gloucestershire (Preston near Uley, ~10 miles from King's Stanley) are the family her name points to. The Connecticut cluster, at fuller detail [NA — parkscrapbook.us]: Thomas

Park removed to PRESTON, CONNECTICUT, in 1680 — first deacon of Rev. James Treat's church — m. Dorothy Thompson (children Martha m. Isaac Wheeler, Thomas m. Mary Allyn, Robert m. Rachel Leffingwell, Nathaniel m. Sarah Geer); and Samuel Park m. Hannah — their daughter Hannah bpt. 1658. The coincidence of the two Prestons (Gloucestershire and Connecticut) is logged, not blurred. Orbit-note: an Ancestry-indexed Park family of Uley, Gloucestershire (Peter Park, b. ~1822, Uley — d. at Preston) keeps the cluster's Uley–Preston corridor alive into the 19th century [NA]. The Wallace Donegal genealogy full text: archive.org (genealogyofparke00wall) [A].

The Parke deep trace (29 September): the Furness root and the Quaker paper trail [B/NA]. The line now stands: grandmother → [missing link] → Noah Parke Sr. (b. ~1743) [B-candidate] → William Parke (b. ~1711, m. Sarah Jewell) [A-Ege] → Dr. Roger Parke (b. ~1664 per Ege / 1648 per the birkey cluster — the two-Rogers flag stands) → Allen Parke (b. Dec. 15, 1606, Broughton-in-Furness/Cartmel — m. 1636 at Frith, Cartmel — d. 1667) [B — Geni/birkey]. The Quaker paper trail: 'Roger Parke, formerly of Cumberland, married Anne Pattison at Taylorbourne, Allendale, Northumberland' — per the Digest of Quaker Marriages for Cumberland and Northumberland, the original in the Holme Monthly Meeting records (Book 355, p. 268, Cumbria Record Office) [B/NA — with a primary citation]; Allendale lies 10–15 miles southwest of Hexham, so the family's seat was the Allendale–Hexham valley, and the emigration ran through the Cumberland Quaker meetings. Roger immigrated to Crosswicks, NJ, in 1682 — the year of Penn's colony; his first wife (probably the mother of John and Roger Jr.) is unrecorded. The medieval claims — graded and weighed: the Geni gentry line ('son of John Parke II & Jane'; 'grandson of Sir John'; 'Sir John Parke & Jane Brownrigge') is unverified [B/NA]; the birkey account's story that the family descends from fighters brought in for Lambert Simnel's 1487 invasion who settled in Broughton is legend-grade — rejected as evidence, logged as lore; Edwin H. Park's 1902 'Thomas de Parke, Master of the Hunt to the Conqueror' origin tale is the classic huntsman fabrication — rejected — though its one honest kernel stands: the name occurs in Domesday as Parck and De Parce [NA]. The decisive next reads: the Cartmel/Frith parish registers (Allen's 1606 baptism and 1636 marriage); the Visitation of Northumberland, 1615 (St. George) — the heraldic visitation that would carry a Hexham/Allendale Parke pedigree if one was ever recorded; and Ege's pages for the American generations.

The Parke cluster map (28 September) — three English candidates, none adopted: (1) Allendale–Hexham, Northumberland (the Quaker trail — Holme MM marriage 1676) [B/NA]; (4) Semer/Poslingford, Suffolk — the Connecticut line, now PGM-grade: Robert Parke (b. before Jun. 3, 1580, Poslingford, Suffolk – d. Feb. 4, 1665, Mystic, CT) — the Robert Parke of New London, the file's original candidate — with children baptized at Semer/Ringshall: Robert Jr. (1605), William (Apr. 21, 1607 – Roxbury 1685), John (1610), Jane (bef. Aug. 10, 1613), Samuel (1621 – Stonington 1709), Thomas (Feb. 13, 1616 – Preston CT 1709) [PGM — WikiTree Puritan Great Migration Project]. A documented Suffolk cluster as an alternative English door for any NJ line that came through Connecticut. (5) Richmond, Yorkshire /

Cartmel, Lancashire — Allen Parke (b. Dec. 15, 1606, Richmond, Yorkshire — m. 1636, Frith, Cartmel — d. before Aug. 11, 1667) [B — WikiTree now gives the birthplace as Richmond, Yorkshire; the birkey account said Furness/Lancashire — flagged]; a stray Christopher Parke of Westmorland/Cartmel (d. 1791) also logged [B]. (3) KING'S STANLEY, GLOUCESTERSHIRE — now a documented continuous cluster, 1615–1760s [B — WikiTree, Jan Hellier's register-work]: William Parke (b. ~1585) with children baptized at King's Stanley — Anne (bef. Apr. 29, 1615), Elizabeth (bef. Mar. 23, 1616), William (bef. Mar. 8, 1620), Francis (bef. Apr. 11, 1624) — and the register then runs continuously through the next generations: John (1673, 1674), Samuel (1671, 1682, 1711), William (1674), Elizabeth (1703), Francis (1707), Jasper (bef. Aug. 2, 1704 — died after 1827 in Somerset County, Pennsylvania), Hannah (1705, 1741), Mary (1737), Martha (1738), John (1746), Samuel (1743), and, decisively, Daniel Parke — baptized before Feb. 13, 1749, at King's Stanley — died at Hopewell, Hunterdon Co., NJ, buried Mar. 2, 1764: a Gloucestershire Parke who carried the line to Hopewell itself. VOL. 1 (1573–1595) READ IN FULL (29–30 September) [A — the register, via usgenealogyexpress, eng_kingsstanley_marriages_Vol_1_1573_1595.htm]: the first 22 years contain TOWNSEND, Richard m. Margaret CHAMBERLYN, May 5, 1576 — the earliest Townsend in the cluster's parish, marrying into the CHAMBERLYN family (the Chambers-echo, logged); HARDINE, William m. Elizabeth Allen, Nov. 26, 1576 — a HARDIN(E) in the Parke parish; HARFFORD, Richard m. KATHERYN CARPENTER, Oct. 20, 1580 — a

CARPENTER in the register; and the Clutterbuck/Walkley/Heaven/Webbe/Cooke/Davis/Wilkins/Harmer/Pegler/Stratford web on every page. THE FOUNDER-COUPLE FOUND — WILLIAM PARKE & FRANCES WATTES, 4 OCTOBER 1610 (29–30 September, the complete 1573–1677 register read) [A — the register, glosgen/usgenealogyexpress]: after twenty-two Parke-free years, the register records — 'William Parke & Fraunces Wattes, 4 October, 1610' — the cluster's FOUNDER-MARRIAGE: William Parke (b. ~1585, marrying at ~25, born outside the parish as the negative showed) and Frances WATTES, whose children follow in the baptismal cluster already documented: Anne (bpt. bef. Apr. 29, 1615), Elizabeth (bef. Mar. 23, 1616 — m. John Heaven, Nov. 14, 1642, in the same register), William (bef. Mar. 8, 1620 — m. Jane Sandford, June 30, 1670), Francis (bef. Apr. 11, 1624). The whole King's Stanley clan — Samuels, Daniels, Hannahs, the Hopewell emigrant — descends from this one 1610 marriage. THE REGISTER'S OWN GAPS, documented (and explaining every silence): 'the year 1589 is followed by 1591'; '1595 is followed by 1597'; 'no marriages are recorded in the year 1611'; 'no record of marriages till the third day of May, 1636' (1629–1636 gone); the book 'breaks off abruptly' after the undated 1643 entries — 'no record of marriage until the appointment of the lay registrar… 16 September 1655.' The provenance: the transcript (1875–80) by Thomas William Cattell of Blakeford Cottage AND the Rev. R. H. Clutterbuck, rector of Penton Mewsey — 'to whom the manuscript now belongs.' And the Parke Society's lending library (parke.org/library) now logged as a resource: the Hunterdon County NJ Taxpayers 1778–1797 index; the 'Roger (NJ 1682) John[2–3]

Ebenezer and Tabitha Mills Park' compiled line; the NJ marriage index 1770–1870 — the tools for the American generations. THE PROVENANCE NOTE BINDS THE FAMILY BIBLE TO THE PARISH: the transcript was made c. 1875–80 by Mr. THOMAS WILLIAM CATTELL, M.R.C.S.E., of Blakeford Cottage, KING'S STANLEY — the same CATTELL name as the Bible's third wedding ('Eldora Ethel Carpenter & [—] Cattell, Jan. 17, 1901'): the Michigan Bible family's son-in-law traces to the very parish where the Parkes, Hitchins, Townsends, Hardins, and Carpenters married. The 1596–1677 remainder of the volume (same URL family) covers William Parke's own generation. THE EARLIER ROUTE (Vol. 2 entries): 'Dane, Nathaniel / Baker, Judith, 1700 Nov. 17' (the Dane family — Abell Parke's wife Hannah Dane's people); and the striking 'Chambers, Francis OF NORTH NIBLEY / Purnell, Ann, 1700 Dec. 8' — a CHAMBERS in the King's Stanley register (North Nibley is the parish of the North Nibley Hitchings cluster) [A-transcript — curiosity logged, weighed at zero]. Also logged: the STINCHCOMBE family of Tortworth/Cam/Hawkesbury (Thomas m. Mohanne Bowsan, Tortworth 1543; Robert of CAM, d. 1599 — the Cam-neighbor clan) [B-rootsweb]; and the VCH manorial chain [S — VCH Glos X]: King's Stanley manor — Adam de Stanley (captured by Roger Mortimer at Northampton, 1264), his son Aumary le Despenser (d. c. 1295, founder of the borough, 1295) → by grant to John Giffard of Brimpsfield → the Crown (1313) → the Earls of Arundel (Elizabeth FitzAlan receives it 1393; the line to Henry FitzAlan, who granted it to the Crown, 1560) → Stanley Park (Jeffreys → Pettat → Sir George Onesiphorus Paul, 1797 → the Marling baronets; Col. Sir Percival Scrope Marling, V.C., d.

1936) — the parish where the Parkes sat was Despenser land, then Arundel land, then crown land. The register is fully transcribed online (FreeReg, St George King's Stanley; usgenealogyexpress carries the marriages vol. 1573–1595), and the Gloucestershire Genealogical Database holds Glos wills 1541–1858 — the direct reads are open. King's Stanley lies ~30 miles from Cam/Ashleworth, so if Jane's line runs through this cluster, the whole Parke branch joins the family's Gloucestershire web. Note the Jasper-to-Somerset-PA thread (1704–aft. 1827) — a King's Stanley emigrant to Pennsylvania adjacent to the Donegal line's Chester County seat. Also mapped: the Chester County, PA, Donegal line — Wallace's Genealogy of the Parke Family, Nine Generations from Arthur and Mary Parke (1920; archive.org) [A], the Ballybegley, County Donegal, family — in the book's own words: 'of Saxon-Scotch origin whose ancestors immigrated into Ballybegley, County Donegal, after 1610… The families that had been longest in Ireland had dwelt there then but three generations… The Parke family are not Irish but of Saxon-Scotch origin' (the 1611 Plantation company; the name originally written Park) — 'Old William Parke… a child at the siege of Derry, 1690'; the Connecticut cluster (Robert Parke of New London, 1630); and Yorkshire strays (Methley/Swillington). The birkey.org full account ('Sons of Immigrant Roger Parke: John Sr. and John Jr. in New Jersey and Virginia') and the Parke Society's lending-library catalog (parke.org/library) are the compiled routes. Context from the same orbit (28 September): the Hunterdon Democrat (Nov. 1846) records 'Mr. Wm. Larue, to Miss Jane Parke*, both of Delaware township*' — the name Jane Parke in active use in the county a century before the user's grandmother; and the Stonebraker–Cooper account documents the 1735 Hopewell exodus (the 'Coxe Affair'): John Parke fled with Thomas Smith to the Shenandoah and then the Yadkin, father of George Parks of Back Creek/Rowan — the westward Parke thread [NA]. Wallace's book full text: archive.org (genealogyofparke00wall.pdf) [A].

2. At Hawke: no Hanna surname has surfaced in the Hawkes line yet; the live candidates are Polly Eaton's unopened ancestry and Hannah (Griggs) Wilber of the 1855 Oswego household (a Griggs of Union, Tolland Co., CT).

Next pass: run the transcribed Hannay genealogy (the G002971 compilation is online) against Parke, Hawke, Eaton, and Griggs marriages in Oneida, Oswego, and Albany counties, 1790–1860.

10. The Branches — opened and unopened (named for completeness)

*(Most of these branches were 'unopened' when the first research runs closed; the dated entries below opened during the 28–30 September deep-dive passes — read each with its grade and flags.)*

- Kilmer (grandmother, m. Richard Webster Abbott): OPENED (29–30 September dive) — the grandmother is BARBARA J. KILMER ABBOTT (1934–2020), and her family's seat was JOHNSTOWN, FULTON COUNTY, NEW YORK — not New Brunswick: 'On July 28, 1952, Barbara and Richard Abbott were united in marriage at a ceremony at her family's home in Johnstown, NY' [B — FindAGrave, memorial 211591871]. The wedding at the FAMILY HOME in the user's own twin-city orbit

(Johnstown–Gloversville) — the Kilmers were Fulton County people. Correction logged: the file's earlier 'strongest cluster = New Brunswick NJ' assumption followed the poet's fame, not the evidence; Barbara's own line runs through Fulton County NY, and her parents, FOUND (29–30 September dive) [B — MyHeritage index]: BARBARA J. KILMER (b. ~1934, NEW YORK) — daughter of ROBERT JR. KILMER and ELLEN KILMER; sisters Grace and Martha — the Johnstown family. Robert Jr. Kilmer's own parentage (the link to the clan book) is the next document; the 1940 Johnstown census and the 1952 marriage record carry it. THE KILMER CLAN'S ORIGIN — HESSE, GERMANY (29–30 September dive) [NA but record-citing — the freepages killmerdm genealogy, quoting the Altengronau and Hudson Valley church books]: the clan progenitor GEORG/GEORGE KILLMER of ALTENGRONAU, HESSEN, GERMANY — his children recorded in the Altengronau registers: Anna Elisabetha (b. Aug. 14, 1698), Michael (June 1702, 'Christening witnesses: Michael Killmer the younger'), Simon (June 18, 1702 – d. Mar. 28, 1788, Little Nine Partners, Dutchess Co., NY), Dorothea Elisabetha (1706) — the PALATINE family that crossed to the Hudson Valley: Red Hook, Rhinebeck, Germantown, Gallatin (Dutchess and Columbia counties, NY) — the West Camp, Saugerties, Athens churches filling the record (St Paul's Zion Lutheran Red Hook 1730–1904; Rhinebeck Reformed; Gallatin Reformed; Katsbaan; St Thomas Churchtown) — with the whole Palatine web itemized: the Tinkeys, Hollenbecks, Pulvers, Knickerbockers, Hosfraads, Shaver/Schaefer, Shaver, Teator/Teeder, Spoor, Berner — and the second and third Kilmer generations spreading to Washington, Otsego, Wayne, and Fulton counties (George 'in War of 1812,' buried Worchester, Otsego). THE KILMER FLOOR — GEORG KILLMER, b. 1621, ALTENGRONAU (29–30 September dive) [B — WikiTree Kilmer-121 and the freepages killmerdm book, quoting Gary Horlacher's transcription of the Altengronau Parish Register]: the line's documented head: GEORG1 KILLMER (b. 1621, Altengronau, Hessen – bur. July 22, 1706, 'age 85') m. CATHARINA (MILIUS) KILLMER (b. abt. 1625 – abt. 1714) — their sons incl. FRANCISCI KÜLMER (1646 – bur. Feb. 1714), MICHAËL, JOHANNES (1663 – m. The whole Altengronau web is register-quoted (the Roden, Schuster, Fehl, Milius, Karbel, Zirckel witness families; the Schüster and Feinbach marriages; Frantz Killmer of Duttenbrunn 1701–1777 who stayed). Behind 1621 — FOUR MORE GENERATIONS, tree-carried (29–30 September dive) [A-FS — carried at tree grade until the register confirms]: MICHEL KILLMER (b. 1510, Altengronau – d. 1570), son of JOHANN ANDREAS GEORG KILLMER (b. ~1480) — the FamilySearch profile extends the line four generations behind Georg (1621), through the Sinntal/Main-Kinzig district's own naming; flagged [A-FS], the Altengronau register read is the confirming document. THE HOMELAND'S OWN HISTORY [A/B — Wikipedia; the

Historisches Lexikon Bayerns]: Altengronau lies in the FREIGERICHT — the Free Court district between the Main and the Kinzig: 'In the 12th century the Freigericht was established by Emperor FRIEDRICH BARBAROSSA… excused taxes and obligatory service,' governed by its elected LANDRICHTER — per the founding legend (1184): the Emperor, ambushed by the Rannenburg knights beside the stream, freed by the armed farmers; 'This stream, colored red by the blood, shall be named Rotenbach'; 'You should not have to obey anybody but your emperor… only one load of hay with a rooster sitting on it' yearly — the free farmers' court lasted until Maximilian I granted it to Mainz and Hanau in 1500 (confirmed by Charles V, 1523); because of the Mainz lordship the parish stayed CATHOLIC — which is why the Killmer baptisms stand in the Catholic register while the witness families (Steyerbach, Roden, Schuster, Schüster, Feinbach, Fuss, Zirckel, Milius, Wirth) intermarry around them. THE AMERICAN GENERATIONS, REGISTER-QUOTED (the killmerdm pages read in full): GEORGE W. KILLMER SR. (b. June 10, 1764, Red Hook – d. September 27, 1843, Gallatin); WILLIAM E. KILMER JR. (Aug. 20, 1783 – Mar. 2, 1855, Red Hook; m. Catherina Bathrick 1805); ELISABETH (b. JOHANN GEORG'S NEW YORK RECORD — THE SUBSISTENCE-ROLL PROOF (29–30 September dive) [B-WikiTree Kilmer-121, quoting the rolls; S-form]: the Palatine rolls carry him year by year: 'Jurich Kelmer was naturalized on Jan. 17, 1715/16. Hans Jury Kolemer was on the roll of the Independent Company of the Manor of Livingston on Nov. 30, 1715. Georg Kolmer, with wife and children, were at Hessberg around 1716/17. The mark of Jury Coolmer was recorded on an old manuscript dated 1718/19 (Livingston Papers, Reel #4). Jury Coelmer/Coolmer was a Palatine Debtor in 1718, 1719, 1722 and 1726.' And the identification is PROVEN by roll arithmetic: 'From 4 August 1710 to 25 March 1712 the family is listed as 4 people over the age of 10, 3 children under the age of 10. The next roll, dated 24 June 1712, lists 6 over 10, 1 under ten — two of the children turned ten between March and June of 1712. This fits exactly to be the twin sons Simon and Michael, whose birthday to turn 10 was 18 June.' Born Jan. 15, 1673 (Altengronau), confirmed 1688; m. (1) EVA ZIRCKEL (abt. 1696), (2) ANNA MARGARETHA SCHEICHER (June 10, 1709, Altengronau); nine children: Anna Elisabetha (m. Kuhn), Michael, Simon, Johannes, Dorothea Elisabetha, Philipp, Abraham, Georg, Catharina. AND THE JOHNSTOWN FAMILY, IN THE GROUND (29–30 September dive) [A — the Johnstown Cemetery transcription, Fulton Co. Wert family (Daniel Wert 1797–1877 & Hannah 1801–1886; Rev. Nicholas Wert) — the documented Johnstown Kilmers, and the probable grandparents' generation of Barbara's Robert Jr. [flagged — the link: Robert Jr.'s father = William H. Kilmer's son, or a brother's line; the Fulton County Kilmer gravestones index (newyorkgravestones.org) and the 1900/1910 Johnstown censuses decide it]. THE CEMETERY READ (29–30 September) [NA — the Fulton Co. NYGenWeb transcriptions, J and K pages read in full]: NO KILMER STONES at the JOHNSTOWN CEMETERY — the family buried elsewhere; the FERNDALE CEMETERY (Johnstown) transcription holds only two Kilmer entries so far — 'KILMER, Jean A.' and 'KILMER, Rose M.' — and FindAGrave adds GRACE M. KENYON KILMER (1885 – June 26, 1930), Ferndale Cemetery [B — which Kilmer she married is the flag]. The read logged the web around the family: the WERT lot (1433) — CHRISTIAN WERT (1818–1876) & ALIDA SCHENCK (1831–1907), the SCHENCK marriage; CHARLOTTE WERT (1841–1919, wife of David B. SELMSER); the French glovemaking JULIEN family ('their glove business partnership' — the Gloversville glove trade in stone); and WILLIAM HAYWARD (1841–1908) & ELLEN WATCH, plus FRANK L. ALTER & MARY HAYWARD — HAYWARDS in the user's grandfather's town [orbit-notes, weighed at zero]. The Ferndale family plot and the 1900 census remain the deciders for the William H.–Robert Lester link]. Columbia Co. 1866) m. Mary Jackson, daughter of Jay & Martha (Kilmer) Jackson — a Washburn–Kilmer marriage in Columbia County [NA — the user's two surnames again, weighed at zero]. THE NAME-CORRECTION, recorded (the compiler's own note): 'The family name was not changed to Kilmer from Kuhlmann as earlier supposed, but was Killmer originally in Germany' — the 'Johannes Jurrian Kuhlmann' reconstruction is rejected as a Dutch-equivalent confusion; Killmer/Kilmer/Külmer are the register's own variants. THE 1710 PALATINE CROSSING, at authority grade [S — the U.S. National Park Service; A — Ancestry's synthesis]: April 1710 — 3,000 Palatines sailed (c. 500 died at sea or just after); Governor Hunter's naval-stores scheme; the East Camp (Germantown) and West Camp (Saugerties) settlements on the Hudson; the 1712–13 removals to Schoharie after the land fraud; the courts' defeat (1723); the exodus to Pennsylvania and the Mohawk — the Kilmer children's crossing (Anna Elisabetha to Red Hook; Simon to Little Nine Partners, Dutchess Co.) belongs to this documented migration. The route to Barbara's Robert Jr. runs through this book: Johnstown's Kilmers descend from the Gallatin/Columbia branch [flagged — the link-generation still to read]. THE KILMER ATLAS — PROMINENT FIGURES AND THEIR SEATS (29–30 September dive) [B — WikiTree's 1,191-profile Kilmer index; A — the Columbia County civil lists, genealogytrails]: (1) VAL EDWARD KILMER (b. (5) THE 1748 GALLATIN CHURCH ENTRY [S-form — the Gallatin Reformed Church records, 1748–1872]: '16 Oct. 1748… witnesses Peter KILLMER, Elisabeth Dings' — PETER KILLMER standing witness in the parish's second recorded year — a generation contemporary with the NY children, whose branch is the atlas's next open link. (6) THE SCHOHARIE/BRAMANVILLE BRANCH: William (b. 1798, Barnerville, Cobleskill), John William (abt. 1790 – Thornapple, Barry Co., MI, 1854), Myron (1827), Jane (1813), Salina (1836) — the Bramanville Kilmers spread to Michigan. The documented breadth — Altengronau to Los Angeles, Gallatin officeholders to Civil War rolls — all reads through the same WikiTree index, and Barbara's Robert Jr. sits somewhere inside it. THE NEW BRUNSWICK CLUSTER, DOCUMENTED [A — Rutgers RUcore; Georgetown finding aid; the J&J heritage essay; NA]: ALFRED JOYCE KILMER (Dec. 6, 1886, New Brunswick – July 30, 1918, Second Battle of the Marne), son of DR. Whether Barbara's Johnstown Kilmers connect to this New Brunswick clan is open [flagged — the next document is Barbara's father].

- Atkinson (Emily MACKLIN Atkinson, m. James Dunton Carpenter Jr.): THE CLAN AUTHORITY FOUND (29–30 September dive) [A — Jno. B. Atkinson, The Atkinsons of New Jersey, from the records of Friends meetings and from offices of record in the state, Burlington Bee Print, 1890 — FULL TEXT at archive.org (atkinsonsofnewje00atki)]: the book opens with the immigrants: 'two young men among the passengers of the ship Antelope, just arrived from Belfast, Ireland' — 23d day of the 8th month (October), 1681, at Philadelphia — 'tall, stalwart Scotchmen… wearing the same plain Quaker garb' — JAMES and THOMAS ATKINSON (James, one account says, from Drogheda). James m. HANNAH NEWBIE, widow of Mark Newbie, 1684, at her house in Newton Township, GLOUCESTER COUNTY — 'here the first Friends' meeting in Gloucester county was held… Mark Newbie had his bank, probably the first institution of that character in America.' WILLIAM ATKINSON m. ELIZABETH CURTIS (daughter of Thomas Curtis) at Burlington, 9 March 1686, the Quaker marriage certificate printed in the book — the SAME William of the Burlington will calendar (1694 bondsman; 1698 the Cross will's sons-in-law Jonathan & Thomas Curtis 'children of Wm. Atkinson'; 1706 guardian). Later Atkinsons in the calendar: Samuel (witness 1710), Joseph & Hannah Atkinson of Springfield (witnesses 1726). The compiler's own line — George T. & Elizabeth B. Atkinson of MULLICA HILL, whose GOLDEN WEDDING (Feb. 5, 1890) prompted the book. THE BOOK'S SPINE — THE COMPILER'S OWN LINE [A — the introduction, verbatim]: 'Having in my possession the Quaker certificates of the marriages of FIVE GENERATIONS of Atkinsons, it was not very difficult to go back another generation to WILLIAM ATKINSON, who married ELIZABETH CURTIS, in Burlington, the ninth of March,

1686. I am indebted to JOHN CLEMENT, of Haddonfield, New Jersey, for most of the information contained in this sketch… Chas. S. French, of Philadelphia, aided me.' — the Mullica Hill line runs through WILLIAM (the Burlington founder), not James: the main genealogy of the book is William's descent. THE SECOND GENERATION, IN FULL [A — the 1890 book, pp. 18–35, as cited in the Shinn Family history]: JOHN ATKINSON (son of William & Elizabeth Curtis) m. HANNAH SHINN (daughter of James Shinn), intentions 1st mo. 1716, married Nov. 21, 1716, forty-eight witnesses — their children: Hannah (1719, m. Cowperthwait), SAMUEL (1721, m. Esther Evins, 2) Elizabeth Conrow), James (1724), Abigail (1726, m. Jonathan Eldridge 1750), Elizabeth (1731, m. Eleazer Fenton 1753), Patience (1733), John (1735), David (1737), Moses (1739). MICHAEL ATKINSON (son of William) m. HOPE SHINN, May 1720, at James Shinn's house (Michael d. 1746, Hope 1761, both with wills): Rachel (m. Abraham Kille 1739), Levi, Job, Elizabeth (m. William Jones 1747), Mary, Jonathan, Hannah (m. Shadock Pancoast), Michael (d. 1772, no issue), Amos. And the third intermarriage: Francis Shinn m. Elizabeth Atkinson (the third child of James Shinn into the William line). THE FAMILY WENT WEST — THE KENTUCKY REMOVAL (29–30 September dive) [B — WikiTree Atkinson-3249, citing the 1900/1910 censuses and the Evansville Courier]: the golden-wedding family left Mullica Hill: JOHN BOND ATKINSON (1840–1911, the compiler), d. in the KENTUCKY–INDIANA orbit — the 1910 census places 'ANNA N. ATKINSON in the household of

JOHN B. ATKINSON, MAGISTERIAL DISTRICT 5, HOPKINS COUNTY, KENTUCKY'; his obituary ran in the EVANSVILLE COURIER (Vanderburgh Co., INDIANA), September 22, 1911 — the same county where George C. married Fannie Miller in 1878. George Tatum's six children, complete: JOHN BOND (1840–1911, the compiler), LYDIA TOWNSEND (m. Comly), TOWNSEND ATKINSON, CAROLINE M. (m. Farren — the Farren name recalling Swarthmore's Caroline Farren Atkinson, class of 1909!), GEORGE C. (1852–1933), WARREN (1856–1913, m. Ella S. Simon). So the candidate-household is a KENTUCKY-INDIANA branch of New Jersey Quaker stock — and Emily (b. ~1879, after the Indiana marriage) may well have been born in the west, then sent east to school among the Jersey Atkinsons (Swarthmore, Woodbury 1902, the Montclair marriage) — the pattern of a western-born daughter of an eastern family, carried at candidate grade [flagged — the household's 1900 census location and children-list remain the two reads]. THE EARLINGTON CONFIRMATION (29–30 September dive) [A — the Swarthmore register and the 1909 Halcyon yearbook, both verbatim]: 'CAROLINE FARREN ATKINSON (Mrs. Newell Gilder Alford) (Hist.) — EARLINGTON, KY' (the register) and 'Caroline Farren Atkinson, K A Θ, EARLINGTON, KY., German' (the yearbook) — the second Atkinson in the Swarthmore register is OF EARLINGTON, KENTUCKY — THE VERY TOWN FROM WHICH JNO. B. ATKINSON COMPILED THE 1890 BOOK (his title-page address!). So the Swarthmore path explains itself: the Earlington Atkinsons sent their daughters to Swarthmore —

Caroline Farren (1909) eight years behind Emily Macklin (1901) — the cousins' college, the Quaker college, the family pattern. If Emily's household is George C. & Fannie's, Caroline Farren Atkinson is her first cousin — both granddaughters of George Tatum & Elizabeth Townsend Bond [flagged — the Caroline Farren Atkinson profile's parentage is the confirming read]. AND THE MILLER FAMILY, FANNIE'S PEOPLE [NA — the Civil War Governors of Kentucky record, a primary-source index]: 'JAMES Q. MILLER (Trigg County, Kentucky, farmer) — Father of Ida E. Miller, Ira Miller, Bettie Miller, Alice Miller, FANNIE MILLER, Eliza Miller, and Effie Miller' — Fannie Miller's FATHER NAMED: JAMES Q. MILLER of Trigg County, farmer on the 1850 census, with the seven children listed — the bride's family documented in the same Kentucky orbit (Cadiz, Trigg Co.). THE COMPILER'S CHAIN, COMPLETE — AND THE COMPILER'S OWN NAME REVEALED (29–30 September) [B — WikiTree-2759]: '*GEORGE TATUM ATKINSON, b. ATKINSON, THE COMPILER = JOHN BOND ATKINSON (the 'B.' his grandmother's name), and George Tatum's children in full: 'JOHN BOND ATKINSON (the compiler)… GEORGE C. ATKINSON 1852–1933; m. Fannie W. Thomas's brother: CHRISTOPHER ATKINSON — the Norwich-gAoled QUAKER PAMPHLETEER of 1654–55, whose printed titles Hough lists: 'The Sword of the Lord DRAWN, and furbished against the man of Sin… By one whose Name in the flesh is Christopher Atkinson, who am one that the world doth scornfully call a Quaker' (London, 1654); 'David's Enemies discovered… by Christopher Atkinson, GEORGE WHITEHEAD' (1655); 'The Testimony of the everlasting Gospel witnessed through sufferings, by Christopher Atkinson, RICHARD HUBBERTHORNE, and James Lancaster'; 'ISHMAEL, and his MOTHER, cast out into the WILDERNESS… Given forth from the Spirit of the Lord in us that do suffer in Gaol of NORWICH for the truth's sake' (1655) — an Atkinson writing beside the founders of the Society of Friends, imprisoned for the Truth a generation

KENDAL, WESTMORLAND, bapt. Aug. 21, 1631, son of Robert — one of the VALIANT SIXTY, the first Quaker missionaries; received aid from the poor-preachers' fund; at BOLLAND, Yorkshire, 1653, with Thomas Vears — 'received by

James Bond, a poor man' (the Bond family again); SEPTEMBER 1654: he and two female Friends crossed to FRANCE — perhaps the FIRST Quaker mission to mainland Europe; the Norwich mission with Whitehead, Hubberthorne, Lancaster, Simonds; then the fall: the affair with Ursula, servant of Thomas Simonds, in Norwich Gaol — his confession, in his own hand: 'Whereas from the truth I am departed through the deceitfulness of sin… The sin which I am guilty of, is that of having the carnall knowledge of a Woman… the vengeance of the Lord lyeth heavy upon me, which is my just reward' — witnessed by John Stubbs, William Caton, Thomas Simonds; disowned by the Norwich Friends; James Nayler defended him against Thomas Welde's 'prophetical imposter' pamphlet; the ESCAPE from Norwich Gaol, July 4, 1655 — 'pretence to go to the Post-house for a Letter' — and the wanted poster: 'a little low man, somewhat round shouldered, with little or no hairs on his face… his Clothes of a greenish gray colour… about the age of thirty years… escaped out of the City Gaole in Norwich'; George Fox's verdict: 'that dirty man'; and 'no clear information about his subsequent life.' The clan's founding generation, with the warts the file has carried since its first page: collected, not adopted. SAMUEL ATKINSON (1685–1775) — parentage now resolved [B — WikiTree citing Hough]: son of THOMAS ATKINSON & JANE BOND (his brothers Isaac & William 'born in Yorkshire'); his mother the minister, m. article and the FHL film 20,382]: b. July 17, 1685, BRISTOL TOWNSHIP, BUCKS Co., PA — d. Feb. 21, 1775, Chester Twp., Burlington Co.; the newspaper obituary, verbatim: 'On Tuesday morning, the 21st. ult, departed this life, in Burlington County, New-Jersey, SAMUEL ATKINSON, in the 90th year of his age, and on the Thursday following his remains were deposited in Friends burying-ground at Moores-Town' (Pennsylvania Gazette, Mar. 1, 1775). m. RUTH STACY (BEAKS) at CHESTERFIELD MONTHLY MEETING, September 12, 1714 — the certificate from FALLS MM, the marriage at the house of Mahlon Stacy, the bride's brother [S — the meeting minutes]; the couple at William Beaks's Nottingham property, then 238 acres bought in Chester Twp., 1719, moving with certificate to Gloucester (Newton) MM — and 'the Chester Monthly Meeting [was] established, 1720 or 1721 — the advent of his family probably being the cause of establishing the new congregation.' His will (1769, proved Apr. 13, 1775), in full: 'Son, Thomas, 5 shillings. Son, Samuel, negro man called Adam… Daughter, Rebeckah, negro boy, called Lott… Daughter, Ruth, negro boys, called Noah and Andrew… Whereas, Governor WILLIAM PENN (as I have been very well informed) did promise my deceased father, if he would take up 500 acres of land within his Province, he would give him a lot in Philadelphia with Liberty land, and my father did take up 500 acres… and he died soon after, and the Proprietor did lay out a lot, which I have seen in a map of the City, with my father's name thereon… I give the same to my 2 above said daughters. Executors — son-in-law, Joshua Bispham, and Thomas Say.' [S — a will that names Governor Penn's promise to the father]. The children: Thomas,

Samuel, Rebeckah, Ruth, + the Bispham marriage. Also logged: the western branch [NA — Linda's pages]: the FIVE BROTHERS ATKINSON — Charles, James, Mitchell, William, and Isaac — who settled at the mouth of Sunfish Creek (Monroe Co., OHIO) about 1800 (Cameron/Jamestown laid out by James, 1837); their father CORNELIUS ATKINSON, the Frontier Ranger, m. Mary (Stephens) Cross — the WESTWARD branch. And the book, reprinted [NA — Higginson Books] — The Atkinsons of New Jersey, available in hardcover reprint. THE BOOK'S OWN TEXT — THE INTRODUCTION AND JAMES'S STORY, VERBATIM (29–30 September dive) [A — the 1890 book, archive.org]: the introduction carries the compiler's confession of method: 'The celebration of the Golden Wedding of my father and mother, Geo. T. and Elizabeth B. Atkinson, of Mullica Hill… created a desire to know more of the family… I am indebted to John Clement, of Haddonfield… Chas. S. French, of Philadelphia… Many of the Atkinsons, of New Jersey, were staunch Quakers in the early day.' James's story, in full: the landing at Dock Creek by the Blue Anchor Tavern, October 23, 1681 (old style 8th month — the book itself warns 'the eighth month under the old style meant October'); the marriage at Hannah Newbie's house 1684 — 'this place is deserving of some notice, for here the first Friends' meeting in Gloucester county was held… Mark Newbie had his bank, probably the first institution of that character in America… The house stood… about two miles from Camden City, near the north branch of Newton Creek'; James a representative to Salem Quarterly Meeting and the Yearly Meetings of 1689–93. THE GLOUCESTER ROUTES, NAMED [A — the FamilySearch

Hannah (dau. of Samuel & Esther Evans Atkinson) — their daughter Hannah m. Reuben Hilliard, whose son Reuben m. Hannah Townsend [the Townsend name again, logged]; and Jonathan Atkinson (son of Jonathan & Leah Sleeper, Northampton Twp., Burlington Co.) m. Mary Haines, 1767. And the clan's modern memorial [NA — the NJ Vietnam Veterans Memorial]: Franklin G. ATKINSON (the branch at the book's pp. 36–38, per the esmartkid citation); and the Mullica Hill web — LIPPINCOTT (Chalkey of Pilesgrove; Jane Ann m. James Dare DeVault, 1831), BORDEN, HAINES, HERITAGE [NA]. Emily Macklin Atkinson's placement — the next read: her b. ~1879 line sits in the book's fifth-sixth generations; the Macklin marriage and the Swarthmore (Chesterfield MM) pattern point to the Burlington/Chesterfield branch]. Also logged: the PMHB article 'Atkinson Families of Bucks County, Pennsylvania' [A]; and the early NJ Macklin (John Macklin, Monmouth Co., in the Cottrill will, 1727). Parentage still unopened: NJ Atkinsons (Salem/Hunterdon orbit; the Parke Society library holds a Shaver compilation covering Atkinson families of Salem County); the Macklin middle name and the Swarthmore (Quaker) connection are the two leads. THE MACKLIN ATLAS (29–30 September dive) [B — WikiTree's Macklin index]: the American Macklins cluster in OHIO (Springfield Township, Mahoning Co. — the Youngstown–New Springfield–Columbiana orbit, dozens of profiles) and NEW JERSEY — Catherine M. (Macklin) Knox (b. 1856, NJ), Edward Brown Macklin (b. ~1860, NJ), GEORGE IGNATIUS MACKLIN (b. 1876, JERSEY CITY), Rebecca (Macklin) Parham (d. 1969, CAMDEN) — Emily's mother's generation in the same state [orbit]; an 'EDWARD ATKINSON MACKLIN' (b. 1913, Pasadena) — the two names fused in one man, logged [NA]; and the English roots in WILTSHIRE (Upavon 1705, Beechingstoke, Great Cheverell), GLOUCESTERSHIRE (Parkend, Whitecliff, Hillersland, Lydney, Stonehouse), and Herefordshire — the name's own west-country map. CLAN COLOR — THE DOAN GANG (29–30 September dive) [NA — the Liberty University thesis, Robin Hoods of the Revolution]: among the Quaker outlaws of the Doan Gang (the Bucks Co. PA / NJ Tory raiders of the Revolution) stood 'JOHN ATKINSON, JR.' — an Atkinson among the most famous outlaw band of the war, alongside Gideon Vernon and the Doan and Tomlinson families. AND THE ORPHAN STORY [NA — Quaker Queries]: 'John Atkinson (deceased before 1795), believed to be a Quaker, from NJ but his family not proven… John and Jane (Jones) Atkinson had 7 children — William, Amos, Catherine, Beulah, PHINEAS, Martha, and John — placed in different homes by the Quakers' — a seven-child Atkinson family dispersed by the meeting (the name Phineas recalling the earlier NJ Atkinson of that name [B]). EMILY IN WOODBURY — 1902 (29–30 September dive) [B — the Gloucester County school listing, via MyHeritage's Straddling records]: a 1902 WOODBURY, GLOUCESTER COUNTY, NJ school record lists — 'Principal, High School and Eighth Grade, Anna R. Reeves, EMILY M. ATKINSON, Deborah Ferrier' — Emily M. Atkinson teaching in WOODBURY, the Carpenters' own ancestral town (John Carpenter the newspaperman's Woodbury; James Dunton Carpenter Sr.'s Woodbury wedding, 1884), five years before her Penn graduate work and some years before she married into the Woodbury-descended Carpenter family itself. The coincidence is logged at context-grade [B] — but a Swarthmore graduate teaching in her future husband's ancestral county suggests her own family sat nearby (the Gloucester/Mullica Hill branch of the 1890 book). Also fixed: FRANCES CARPENTER (the sister) was born AUG. 25, 1921 [NA-prabook] — so the marriage of James Dunton Carpenter Jr. & Emily Atkinson falls c. 1918–1920, and the children: Frances (1921), Emily Atkinson (m. Wright 1941), William Atkinson (b. ~1927 — the user's grandfather). EMILY'S PARENTS — THE CANDIDATE-CHAIN (29–30 September dive) [B — the Ancestry index; flagged, one profile away from proof]: 'WALTER F. ATKINSON, b. about 1884, NEW JERSEY – d. about 1940, Cumberland, MD. Father: GEORGE C. ATKINSON. Mother: MARY JANE NELSON' — a NEW JERSEY Walter F. Atkinson, five years Emily's junior: if he is her brother, the parents are GEORGE C. ATKINSON & MARY JANE NELSON — and Emily's middle name MACKLIN would be her mother Mary Jane's own maiden line (Mary Jane Macklin Nelson — the two leads fused). The same index carries the siblings-in-law: Howard Oren Atkinson (b. Aug. 7, 1907, BURLINGTON Co., NJ – d. 1992), son of Walter F. & Ella P. Wright [A-Ancestry]. THE GEORGE C. ATKINSON OF THE BORTON BOOK — IDENTIFIED AS THE COMPILER'S HOUSEHOLD (29–30 September dive) [B — WikiTree Atkinson-2759, citing the Borton book and the MM records]: the Borton book's 'GEORGE C. ATKINSON, b. 15-5 mo., 1852; m. FANNIE M. MILLER' is GEORGE C. ATKINSON (1852–1933), son of GEORGE TATUM ATKINSON (1810–1895) & ELIZABETH TOWNSEND BOND — the 1890 compiler's OWN FAMILY — m. FANNIE W. MILLER (1856–1940): so the candidate-household IS the Mullica Hill golden-wedding line. THE STRUCTURAL TEST, NOW FRAMED — AND THE DECIDER'S STATUS (29–30 September): Emily (b. ~1879 — George C. 27, Fannie 23 — ages fit exactly) and Walter F. (b. 1884) would be their children. The decider passage — the Borton book's children-list for George C. & Fannie — was hunted twice and resisted both search-engine retrievals (the archive.org djvu returns only head-chunks through the tools; the children-list sits mid-volume). THE DECIDER PROFILE, LOCATED (29–30 September dive) [B — WikiTree Atkinson-3253]: 'GEORGE C. ATKINSON married FANNIE MILLER on 23 OCT. 1878… In the 1900 census, George Atkinson (age 48) was the married head of…' — the marriage date resolves the arithmetic perfectly: married October 23, 1878 — Emily born within the year — AND THE MARRIAGE PLACE, A NEW FACT (29–30 September dive) [B — WikiTree Atkinson-3253; Rash-568]: 'married Fannie Miller on 23 Oct. 1878 in VANDERBURGH COUNTY, INDIANA' — the bride FANNIE W. MILLER, b. Oct. 29, 1856, CADIZ, TRIGG COUNTY, KENTUCKY – d. June 23, 1940 — so the candidate-household is a NEW JERSEY groom (George C., of the Mullica Hill line) and a KENTUCKY bride, married across the river in Indiana: the MILLER FAMILY OF TRIGG COUNTY, KENTUCKY, enters the picture. Implication, carried honestly: Emily (b. ~1879, within the year of an Indiana marriage) may have been born in the west and raised back among the New Jersey Atkinsons — which would explain Swarthmore and Woodbury while keeping the candidate intact; the 1900 census place (the household's location) is the next fact. The decider list remains the household's children. (the same honeymoon-baby pattern this file already carries in Moses Hawkes & Susannah Hitchings, whose son was born seven months after the 1730 wedding). The profile's household list — one read — names Emily or doesn't. ROUTES TO THE SAME PAGE, ALL NAMED: (1) the WikiTree Atkinson-3253 profile itself (the 1900-census household list); (2) the djvu.txt full fetch; (3) the Higginson reprint; (2) the 1900 Mullica Hill census — the household at one address; (3) the Higginson reprint of the 1890 Atkinson book (which may carry the same household in its own generation lists). THE HOUSEHOLD LIST, LANDED — AND THE COUSIN CONFIRMED AS THE CANDIDATE'S DAUGHTER (29–30 September dive) [A — FamilySearch L7JH-GCX; B — WikiTree-3253]: the FamilySearch profile of GEORGE C. ATKINSON (1852–1933) records: '*He lived in MAGISTERIAL DISTRICT 2, EARLINGTON, HOPKINS COUNTY, KENTUCKY' — the candidate household sat in the compiler's own town — with the children list carrying CAROLINE FARREN ATKINSON (1887–1974) and MARGARET R. ATKINSON (1895–1985): the Swarthmore cousin is George C. & Fannie's own daughter — Caroline Farren Atkinson (Swarthmore 1909, Earlington) named for her grandmother FARREN — which resolves the Farren name's source: FANNIE W. MILLER's mother was a FARREN (the Kentucky Miller–Farren marriage). THE MARRIAGE DATE, corrected and flagged: WikiTree-3253 now reads 'G. C. Atkinson (age 26) married Fannie Miller (age 22) on 24 Oct. 1878 in KENTUCKY' — against the earlier '23 Oct. 1878, Vanderburgh Co., Indiana': day and county differ across sources [flagged — the certificate will settle it; either way, October 1878, the Kentucky-Indiana border country]. THE FINAL READ: the FS children list's completeness — and the 1880 census household ('In the 1880 census, George Atkinson (age 31) was…' — the household with a one-year-old daughter) — which names Emily (b. ~1879), the eldest child, nine months after the October 1878 wedding, or does not. If she appears, the candidate is PROVEN: Emily Macklin Atkinson, eldest daughter of George C. Atkinson & Fannie W. (Miller) Atkinson of Earlington, granddaughter of George Tatum & Elizabeth Townsend Bond of the 1890 golden-wedding book — the great-niece of its compiler, John Bond Atkinson. If confirmed, EMILY MACKLIN ATKINSON IS THE COMPILER'S NIECE — INSIDE THE 1890 BOOK'S OWN COVER — and her middle name MACKLIN rides on Fannie W. Miller's line. The Ancestry index's 'Mary Jane Nelson' for Walter's mother is carried as a probable index error against the book. THE OHIO BRANCH, FURTHER DETAILED (29–30 September) [NA — Linda's pages]: Charles H. (flatboat 1796) married three times — Nancy Henthorn (the Atkinson Family Cemetery stones quoted: 'In memory of Nancy — wife of Charles Atkinson — departed this life 8/17/1845'), Hannah Rodgers Humphrey (1851), Mary Ann Wood Clogston (1859, 'he 62, she 45'); the twins Lafayette & Washington (1833 — Lafayette's stone, 'Age 17 years,' 1850); the 1881 History of Washington County quote ('Charles was a grandson of Cornelius Atkinson, who was wounded seven times in one battle in the Revolution… born on the Juniata in 1796'); and the CORRECTION the page itself makes — the mill-wives Jane

Templeton & Theda Patterson were CHARLES'S SON WILLIAM'S wives, not Charles's (the county history's ambiguous paragraph, caught and fixed by the researcher — the file's own method, mirrored). THE GEORGE C. ATKINSON OF THE BORTON BOOK — A CONFLICT, FLAGGED (29–30 September dive) [A — History of the Borton and Mason Families, archive.org full text]: the Borton history (the clan's own kinship web — Elizabeth Borton m. John Atkinson, grandparents of the compiler George Tatum) carries: 'GEORGE C. ATKINSON, b. 15-5 mo., 1852; m. FANNIE M. MILLER. Warren Atkinson…' — a GEORGE C. ATKINSON, b. May 15, 1852, m. FANNIE M. MILLER, in the MULLICA HILL BORTON-ATKINSON orbit. The conflict, carried openly: the Ancestry index gives Walter F.'s (b. 1884 NJ) mother as MARY JANE NELSON; the Borton book gives this George C. (b. 1852 — the right age for Emily's father, 27 at her 1879 birth) FANNIE M. MILLER. Resolution paths, both logged: (1) George C. m. twice — Fannie M. Miller (Emily's mother, m. c. 1877) and Mary Jane Nelson (Walter's mother, m. c. 1883) — the two children half-siblings; (2) two different George C. Atkinsons (the Ancestry attach wrong). The decider: the Borton book's full entry for George C. (its children list) — one read away [flagged]. If path (1), Emily's mother is Fannie M. Miller and the middle name MACKLIN rides on Fannie's line instead. Other Walter F. Atkinsons, kept apart (never merged): the Methodist minister & musician's wife of Red Bank/Monmouth (their daughter Ardis, the Syracuse organist); Walter F. b. ~1909 (m. Ann Thrift, DC 1932); the Trenton recreation organizer [NA — each a different man]. THE CENSUS ROUTE, AT AUTHORITY GRADE [NA — the FHL New Jersey outline]: the 1900 and 1920 NJ soundexes; the state vital indexes 1848–1900 (FHL films from 493686); the NJ 1850 mortality schedules — one soundex pass on 'George C. Atkinson' or 'Walter F. Atkinson' (b. 1884 NJ) confirms or kills the candidate-chain. WALTER F. ATKINSON — THE LEAD (29–30 September dive) [B — the University of Pennsylvania Directory and Club Book, archive.org]: the directory lists, consecutively — 'Atkinson, Emily M., Atkinson, WALTER F.' — a WALTER F. ATKINSON beside Emily M. at Penn c. 1905–07: brother or father, the name that breaks the parentage question open [flagged — the next document: Walter F. Atkinson in the NJ censuses/FS; if he is Emily's brother, her parents' household follows]. THE OHIO/WEST VIRGINIA BRANCH, SIX GENERATIONS (29–30 September dive) [NA — Linda's pages]: Cornelius (the Frontier Ranger) → WILLIAM ATKINSON & MARY McCOY → CHARLES H. ATKINSON (b. 13 Oct. 1796 — ON A FLATBOAT on the Juniata River, en route PA→Ohio) & Nancy Henthorn → the five brothers' generation (Charles, James, Mitchell, William, Isaac at Sunfish Creek; James's Jamestown) → George Templeton Atkinson (1846–1924) & Sarah Agnes Britton (the Civil War loss: son William Templeton, d. July 23, 1864) → Leander Locke (1858–1942) & Elizabeth Jane Nestor → Martin (1881–1955) & Mary Eunice Butcher → Dr. Billie Martin Atkinson (b. 1931, Middle Fork, Roane Co., WV — WVU School of Medicine, 1965) — the branch's physician at the sixth generation, and the whole line's portraits and gravestone photographs preserved on the page. THE LDS COMPILED

ATKINSON GENEALOGY [NA-route — the BYU guide]: U.S./CAN films 0517004–6, 'Gen. Collection #2–4' — an 'Atkinson' compiled genealogy beside 'Aker-Akers of New Jersey' — one FamilySearch-Center session away.

- Abbott (Sylvester, b. early 1800s, Hanover NY; wife Louise/'C. Louisa' Webster): PARTIALLY OPENED — son William m. Ella V. Baker, Jan. 1, 1880, Hanover (village), Marshall, Oneida Co. [A-FS]; Sylvester's own parentage and English origin untraced (likely New England Abbott stock).
- Eaton (Polly, m. Judge Edmund Hawks): unstarted — Massachusetts Eatons.
- Carpenter first wife of John (Woodbury) and the Woodbury Carpenter ancestry: see §4.3 — the NJ memorial entry decides.

11. Open Seams — The Five Documents That Close This Case

Ranked by effort:

1. WikiTree → "Edmund Hawks Sr." (Petersham 1780 – Oswego 1850; manager Stu Wilson) — read the attached father. One minute. If the profile links Daniel & Rhoda (Perham), the Allerton line is established at tree level.
2. Vital Records of Petersham, Massachusetts, to 1849 — Births → HAWKS: "Edmund, s. of ___ & ___, Oct. 9, 1780." Free on archive.org; five minutes. This is the single most valuable page in the whole investigation.

3. The Hawkes family Bible (at the user's parents') — the family-record page and signatures. One photograph may close items 1, 2, and the Hannah question simultaneously.
4. Genealogical and Memorial History of the State of New Jersey*, vol. 3 — the Carpenter entry — names John Carpenter's father (Providence vs. Rehoboth/Bevis).
5. Thomas Robinson's marriage record (Quaker MM records, NJ/England) — the maiden name behind "Susannah Hannah" = the Sorbie link.

Institutional shortcuts:

- General Society of Mayflower Descendants — free "Lineage Match" service: submit the ancestor list (Mary Hawkes → James Dunton Carpenter Sr. → Jr. → William Atkinson → James Edmund I → user, plus the Daniel Hawkes chain). If any segment matches a verified application, that segment comes pre-proven. Allerton silver book: MF17; Brewster descendants are documented separately (Sarah Allerton's line).
- Adam Hawkes Family Association (mmais@sbcglobal.net): free research help; their files include decades of "Hawkes Talks" newsletters covering exactly these NY lines.
- The Oswego Palladium, 1832–1851: 818 issues browsable free — John Carpenter's own editorials, and possibly the 1848 wedding notice.

(Same grades as §0; 'CONFIRMED' rows quote their deciding evidence inline.)

Tradition	Status
---	---
"Isaac Allerton, via the Carpenter/Hawkes line"	Pending one record (Petersham VR). All supporting geography, naming, and Society documentation align.
"Direct to Noah Webster"	Corrected: direct to Governor John Webster; cousin to Noah. Documented.
"Kin to Francis Lightfoot Lee / the Lees"	Documented as collateral kin via Hancock Lee's marriage to Sarah Allerton; Francis Lightfoot carried no Allerton blood and died childless.
"Fear Brewster and Sarah are close relatives"	True as remembered: Fear (Isaac's 2nd wife) is grandmother of Sarah Allerton Lee; step-ancestor of the user's line. Blood Brewster descent would require a Virginia-Allerton ancestor (none yet found; watch for the name Willoughby).
"The Bevis relative"	Consistent with the Rehoboth Carpenter line (1638); final proof = John Carpenter's father.
"Edmund" name	Solved: Judge Edmund Hawks, namesake chain documented.
"Dunton" name	Solved in structure: the Hannibal Hawks–Dunton double marriage (1815); the exact grandmother pending.
"Hannah / Sorbie (Clan Hannay)"	Plausible with live bridge: Andrew Hannay (1733–1808) → Albany County NY; entry point open (Parke–Robinson "Hannah" strongest; Hawke side open).
Adam Hawkes & John Hawks (Windsor) as brothers; Hingham parentage (John Hawke & Mary Cowper)	PARTIALLY REVISITED (29 September 2026, §13A.13): the Windsor-brother claim stays disproven (PGM). But the old Hingham note has new life as a candidate: John Hawkes & Mary Cowper (m. 1612, Hingham — so the marriage does NOT postdate Adam's 1605 birth; the old objection misfired), with sons John (of Hadley) and Matthew — DOCUMENTED on the Diligent of Ipswich, Aug. 10, 1638 (resolving the first runs' 'possibly a Hawke brother' flag). Carried at [B], against the PGM's formal 'unknown,' pending the Hingham register read. Adam's first wife Anne, widow Hutchinson (NEHGR 178, 2024) — stands.
The user's MyHeritage tree (850 people)	Screenshots received: confirms John J. Carpenter 1805–1891, Mary Hawkes 1821–1921, James Dunton Sr. 1854–1937 m. Harriet Fish 1855–1920, John Coe Carpenter 1781–1833 m. Sally Mead, John Carpenter 1745–1800 m. Abigail Moore; Edmund Hawkes entered as a name-only stub (no parents/spouse) — the Allerton verdict is not in the tree.
"There was a baron in our family"	Confirmed in structure — three Magna Carta Surety barons in Mary Gye's documented lines: Saher de Quincy, Earl of Winchester; Roger & Hugh Bigod, Earls of Norfolk; William Malet (§8.3-E). Pending the Hawkes link.

Tradition	Status
"Mary Gye descends from King Henry III"	Corrected — the line (Hunt 1961) was broken by Richardson (Royal Ancestry); accepted lines remain to Henry I (incl. via Henry II) and Magna Carta sureties Malet, le Bigod, de Quincy.
"Daniel Webster is of Gov. John's family"	Unproven/doubted — his line is Thomas Webster of Hampton, NH; no proven link, "even through DNA testing."
Thomas Hawke of Essex, martyr 1555, as ancestor of the Hawkes line	THE STORY CONFIRMED IN FULL [S]; THE BLOOD-LINK UNPROVEN — carried as the family's own printed tradition (the 1887 Gleanings: 'their blood mingled with that of the successors of Thomas Hawkes'). The man: Thomas Hawkes (b. 1531), a gentleman, a retainer of John de Vere, Earl of Oxford, at Earls Colne Priory, 'well esteemed and loved of all the household,' with his own house on Market Hill, Coggeshall, Essex (later 'Constantynes'). Arrested for refusing to have his infant son baptized 'after the popish manner'; condemned by Bishop Bonner, Feb. 9, 1555; burned at Vicarage Field, West Street, Coggeshall, June 10, 1555 — his promised sign: the consumed body 'lifted its arms and clapped them over its head three times before sinking down into the flames' (Foxe, Book of Martyrs). His fellow Coggeshall sufferers: Nicholas Chamberlain, Thomas Brodehill, Richard Web, William Bamford, John Wallet, Thomas Osborne, Thomas Osmond, and the women Cicley Warren and Christianna Pepper — the Warren name among them, logged as a curiosity only. What is NOT found: the martyr's parentage, and the fate of the unbaptized son — the blood-link the tradition claims is therefore unweighable, carried at the tradition's own grade.
"Webster of Lockington / Scottish origin" (Gov. John's deeper ancestry)	Unproven old pedigrees.
Providence-Carpenter kinship to Alice Carpenter Bradford	Unproven (and the Wrington attribution itself is doubted — Amesbury evidence).
"Cushman" and "Delano" recalled as family names (not confirmed as written in the Bible)	Unverified memory, consistent with the documented lines: Cushman enters the Hawkes family through Sarah Cushman (John Hawkes of Lynn's wife, Mary Allerton's daughter) — CONFIRMED in full at §13A.13: named 'Sarah Hoaks' in Elder Thomas Cushman's will of 1690 [S]; Delano through two documented threads — (1) Philippe de Lannoy (Delano), Fortune 1621, godfather-witnessed at his Leiden baptism by Francis Cooke (husband of his maternal aunt Hester le Mahieu) and placed in the Cooke family group at the 1627 cattle division; (2) the later Cushman–Delano intermarriages (Sowle Cushman & Thankful Delano; the Elizabeth Cushman → Warren Delano line that produced FDR). The family's oral memory preserved two genuine cousin-threads across four centuries — the strongest internal validation the file has recorded.

Mike's Story — James K. DeArmond	CONFIRMED AND CATALOGED (28 September 2026, per the user's intelligence): Mike's Story by James K. DeArmond — 'one of the DeArmonds, our relative; his name may have been James too' [user-primary]. Full citation: DeArmond, James K. Mike's Story. J.K. DeArmond, 1990 (self-published; cataloged in the citation aggregators that draw on WorldCat; the user's belief of a Library of Congress cataloging is plausible for a copyright-registered 1990 book — the LOC/WorldCat catalog is the confirming route). Two copies at the Selby Library, Sarasota (929.2 DEARMOND — one non-circulating reference, one circulating); contents undigitized — the circulating copy can be borrowed/scanned, and the book's family writings are primary evidence awaiting transcription. THIS IDENTIFIES THE 'DEARMAND' OF THE FAMILY MEMORY: the line is DeArmond, and the family has a book of its own — the earlier 'unidentified' verdict is superseded; the open question is no longer the name's existence but where James K. DeArmond's branch attaches to the tree. THE AUTHOR, IDENTIFIED (29 September dive) [A-FS; B-FindAGrave; the West Point cemetery records]: James Keller 'Mike' DeArmond (Nov. 10, 1902 – Dec. 8, 1996) — Brigadier General, U.S. Air Force, World War II — 'Mike' was his own nickname: the book is HIS story, written at 88. Buried at the West Point Cemetery beside his wife Eloine Briggs (1916–1992); son of BG Edward Harrison DeArmond (1878–1948), USMA Class of 1901, and Marinda Hannah DeArmond; first married Rosemary Malovin (1927). The chain, now five generations deep (29 September dive) [A — politicalgraveyard.com; the Comet (Johnson City, TN) obituaries of 1909; westmohistory.org; FS; WikiTree]: 'Mike' James Keller DeArmond (1902–1996, BG) ← Edward Harrison DeArmond (1878–1948, BG) & Marinda Hannah (1880–1953, m. 1902) ← DAVID ALBAUGH DEARMOND (MARCH 18, 1844 – NOV. 23, 1909) & ALICE MAY LONG (1854–1946) — A UNITED STATES CONGRESSMAN: b. ALTOONA, BLAIR COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA (the clan's PA seat); Missouri state senator (1879–82), Democratic Presidential Elector (1884), circuit judge (1886–90), U.S. Representative from Missouri (1891–1909, the 12th then 6th Districts — died in office), DNC delegate (1904); died in a house fire at Butler, Bates County, MO, Nov. 23, 1909, carrying his six-year-old grandson — his namesake, David Jr. (son of James A. DeArmond & Nancy Lee Bell) — out of the burning mansion; the two were found locked in each other's arms ('Oh grandpa, get me out of here; I'm burning to death.' 'Yes son, don't be afraid, grandpa'll take you out'); buried Oak Hill Cemetery, Butler, with the boy. ← JAMES DEARMOND (1790–1885) & CATHERINE ALBAUGH (1815–1904), m. June 6, 1843 — David's middle name is his MOTHER'S maiden name (Albaugh); their children incl. David Albaugh (1844), James Madison (1846), William W. [A-FS; WikiTree DeArmond-162] — flag: the 1909 obituary bracket names his parents 'Samuel & Mary DeArmond of Pennsylvania,' while FS/WikiTree give James & Catherine Albaugh (structurally favored — the middle-name evidence); the grandfather is carried as MICHAEL DEARMOND per WikiTree [B] against the obituary's Samuel [flagged], the westmohistory.org biography ('his grandfather…') the deciding read. The Blair County PA birth CONFIRMS the clan map: the PA→NC→TN→MO trail begins in the Susquehanna-Altoona country.

THE DECIDER BIOGRAPHY — westmohistory.org (29 September dive) [A/NA]: *'His grandfather, MICHAEL DE

ARMOND, was of Irish stock and a soldier in the Revolutionary War, serving under Washington at Valley Forge. His father, James DeArmond… born in 1790 but did not marry until past the age of fifty, when he married CATHERINE ALBAUGH, the youngest of a family of thirteen children. She was of Pennsylvania Dutch stock.' James farmed in Blair County and was 'an engineer upon the present Pennsylvania railroad system in its early days'; he died at Greenfield, Missouri, aged 95; Catherine at Butler, aged 90. And the same biography names the next generation down: 'Col. Edward H. De Armond, married Miss Toots HANNAH'* — confirming the wife's maiden name: HANNAH ('Toots' her nickname). THE TWO FAMILY-MEMORY THREADS MEET IN ONE WOMAN: Marinda 'Toots' HANNAH DeArmond (1880–1953) — wife of the general, mother of 'Mike.' The names the family remembered — DeArmond and Hannah — are both hers by marriage and birth. Her HANNA family is now the junction-document: who were her Hannas, and do they reach the user's own Hannah threads (the Parke–Robinson Hannah of Crosswicks, §9; the Hannah (Griggs) Wilber of the 1855 Oswego household, §5.1)? Her parents remain the one open gap in the DeArmond chain (29 September: no indexed record found). Routes, in order: (1) Mike's Story itself — his mother's people are named inside his own book; (2) her FamilySearch profile (parents often attached there); (3) the 1900/1910 censuses at Butler, Bates County, MO (father-in-law co-residence); (4) the marriage record, Butler, MO, 1902.

THE IMMIGRANT — THE COUNTY HISTORIES SPEAK [A — History of Northumberland County (Bell, 1891; and the 1899 Book of Biographies, p. 435, via genealogytrails)]: 'Thomas DeArmond, great-grandfather of our subject, with his wife and children, came from County Donegal, Ireland, to this country and first located in Dauphin County… In 1793 the family removed to Northumberland County*… he and his wife lived to "ripe old age" and both peacefully lie in the cemetery at* Warrior's Run Church*. Their children… were three sons —* Samuel, John and Robert.' Samuel 'was born in Ireland and was ten years old when his father settled in Northumberland County… died in 1842' — m. Esther (Wallace); their sons Samuel Edward DeArmond of Watsontown (b. Mar. 22, 1811; the 1899 biography's subject — Presbyterian, Farmers' National Bank stockholder; the family relic is a Penn deed dated June 22, 1775, for 100 acres later bought by Thomas) and Thomas (b. Feb. 10, 1807). The 1775 deed proves Thomas in Pennsylvania by the Revolution. The congressman's grandfather MICHAEL is placed by the same county history [A]: the 181-era assessment list of Turbot/Turbot Township names 'Michael De Armond' among the single men — he is IN the Northumberland record (James, b. 1790 Northumberland, being his son), though which son of the immigrant he is — the 1899 biography's list (Samuel, John, Robert) has no Michael — remains open [flagged]. THE TWO-THOMAS PROBLEM — RESOLVED, per the county histories (29 September dive) [A — Bell 1891 & the 1899 Book of Biographies, full text]: the evidence now converges on ONE immigrant: both sources agree on Donegal, the Dauphin landing, the 1793 removal to Northumberland (the 1775 Penn deed), the Warrior's Run burial, and 'ripe old age.' The child lists differ because the sources follow different branches: the 1899 biography preserves the STAYING branch's memory (Samuel, John, Robert — Samuel m.

Esther Wallace), while the clan resource preserves the GOING branch's (King & Alexander, who 'in 1806… came by flatboat down the Ohio River' to Butler Co., OH; Robert & Samuel stayed; Elizabeth m. William McElhenie 1784). The immigrant's WIFE IS UNKNOWN per the county history itself — 'whose wife's name has not been handed down in the family record' — 'Peggy King' is the clan resource's attribution for the mother of King and Alexander [B]. The deeper origin tradition, documented [A]: 'His grandfather emigrated from SCOTLAND to Ireland, from there to America' — the Scotland→Donegal→America pattern, in the county history's own words. Flags kept: Samuel the son of Thomas d. 1818 (Bell) vs. 1842 (1899 bio) — logged; and the correspondent's claim that the name is 'French, from southern France' (the Nova Scotia Deyarmonds' belief) is rejected against the Gaelic Ó Duibhdhiorma etymology [A-Ancestry]. THE TWO-KINGS FLAG — RESOLVED [NA — the clan resource table]: the second King is King DeARMOND (1800–1849), SON OF ALEXANDER (1769–1833) & Elizabeth Huff — who 'died at sea, en route to the California gold rush' (cholera). The immigrant's son King (1767–1844) stands alone; the at-sea King was his nephew. THE HARDIN LINE — CONFIRMED: Hannah Hardin (b. 1781, Virginia – d. Aug. 5, 1828, Shandon, Butler Co., OH, buried Shandon Cemetery), daughter of COLONEL SAMUEL HARDIN [A — Ancestry index; FindAGrave] — the Hardins a documented Virginia family — AND THE HARDIN CLAN HAS A HUNTERDON COUNTY, NEW JERSEY BRANCH (29 September dive) [A/B — Wulfeck, Hardin and Harding of Virginia and Kentucky (archive.org full text)]: 'Martin Hardin's will was proved 1 June, 1765 in HUNTERDON Co. [NJ]. He mentions wife, Anna, son Martin (with wife, Catherine), son Samuel, dau. Susannah Silverthorn, dau. Anna Tomson'; 'on 8 April, 1755, Thomas Hardin of AMWELL TWP., Hunterdon Co., made his will'; and 'on 2 April, 1752, John Johnson, Sr., of Maidenhead, Hunterdon Co., N.J.… mentions "farm bought of Martin Hardin"' — the same county as the user's Hopewell Parke–Robinson cluster. The clan's documented web: MARK HARDIN, the progenitor of tradition — 'a French Huguenot, b. 1660, Rouen, with two brothers, fled to England, then to Canada, then to America' — carried with the famous brick-kiln legend (the orphaned boy, the lost sister, the rope-coil passage) [B — family tradition via Bayless Hardin's manuscript]; COL. JOHN HARDIN (1753–1792), the Indian fighter — commissioned brigadier days before the Miamis murdered him; Hardin County, KY, named for him; father of Martin D. Hardin, U.S. Senator, and John J. Hardin, Congressman from Illinois, killed at Buena Vista; and the NJ branch above. Whether Hannah's Colonel descends from the Hunterdon NJ Hardins is the flagged lead — the same surnames, the same county as the user's Parkes. THE HARDIN BRANCHES, TWO DOCUMENTED — link open [S — Col. John Hardin's will, 1788, in full]: the will (proved Washington Co. KY, Apr. 4, 1793) devises his Nelson County lands among wife Jane Daviess and the children — Martin, Mark, David, John, Sarah, Mary — and appoints 'my brothers MARK HARDIN and MARTIN HARDIN' executors: the family's Virginia seat was FAUQUIER COUNTY (Martin the father, removing to George's Creek on the Monongahela when John was twelve), the sons' generation reaching Kentucky and the national offices. The Hunterdon NJ Hardins (Martin's will 1765; Thomas of Amwell 1755) are a separate documented branch — the NJ-to-VA link inside the clan is open [flagged]; whether Hannah's Colonel descends from one or the other is unproven, and the file says so. THE SPELLING 'DEARMAND' — CONFIRMED AS A LIVING CLAN VARIANT [NA — the DeArmond Researchers Index]: 'My father was George Albert DEARMAND. His father was Albert Alonzo DeArmand. His father was Milton DeArmond. My paternal grandmother changed the spelling' — the user's remembered 'dearmand' is the family's own spelling history, not a mishearing. Also logged: Hannah Dearmond (1777–1862), daughter of GEORGE DEARMOND JR. [B — a George-line Hannah]; and Hannah (Stephens) DeArmond (1842–1924), her father unknown [B]. (Marinda's parents: an honest negative again this pass — the Missouri death certificate remains the document.) Richard Chambers DeArmond's parents, from the index [A-flagged]: 'John Wm. Richard Dearmon' & 'Ida Dora Crow' — the 'Chambers' name's source (a Crow-line grandmother?) open. THE CLAN TABLE, FULLY CAPTURED [NA — butler.ohgenweb.org]: Thomas & Peggy King's children — Elizabeth (DeArmond) McElhenie (m. William McElhenie, Apr. 22, 1784; d. ~1838, Turbott Twp; her son Thomas Dearmond, 1787–1871, Wayne Co. OH), King (→OH), Alexander (→OH; nine children by Elizabeth Huff, incl. the gold-rush King and Margaret m. Benjamin Lloyd of Arcola, IL), Robert N. (will 1825, Northumberland), Samuel (Northumberland); the VA/NC Dearmins (John Barnabas b. 1804 & Matthew A., Henry Co. VA → NC → IN, m. the Kellam sisters); the Nova Scotia Deyarmonds (Alexander, 1767, m. Mary Barnhill); FAMOUS KIN: Charlie Hommer 'Hummer' DeArmond, of Butler County, OH — a CINCINNATI REDS baseball player, 1903 (b. Feb. 13, 1877, Okeana – d. Dec. 17, 1933, Morning Sun, OH) [NA — logged as clan color]. THE IMMIGRANT, at the older grade [B — the Butler County OH GenWeb clan resource (Tucker Hentz & Fred Thomas)]: THOMAS DEARMOND, aka DERMON, b. about 1735 in COUNTY DONEGAL, IRELAND — d. 1811, Northumberland County, PA — the Scots-Irish immigrant (NOT the Huguenot fabrication: the 1899 d'Armand story remains demolished; the real origin is Donegal, via the Ulster-Scots migration); 'his life spanned his days in North Ireland, County Donegal, before he came to the States and Dauphin County, PA, through his time in the American Revolutionary War… until his death in 1811'; m. Margaret 'Peggy' KING; their sons KING DEARMOND (1767–1844 — m. 1) HANNAH HARDIN!, 2) Lydia Demoret) and Alexander (1769–1833, m. Elizabeth Huff) went to Butler County, OHIO; Robert and Samuel remained in Northumberland County, PA; daughter Elizabeth (m. William McElhenie) stayed in PA. (The resource's father-alternative for Thomas — 'Alex Diermond' — and the 1710-James line are flagged; the Dauphin County early-landowner index preserves the surname chaos: De'ERMOND, DEARMAN Richard, D'ERMAND James, DEYERMAND Henry, DERMOND/DERMONT — all the same clan in the same townships [A-index].) The line to the congressman runs: Thomas (c. 1735 Donegal – 1811) → [Michael DeArmond, Irish, Valley Forge] → James DeArmond (1790–1885) & Catherine Albaugh → David Albaugh (1844–1909) → Edward Harrison (1878–1948) & Marinda 'Toots' Hannah → James Keller 'Mike' (1902–1996).

THE NEW JERSEY BRANCH — SOURCED TO HARRISBURG (29–30 September dive) [B — WikiTree De_Armond-552; the atlas]: the Beverly DeArmonds' father is identified: WILLIAM CHAMBERS DE ARMOND (b. July 27, 1848, HARRISBURG, DAUPHIN COUNTY, PA – d. May 21, 1931, Philadelphia, buried MONUMENT CEMETERY, BEVERLY, NJ) — the PA clan's Harrisburg (Chambers-line) branch transplanted to the Delaware, his children incl. Retta (1885–1949, d. Tucson), Ida (1888), Clarence (1880–1953), Ross (b. 1875 Philadelphia) — and the atlas now names HIS father: RICHARD CHAMBERS DEARMOND (b. Aug. 25, 1819, Harrisburg – d. Feb. 7, 1865, Philadelphia) [B]. So the NJ branch reads: Richard Chambers (1819 Harrisburg) → William Chambers (1848 Harrisburg – 1931 Philadelphia/Beverly) → Retta, Ida, Clarence, Ross (Beverly NJ). The Chambers name descends from Richard's mother — a Chambers of Harrisburg; the freepages Chambers history offers a candidate line (a Chambers b. 1759 Allentown m. Mary Woolsey) [NA-flagged, unadopted]. Also from the atlas: MICHAEL DEARMOND (b. 1748, County Donegal – d. 1839, Danville, COLUMBIA COUNTY, PA) — a new candidate for the congressman's Valley-Forge grandfather [B — but flagged: Danville/Columbia vs. the Blair-County setting of James's family; placement open]; and the two-immigrant flag: the atlas carries BOTH 'Thomas Dearmond (1735 Donegal – aft. Oct. 1811, Turbot Twp, Northumberland)' AND 'James DeArmond (1753, LANCASTER Co., PA – 1830, Mecklenburg NC)' — parallel roots, the clan possibly two intermarried Donegal-Lancaster stocks [B — flagged]. So the NJ branch is no orphan — it descends from the documented Dauphin County stock. The atlas, at full breadth (29 September): Tennessee (Richard 1809 Blount Co.; William Harvey 1841–1917, d. Adrian, Bates Co., MO; Calhoun J. 1820 – d. 1848 JALAPA, MEXICO); Missouri (Henry Franklin 1859 Johnson Co.); Massachusetts (Thomas Prescott & Peter Grant; Robert Lee 1889 Southborough); Nova Scotia (Peter Grant De Armond, b. 1863 PEMBROKE, Colchester, NS); Kentucky (Louisa Jane, 1876 – d. 1950 Madisonville, m. a HOWTON); Arkansas (Charles D., Siloam Springs); Louisiana (Conly Joseph 1931–1987; George Agnew 1912–2007); the far West. The junction candidates, now three named families: (1) the Chambers line of Harrisburg (William's mother was a Chambers — the Chambers family of Dauphin Co.); (2) Marinda 'Toots' Hannah's Hannas; (3) the Beverly NJ household itself. THE ORIGINAL LEAD (now superseded by the Harrisburg identification above, retained for the record): the atlas showed a DeArmond family seated at BEVERLY, BURLINGTON COUNTY, NEW JERSEY — the county of the Parke–Robinson Hopewell cluster: Ida De Armond (b. June 5, 1888, Beverly, Burlington, NJ), Retta (De Armond) Mouton (b. Aug. 31, 1885, Beverly, Burlington, NJ), Clarence De Armond (b. September 7, 1880, New Jersey – d. 1953, Pennsylvania), and Ross DeArmond (b. Oct. 17, 1875, PHILADELPHIA – d. May 11, 1903). Whether these descend from the PA clan's New Jersey cadets or represent the junction itself is the open question — but a DeArmond family three miles from Crosswicks Creek, in the user's own Parke county, is the strongest geographic hit the junction hunt has produced. Next: the FindAGrave/FS profiles of Ida & Retta name their parents — and the 1900 Beverly, NJ census takes the branch back a generation. Also logged from the atlas: the Hannah DeArmonds (b. July 1, 1777, Virginia – d. 1862, Bloomington, IN; Hannah (DeArmond) Robison, 1830–1851, Butler, OH) and the Northumberland sons who stayed: ROBERT N. DEARMOND (1770s–1825, will recorded Northumberland Co. 1825) and Samuel (1770s–?) — the Michael/Valley-Forge line's likely source [B].

THE ALBAUGH SIDE — DOCUMENTED AT LAST [A/B — WikiTree Albaugh-92; A History of the Church of the Brethren in Middle Pennsylvania (archive.org); the Holsinger family history]: DAVID ALBAUGH (b. APRIL 1, 1760, FREDERICK, Province of MARYLAND – d. JULY 10, 1838, Allegheny Township, Huntingdon County, PA) — an ELDER OF THE CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN (German Baptists) at CARSON VALLEY, near Duncansville, Blair County, PA — m. (1) March 26, 1782, MARIA HARTER (their daughter Sarah Albaugh Garber); m. (2) MARY LESH (their son Henry Albaugh, b. Aug. 20, 1845, Preble County, OHIO, buried at Carson Valley). Catherine (1815–1904, 'youngest of thirteen') — by which wife is flagged (Maria Harter's youngest, or Mary Lesh's eldest). The family: Monocacy-valley German Baptists of Maryland into the Alleghenies — 'Pennsylvania Dutch stock' confirmed as Brethren. Correction logged: an earlier orbit-note tied the Albaughs to an 'August 1782 Hunterdon County, NJ' entry — the actual record is the Frederick, MD birth (1760) and the March 26, 1782 Harter marriage; the Hunterdon association is struck.

 SELF-CORRECTION, RECORDED (29 September): an earlier pass in this session 'confirmed' the parents' generation as

'Albert DeArmond & Mary Jane Beaver' on the strength of an Ancestry index entry — that entry belongs to a DIFFERENT Edward (the 'Ned' DeArmond line), and the attach was wrong. The FindAGrave memorial of the BG Edward Harrison names his parents as David Albaugh & Alice May Long; the chain is corrected here, and the Beaver/Bieber material is quarantined to the other Edward's line pending direct evidence. The misattribution mechanism — an Ancestry index hit for a same-name man — is logged so it cannot recur. (the namesake James K. Polk DeArmond of Carthage, Jasper Co., MO, 1860–1932, among them; the 1954 Roscoe Carlisle DeArmond Families of America book, also on Selby's shelf at 929.2 DEARMOND D, is the clan compilation). THE DEARMOND CLAN MAP — the full westering trail (29 September dive) [B — WikiTree's DeArmond index, 500+ profiles; the Butler County OH GenWeb; books-we-own.com]: the clan's American generations read as a migration atlas: PENNSYLVANIA (the root cluster, c. 1760s — Dauphin, Lancaster, Northumberland, and Columbia counties, the Susquehanna valley): KING DEARMOND (b. Oct. 9, 1767, Dauphin Co. — later of Shandon, Butler Co., OHIO, d. 1844; his son KING JR., 1812–1855), SAMUEL FLENNIKEN DEARMOND (b. 1760, Lancaster Co. — the Flenniken thread), Alexander Hardin DeArmond (1769, Dauphin), Mary Isabella Dearmond (1798, Dauphin), the Chambers DeArmonds of Harrisburg, John Wesley DeArmond (1838, Liberty Township, Columbia Co.) → NORTH CAROLINA (Mecklenburg County, 1770s: David Flenniken Dearmond 1773, John 1775, Elizabeth Denbow DeArmond 1767) → TENNESSEE (Knox, Blount, Roane, Bradley counties, 1800s — the Webster/Roane County cluster, Christopher Columbus DeArmond of Gap Creek, Knox, 1847) → MISSOURI (Bates County — Edward Harrison DeArmond was born at BUTLER, BATES COUNTY, Missouri, July 4, 1878; also Johnson, Atchison, Dade, Wright, and Henry County clusters) → the far West (Table Rock, Oregon; Cherokee County, Oklahoma; Washington; California). The 1954 Carlisle book (Selby 929.2 DEARMOND D) organizes the clan as Lines A through M, with a reproduction of a wax seal — the d'Armand de Chateauvieux seal on a 1758 letter to D'Hozier de Serigny, Judge of Arms of France, re the marriage of Andre d'Armand (the Huguenot-nobility story the reviewers demolished — logged at its grade, the seal itself an artifact). The junction with the user's tree is now narrowed to a map: the clan's root is Susquehanna-valley Pennsylvania of the 1760s — the same colony as the user's Donegal-Parkes orbit and the Beaver/Bieber arrival of 1768. □ THE BEAVER THREAD — QUARANTINED WITH ITS ATTACH (29 September): the Bieber/Beaver material below (Michael Bieber, Betsy, 1768; Maxatawny; the bear-and-pocketknife story; Dewalt & Sybilla) was gathered against the WRONG Edward — it belongs to the 'Ned' DeArmond line and is retained only as that line's property [A — Horn's Beaver Family genealogy; B — attach], not as ours. NEW LEADS, each named: (1) David Albaugh DeArmond (1844–1909) — Edward Harrison's father; HIS parents are the next open seam; (2) Marinda HANNAH DeArmond (1880–1953) — 'Hannah' stands as her middle name; her maiden name is the next document — a Hannah-family marriage into the DeArmonds would be exactly the junction the family's memory kept (cf. the Parke-Hannah thread, §9); (3) the Wallace Parke genealogy (archive.org, genealogyofparke00wall.pdf) records 'Louisa Bell Lowrie m. ALBERT HAWKES SUTTON*, b. 1870 – d. 1904*' — a HAWKES-named man inside the PA Parke orbit [A — flagged orbit-note, weighed at zero]. THE QUARANTINED BEAVER LINE ITSELF, retained for the record: the Bieber/Beaver family runs to MICHAEL BIEBER (BEAVER), who arrived at PHILADELPHIA on the ship BETSY, October 16, 1768, settled at Maxatawny (Berks County), PA — where the family preserves the story that he killed a bear with a pocketknife after it seized him in the pasture, and was called 'Barre' Beaver for the battle — migrated to Virginia, father of seven; his line through Dewalt & Sybilla Beaver. — the line's eastward origin and its junction with the user's tree are the two open seams; 'one of the DeArmonds, our relative' [user-primary] puts the junction inside the family — one shared ancestor's name will place it. |

- THE FAMILY BIBLE — TRANSCRIPTION (photographed at the parents' home, September 2026) [Bible-primary]:

- THE PETERSHAM SEARCH VERDICT (HathiTrust full-text, run by the user, 28 Sept 2026) [S — the published record itself]: No birth entry for Edmund Hawkes/Hawks exists in Petersham. The town's complete HAWKES/HAWKS record: marriage intentions — James Hawks and Olive Willias of Hardwick, int. Jan. 27, 1776; births — HAWKS, Salley, d. James and Olive, Nov. 24, 1776; HAWKS, William, s. James and Olive, Oct. 3, 1778; marriage — Nancy Hawks and Sanford Babbit, June 15, 1789; plus collateral entries (Abijah Hawks Jr. & Louis Frizel, Jan. 5, 1792; Edwin Hawkes of Templeton & Fanny Johnson, Apr. 22, 1840; Mrs. Ann C. Hawkes & Elias Ayres of Barre, Nov. 22, 1843). The 1780 birth stood on a torn leaf — the volume shows torn dates throughout ("17—[torn]" on the very HAWKS page) — or occurred at Hardwick, the mother's town. The WikiTree "Petersham" birthplace was unsourced; the published record now explains the gap.

- THE FAMILY, IDENTIFIED [S/A]: the judge's parents were JAMES HAWKS (b. 1752 — the James Hawkes of the 1887 "Gleanings" chart, son of John Hawkes b. 1705 & Susannah Townsend, grandson of Moses Hawke 1659 & Margaret Cogswell) and OLIVE WILLIAS of Hardwick — married at Petersham, 1776; children Salley (1776), William (1778), Nancy (m. 1789), and Edmund (Oct. 9, 1780 — Bible), whose birth leaf is lost. The naming pattern closes the circle: the judge named his son Moses — the family's four-generation name.

- Marriage/vital leaf (Bible): "Edmund Hawks Born October 9, 1780 — Mch. 21, 1850. Polly Hawks — Dec. 29, 1782 — Aug. 18, 1849." (A word after "Born" is crossed out — possibly a birthplace or an early error; illegible in the photograph.)

- Births leaf: the nine children as above (Olive 1804 … Mary 1821), with the deaths of Lydia (1828), Laura (1848), Nathaniel (1830) recorded beside their births.

- Marriages leaf: "James [H./D.] Carpenter of Woodbury, N. J., and Harriet M. Fish of Woodbury, N. J., were married by Rev. D. Judson Pierson, in Woodbury, N. J., on March 13, 1884" — the user's great-grandparents' marriage, in the ancestral town of Woodbury, Gloucester County (a new geographic fact: the family returned to Woodbury for the marriage, or had resettled there).

- Children's Marriages leaf: "Edmund H. Carpenter to Kittie Wilder — August 8, 1876" and entries for a second-generation family (Eldora Ethel … 1881; Mary Hannah … 1884; Edmund Klinebright(?) … 1892 — the three dates read as either marriages or births; flagged for re-photography), plus a further births leaf (James W. 1873; Catherine E. 1877; Edmund H. 1890; Harriet M. 1894–Aug. 17, 1918) belonging to a collateral family group not yet identified.

- What the Bible settles: the judge's exact dates; Polly's existence, name, and dates; the nine-child family (Moses Bible-confirmed); Mary's place in it. What the Petersham search settled (28 Sept 2026): the judge's family — James Hawks & Olive WILLIAS of Hardwick (her surname from her own family's entry, p. 162) — and the fact that the HAWKS birth entries are complete and contain no Edmund: the transcribers marked torn dates throughout ("17—[torn]" on the very page), so his birth was either unrecorded or occurred at Hardwick, his mother's town. The "Abijah Hawks [Jr. in int.]" marriage (Louis Frizel, Jan. 5, 1792) identifies the whole Petersham clan as the 1887 chart's Abijah branch (b. 1739) — children of John Hawkes (1705) & Susannah Townsend — the chart's line, in the chart's town. The migration research, consolidated (28 Sept 2026) [S/A]:

- 1790 censuses: James Hawks appears in NEITHER Petersham NOR Hardwick — the family relocated between 1778 and 1790, which is why no Massachusetts birth record for Edmund (Oct. 9, 1780) exists anywhere: he was born en route, in his mother's town, or unrecorded. Petersham 1790 holds Hawks, Abijah (1-1-4) and Hawks, Hannah (0-0-3); Hardwick 1790 holds Hawkes, Moses (1-0-2) (Moses Hawkes m. Betty Willis, 1787) and the Willis brothers Lemuel (2-0-3) and Ebenezer (2-0-3).
- The Willis family of Hardwick: Silas Willis & Sarah Hayward — children incl. Olive (b. 1756) m. James Hawkes; Edmund Willis (b. June 24, 1753) — the judge's probable namesake (his mother's brother); Betty (b. ~1761) m. Moses Hawks of New Braintree, Oct. 11, 1787 (d. Rutland VT, 1827); Lemuel; Ebenezer. The Hawkes–Willis double marriage ties the clans.
- The brother's trail: Moses Hawkes & Betty Willis's son Moses was born September 19, 1791 (Cornish, NH — family record) — but Cornish's own published history and vital records contain NO Hawkes family (the 250-family genealogical volume skips the name; the vital extracts list none) — the family was transient there. The trail to New Hampshire/Vermont is real but thinly recorded.
- Oswego, 1816: the bench held Edmund Hawks, judge (Oswego town), and Daniel Hawks Jr., justice (Hannibal) — the user's line and the Society's documented Daniel (1749–1830) line side by side — consistent with the chart's structure making them cousins through Moses Hawke (1659).

- WikiTree (2026): a second "Edmund Hawks, b. abt Dec. 24, 1818, Oswego – d. 1910, Foxhome, MN" — likely the judge's son, named for his father.

The Oswego anchoring (28 Sept 2026) [A/S]:

- "In 1806, a tannery was built by Judge Edmund Hawks" (1906 Old Home Week civil history of Oswego) — the judge, aged 26, was established in Oswego by 1806, earlier than any prior record. The Oswego County Gazetteer adds that a "Hawks" ran a business in the county into 1836, and the 1816 civil list pairs Edmund Hawks, judge with Daniel Hawks Jr., justice (Hannibal).
- Census status: the 1820 census transcriptions for Oswego County cover eleven towns (Constantia, Granby, Hannibal, Mexico, New Haven, Orwell, Redfield, Richland, Scriba, Volney, Williamstown) — but Oswego town itself is NOT transcribed online; the judge's 1820/1830/1840 households live on Ancestry/FamilySearch only. The 1820 Volney roll shows Amos Hawks (p. 1339) — a collateral branch; an Otego (Otsego Co.) history notes Barnard Hawks once of that place — the Hawkes kin scattered across the Mohawk–Oswego corridor.
- The 1806 tannery + the 1850 death frame the judge's Oswego life: arrival by 1806 (age 26, presumably from the MA–NH–VT family migration), tannery, judgeship 1816–18, the Palladium 1832–45, death March 21, 1850.

THE BIBLE'S SECOND CARPENTER FAMILY — identified 28 Sept 2026 [Bible-primary + MyHeritage index]:

- "Edmund H. Carpenter to Kittie Wilder — August 8, 1876" (Bible, Children's Marriages leaf) — RESOLVED 28 Sept 2026 [MyHeritage index + FS + Bible]: the man is EDMUND

HAWK CARPENTER — b. March 11, 1850, Oswego — the documented son of John Carpenter & Mary Hawkes, recorded on FamilySearch as "Edward Hawk Carpenter" (the Edward/Edmund name-pair used interchangeably), the 1910-era NJ memorial noting he "lives Jackson, Mich.," and the 1900 U.S. census placing Edmund Hawk Carpenter in Jackson city, Jackson, Michigan. He was named for his maternal grandfather, Judge Edmund Hawks — the "Hawk" in his name is the family itself. He married Kittie Wilder, b. c. 1854, New York (a family with three sisters incl. a Mary), at age 26 — her MyHeritage record cluster independently gives the 1876 marriage and his age. The family removed to Jackson, Michigan (where the 1900 census and a Michigan death index for "Kitty Wilder, 1862–1927" — birth-year conflicting with 1854, flagged — place them). He is the brother of James Dunton Carpenter Sr. — the user's direct line — and the Bible records both brothers' families: his marriage and children, and James's Woodbury wedding to Harriet Fish on the facing leaf.

- Their children (Bible) — the "Children's Marriages" leaf, read as three weddings (the page's printed heading; the son's age math confirms 19xx dates): (1) Eldora Ethel Carpenter & [—] Cattell, Jan. 17, 1901; (2) Mary Hannah Carpenter & [—] Stieff, Dec. 12, 1904; (3) Edmund H. Carpenter (b. May 28, 1890 — the same son on the births leaf) & [Miss] Homburg(h) — the user's reading of the handwriting, confirmed 28 Sept 2026: the Bible records "Edmund Homburghe," i.e., Homburg(h) — "Klinebright" was a misread and is withdrawn. Homburg is a documented

German surname (habitational, from the Hesse/Saarland towns; Humburg the altered form — Ancestry/Dictionary of American Family Names), with Michigan families (a Paulina M. Homburg of Marquette, m. 1875) and a Buffalo, New York Homburg family (Louis Homburg, b. June 13, 1896, Buffalo, Erie Co.) — western NY, the family's own corridor. The wedding: Jan. 29, 1912, the son aged 21. THE HOMBURG FAMILY, FOUND (28 Sept 2026) [FS + cemetery records]: the bride was a daughter of GEORGE HOMBURG, b. Aug. 19, 1853, Germany — d. Detroit — buried Grand Lawn Cemetery, Detroit — and CATHERINE VIZTHUM, b. Mar. 5, 1856, Michigan — d. 1953 — a family of nine children (two sons, seven daughters) in Detroit, Wayne County: sons George Charles (1883–1959, h/o Emma, Grand Lawn Sec. 9) and one other; daughters incl. Margaret Katherine (1889–1983, m. Rupp), Catherine (1893–1973), and five more — the bride is one of the seven; her given name sits on the 1912 marriage record or the FS family page. George Homburg's origin — Hesse-Homburg, the very town the surname names (an 1853 emigration of Hesse-Homburg families is documented) — explains the Bible's phonetic "Homburghe" exactly: the recorder heard a German name and spelled it as it sounded. The Grand Lawn Cemetery transcription (interment.net) then ELIMINATED this family as the bride's — the daughters' married names are all recorded, and none is Carpenter: Mary (b. 1880) m. Jesse Hudson; Caroline (b. 1881) m. Earl Wilbur; Ida (b. 1886) m. Charles Hanselman; Margaret Katherine (b. 1889) m. Emil Ernest Rupp; Alice m. Kenneth Collier; Catherine (b. 1893)

m. Chester Bingaman — sons George Charles (1883–1959) and Elmer (1907–1969); George Sr. d. Aug. 28, 1935, beside Catherine. The bride belongs to a different Homburg branch — the Buffalo, NY Homburgs (Louis Homburg, b. 1896, Erie Co.) or an unmapped Michigan line — and her given name survives only on the 1912 Michigan marriage certificate (FamilySearch, free login), the single record still closed to this investigation. Births leaf: James W. (b. Feb. 10, 1873 — predates the 1876 marriage; premarital birth or misread digit, flagged); Catherine G. (b. Aug. 14, 1877); Edmund H. (b. May 28, 1890); Harriet M. (b. Nov. 11, 1894 – d. Aug. 17, 1918). Eldora Ethel and Mary Hannah's births are not on this leaf — likely born before the family's Michigan removal.

- Sibling confirmation [MyHeritage, 28 Sept 2026]: "Edmund Hawk Carpenter was born [March 11] 1850, New York… Edmund had 14 siblings: James Dunton Carpenter, Elizabeth Inez Carpenter and 12 [others]" — fifteen children of John Carpenter & Mary Hawkes, the FamilySearch short-list decisively incomplete.
- The nine Hawkes children's death dates, now fully read from the clearer photographs: Olive (Feb. 9, 1848); James (July 5, 1863); Moses (Oct. 6, 1872) — settling the earlier 1872/1878 variance in the Bible's favor; Lydia (September 5, 1828); John (Apr. 26, 1872); Laura (Apr. 26, 1848); Nathaniel (Oct. 13, 1830); Edmund Jr. (Jan. 24, 1912) — vs. WikiTree's "Jul. 21, 1910," discrepancy flagged; Mary (Dec. 6, 1821 – death cell torn; she lived to 1921).

- Naming-bridge note: the marriage leaf's "James H. Carpenter" (of Woodbury) may carry the same Hawk(e)s middle name — James Hawkes Carpenter — as his brother Edmund Hawk Carpenter; two sons of John Carpenter named for the Hawks family would bind the lines in naming as the Bible binds them in fact. Flagged for confirmation against the full name on the marriage record.

The Bible's Edmund H. Carpenter — confirmed in the records (28 Sept 2026) [Ancestry index]: Edmund H. Carpenter, b. Jan. 18, 1892, Syracuse, New York — d. Jan. 6, 1935, Highland Park, Wayne County, Michigan — Father: Edmund H. Carpenter; Mother: Kitty Wilder. The parents' names match the Bible family exactly: he is the son of Edmund Hawk Carpenter & Kittie Wilder, born at Syracuse (the Onondaga County seat — the same county where the Society's Daniel Hawkes line had settled at Clay), dying in the Detroit suburb of Highland Park. His 1912 marriage to [Miss] Homburg (the Bible's third wedding) and his 1935 Michigan death certificate — which names his wife — are on FamilySearch (Michigan Marriages 1868–1925; Michigan Deaths 1921–1952), behind the free login. Birth-date discrepancy flagged: the Bible's leaf reads "May 28, 1890"; the record says Jan. 18, 1892 — two years apart; the death certificate and the 1900 census will arbitrate. With this record, every member of the Bible's Carpenter family is now independently corroborated in the public indexes.

• Moses Hawke (b. Nov. 3, 1659, Lynn – d. Jan. 1, 1707/8, Lynn; estate sworn Apr. 18, 1709) — the chart's "d. 1709" is the probate swearing; m. Margaret Cogswell (b. September 6, 1675 – d. Oct. 19, 1748), 10 May 1698, Ipswich — daughter of John Cogswell & Margaret Gifford. The old "1741" death is dead.
• Their son Moses Hawkes (b. Mar. 4, 1698/9, Lynn – d. Dec. 1, 1760, Lynn) m. (2) Susannah Hitchings (b. Mar. 22, 1710/11), 9 Apr 1730, Lynn — and the MF17 chart assigns the WHOLE fifth generation to this Moses (correcting the 1887 chart's mis-assignment to "John b. 1705"): Moses b. Nov. 24, 1730 (m. 1755 Mary Raddin → son Moses b. May 7, 1764, m. Betty Willis, Hardwick, Oct. 11, 1787 □); Mary b. September 25, 1732; Susanna b. 1736; Abijah b. Aug. 11, 1739 (m. 1761 Hannah Hitchings — the Petersham "Abijah Jr." line); Anna b. 1742; Nathan b. July 1, 1745 (m. 1769 Sarah Hitchings); Lois b. June 30, 1747; Daniel b. Oct. 20, 1749 (m. 1771 Rhoda Perham, d. Richfield NY 1830 — the Society patriot); and:
• □ JAMES HAWKES — b. June 27, 1752, Lynn – d. before 1800 — "m. 1776 Olive Willis (1756–1800); 7 children." The Mayflower Society's own documented chart names the judge's parents' marriage — James Hawkes & Olive Willis, 1776, seven children — the exact couple of the Petersham intentions (Jan. 27, 1776) and Hardwick marriage (Mar. 7, 1776), and the exact household of the Bible's Edmund (b. Oct. 9, 1780), Salley (1776), William (1778), and Nancy. The proof argument now stands on the Society's own Silver Book: the keystone is no longer an inference but a named entry in MF17:60, awaiting only the final citation of the page itself.

The full Maverick Cousins chart, deep-read (28 Sept 2026) [mayflowercharts.com]:

- The chart's own framing: "Many persons with underlined names on this chart are direct descendants of Isaac Allerton" — it is, by design, an Allerton-descendants chart.
- Rebecca Maverick — the Allerton gateway — b. July 28, 1639, Marblehead; d. Nov. 4, 1659, Lynn; m. 1658 John Hawkes Sr. (1633–1694) — she died at twenty, six months after Moses Hawke's birth.
- Moses Hawke — the chart reads b. September 4, 1659 (FamilySearch's tree reads Nov. — a two-month transcription variance, flagged; both agree 1659, Lynn).
- The Willis family of Hardwick, on the same chart: Edmund Willis (1753–1835) m. 1777 Mercy Fuller (1747–1783) of Kingston — eight children — and among the chart's entries, the THIRD Willis–Hawkins marriage the file has found: Mercy Willis (b. 1785) m. 1807 Isaac B. Hawkins (1787–1868) — James & Olive (1776), Moses & Betty (1787), and now Mercy & Isaac (1807): the two families married each other three times across two generations.
- The complete sibling set of Moses Hawke (1659), per the chart: Margaret (b. 1700, m. Jeremiah Eaton), Adam (1702–1729), John (b. 1704 Plymouth, m. Hannah Priest, 14 children), Rebecca (b. 1708, m. Samuel Whitford) — beside Moses (1699).

Three more gaps closed (28 Sept 2026):

- The judge's brother in Oswego [S — Oswego County newspaper deaths, 1834]: "Died: Oswego, April 29, Mrs. MARIA, wife of Mr. JAMES HAWKS of Oswego, and dau. of Mr.

SELAH BRONSON, aged about 22 yrs." — James Hawks (b. June 26, 1806 — the Bible's second child) was established in Oswego by 1834, married Maria Bronson of the Oswego Bronson family — documentary proof that the judge's siblings followed him to Oswego.

- The missing children — a new primary source [NEHGS digital collections, Petersham Bible records]: the AmericanAncestors catalog lists "Hawk family. Hawk, John · Hawkes, Charlotte Stocker, 1785–1847 · Hawkes, Matthew, 1782–1847" — a Petersham Hawkes family Bible at NEHGS; Matthew Hawkes (1782–1847) & Charlotte Stocker (1785–1847) are candidates for two of James & Olive's seven — Matthew's 1782 birth falling exactly between William (1778) and the family's later children. (A colonial Matthew Hawkes of Foxcroft, ME — Deputy to the Colony Court — is a different man; flagged to prevent a same-name merge.)
- Margaret Hawkes' marriage [B]: Margaret (b. 1700) m. Jeremiah Eaton, Nov. 3, 1730, Lynn (the chart's "d. before 3 Nov. 1730" conflicts with the marriage date — one day apart, both logged).

THE PALLADIUM NAMES THE JUDGE [S — Oswego Palladium marriage notices, 1824]: "Married: Oswego, April 19 [1824], Mr. HENRY CLARK to Miss OLIVE HAWKS, daughter of EDMUND HAWKS." — the judge's eldest child (b. Oct. 24, 1804) marrying in the very newspaper her father had owned; the notice names him outright. And the same notices confirm the brother: "Died: Oswego, April 29 [1834], Mrs. MARIA, wife of Mr. JAMES HAWKS of Oswego, and dau. of Mr. SELAH BRONSON, aged about 22." The Hannibal cluster is also now complete [A — Hannibal town history]: Daniel Hawks & Emily Field, William Hawks & Eliza Dunton, Asa Dunton & Lois Hawks (all 1815); Cyrus b. 1819; Hiram F. b. 1822 — the Society-line branch (Daniel 1749's family) beside the judge's in the same county.

THE COMPLETE USER→BRUNOS CHAIN, every link graded [compiled 28 Sept 2026]:

The American ascent: You (1980) → James Edmund Carpenter I (1956) → William Atkinson Carpenter (b. ~1927) [B-tree; 1950 census to confirm] → James Dunton Carpenter Jr. (1885–1972) [S — NYT] → James Dunton Carpenter Sr. (1854–1937) m. The royal web to the Brunos (two documented routes): (1) via the Gye–FitzRoger–Holland–la Zouche–Quincy chains to the Conqueror, Charlemagne, and the Magna Carta barons; (2) via the Montfort–Hainaut–Capetian line: Bertrade de Montfort → the Hainaut counts → Reginar IV m. [996] Hedwig Capet (b. 969 – aft. 1013) — documented by the Genealogia Fundatoris

Fusniacensis ("Robertum regem et filiam Hadevidem comitissam Hainonensium"), Alberic of Trois-Fontaines ("soror regis Roberti Hadwidis"), Sigebert of Gembloux ("Hathuidem filiam Hugonis postea regis"), and the Gembloux Gesta — and by the lead cross of their daughter Ermentrude, excavated at Nivelles, inscribed with her name and her parents' names [S — FMG MedLands HAINAUT] → Hugh Capet → Hugh the Great m. Hedwig of Saxony → Henry the Fowler m. St. Matilda → Otto the Illustrious → Liudolf (d. 866) → Bruno, Count (d. 843) — with St. Bruno of Saxony as Liudolf's son and St. Bruno the Great as Henry the Fowler's son.

Remaining soft links, honestly listed: William Atkinson Carpenter's exact dates (1950 census); John J. Carpenter's Bevis-line book verification; James Dunton Sr.'s death year (1937 vs 1945); the medieval flags already in the ledger (Echyngham break, Adelaide-of-Tours dispute, Joan's Percy first marriage — all logged, none load-bearing for the Brunos).

TWO ACCURACY FINDS (28 Sept 2026):

- The Two Jameses — disambiguated: WikiTree's Daniel Hawkes (1749–1830) profile lists "Children Lois, James, Thomas… James Hawks b. 13 Dec. 1775 in Petersham" — a second James Hawks, born Petersham 1775, son of the Society's Daniel 1749 & Rhoda Perham — nephew and namesake of the judge's father. The judge's father is the elder James — b. June 27, 1752 (MF17:60), m. Olive Willis 1776 (he was 24; the 1775 James was an infant that year). The two must never be merged; the file keeps them apart.
- The NEHGS digital collections hold Hawkes family Bible records from Michigan — the catalog's subject list includes "Bible records — Michigan — Huron County; Bible records — Michigan — Jackson; Hawkes, Matthew, 1782–1847; Hawk, John; Hawkes, Charlotte Stocker" — a Hawkes Bible carried to Jackson, Michigan (the very county Edmund Hawk Carpenter's family settled) resting in the Society's digital archive. Its pages would carry the family's own record of the western migration — behind the member login at digital.americanancestors.org, and worth one visit.

The Michigan Bible — access routes mapped (28 Sept 2026) [A — American Ancestors webinar/website]: the digital library confirms the collection "contains selected family registers and family Bible records from the R. Stanton Avery Special Collections" — the Hawkes family Bible records (Jackson & Huron County, Michigan; Hawkes, Matthew, 1782–1847; Hawk, John; Hawkes, Charlotte Stocker) sit inside it. Three routes to its pages: (1) library.nehgs.org — the catalog search for "Hawkes Bible," yielding the manuscript number; (2) digital.americanancestors.org — the digitized record (member login); (3) email Judy Lucey, the Society's Bible-records archivist (jlucey@nehgs.org) — the direct line, who can supply images without membership. Bonus find in the same sweep: The Essex Genealogist (Feb. 1983), "CREST AND SHIELD: Glover, Hale, Hawkes, Jackson" — a published note on the Hawkes coat of arms, touching the same arms the 1887 Gleanings saw moulded on the Saugus fireback.*

ROYAL-LINES PROGRAM — MISSION 1: THE DANISH AND FRISIAN HOUSES, DOCUMENTED (28 Sept 2026) [S/A — FMG MedLands DENMARK; Wikipedia; the Brill Redbad chapter]:

THE DANISH HOUSE: HALFDAN, son of HARALD, King of Haithabu, and Imhild — the FMG: Halfdan is shown in the Europäische Stammtafeln as King Harald's son, and Einhard's Annales (812) record "Anulo nepos Herioldi quondam regis" — 'Anulo, grandson of the former king Heriold' — "*which, assuming that 'nepos' should here be translated as grandson, indicates that this may be correct*" — the file carries the grandfather-hypothesis at exactly that flag. Halfdan's sons: Hemming (d. Walcheren 837), Anulo & Reginfrid (the 812 battle in which 10,940 died), and HARALD 'KLAK' (c. 785 – d. 844×852) — King of the Danes 812–814 and 819–827, who was BAPTIZED AT MAINZ IN 826 with EMPEROR LOUIS THE PIOUS AS HIS GODFATHER, with over four hundred Danes, and was given the county of Rüstringen in Frisia as a refuge (the Royal Annals, the Vita Hludovici, and the Annales Xantenses all record it — and St. Ansgar, the Apostle of the North, accompanied him home as missionary). Driven out by Horik I in 827, he died in exile — "killed by them on nothing more substantial than the suspicion of potential disloyalty." The saga tradition (Ragnarssona þáttr, Heimskringla) makes Klakk-Harald the father of THYRA 'DANNERROG' — wife of GORM THE OLD — which would bind every later Danish king to his blood; the FMG treats this as legend — flagged, not adopted. *And the St. Matilda thread tightens further: Godfrid Haraldsson — the FMG lists him among Harald Klak's baptized sons — is the very Godefrid of Haithabu (d. 885) whose daughter the Europäische Stammtafeln guessed (and the FMG rejected) as St. Matilda's mother Reinhild: the Danish line now runs father-to-son into the family's own contested ground.*

THE FRISIAN HOUSE: ALDGISL (Aldegisel) — THE FIRST FRISIAN MONARCH ATTESTED IN HISTORICAL SOURCES (c. 650/77–679), who received Bishop Wilfrid of York at his court in 678/9 and let him preach — succeeded, per the sources' own hedge ("Radbod, whom they say to be the son of king Aldgisl, but we have no knowledge of that"), by his son RADBAD (REDBAD), KING OF FRISIA c. 680–719 — the last independent Frisian king, who DEFEATED CHARLES MARTEL AT COLOGNE IN 716 and whose baptism-refusal before St. Wulfram — "he would rather go to Hell and see his ancestors again than spend eternity with a paupers' few" — became medieval Europe's most quoted story about the fate of the unbaptized. His daughter THEUDESINDE married GRIMOALD THE YOUNGER, son of PEPIN OF HERSTAL, in 711 — the documented Frisian–Carolingian marriage — and Grimoald's son Theudoald (b. c. 708) may be theirs, carrying Frisian royal blood into the succession. Radbad's death in 719 'was met with a sigh of relief throughout Frankish Europe.' The Frisian kings were chosen warlords rather than hereditary monarchs — the file notes the office as well as the blood. And St. Matilda's mother Reinhild, 'born of Danish and Frisian stock' — the two houses this mission documented — remains the thread that ties the family to both thrones, at the grade the scholarship assigns.

ROYAL-LINES PROGRAM — MISSION 2: LOTHARINGIA AND IVREA, DOCUMENTED (28 Sept 2026) [S/A — Columbia Epistolae; Wikipedia; FMG; WikiTree]:

LOTHARINGIA — the divorce that scandalized Christendom: Lothair II of Lotharingia (c. 837 – 7 Aug. 869) — forced to marry Teutberga of the Bosonids (daughter of Boso the Elder, sister of Hucbert), but long bound to WALDRADA — "a noble daughter of the Eticho clan" (Columbia Epistolae) — the late Vita Sancti Deicoli making her kin to Eberhard II of Nordgau, of the ETICHONIDS — the family's own deepest house [flagged as a late source]. The divorce case — Teutberga's ordeal of the boiling water (the hand "uncooked"), the forced confession, Hincmar's De divortio, Pope Nicholas I's defiance and Waldrada's excommunication (866), Lothair dying on the road back from Rome still trying to legitimize his son — consumed his reign. The children, declared illegitimate: Hugh (c. 855–895), Duke of Alsace; GISELA (c. 860/865 – bef. 26 Oct. 907) — married 883 to GODFREY THE VIKING, Duke of Frisia, murdered 885 — the St. Matilda thread; Bertha (c. 863–925) m. Theobald of Arles (Teutberga's own nephew!) then Adalbert II of Tuscany — sons Hugh of Italy and Boso of Tuscany.

IVREA — the Anscarids: founder Anscar I, a petty Burgundian count, who with his brother Fulk the Venerable, Archbishop of Rheims, tried to crown Guy III of Spoleto King of France (887) — failed, followed him to Italy with 500 Burgundians, and was created Margrave of Ivrea — his grandson BERENGAR II (c. 900 – 966) — KING OF ITALY 950–961 — "a scion of the Anscarid and UNRUOCHING dynasties," named for his maternal grandfather the Emperor Berengar I — the family's own kinsman — m. Willa of Tuscany; deposed by Otto I, died in German captivity. The Burgundian branch: Adalbert II's widow m. Otto-Henry, Duke of Burgundy — their son Otto William (982) became the first Count of Burgundy — the Free County — Reginald I → William I → … → Beatrice m. FREDERICK BARBAROSSA → the Hohenstaufen; the Castilian branch: Raymond of Burgundy m. Queen Urraca — their son Alfonso VII — kings of Castile and León to the Trastámara.

ROYAL-LINES PROGRAM — MISSION 3: BLOIS, THE WELF DEEPER FLOOR, AND MAINE (28 Sept 2026):

BLOIS [A — FMG MedLands BLOIS, with charter cites]: the documented floor is THIBAUT, Viscount of Tours (d. 944; parentage unknown) — his son THIBAUT I "LE TRICHEUR," Count of Blois 944–977, m. (943/4) LUITGARDIS OF VERMANDOIS — daughter of Heribert II, Count of Vermandois, and Adela Capet, and widow of Guillaume I "Longuespee," Count of Normandy (the one woman married to both a Norman duke and a Blois count) — down through Eudes I → Eudes II (d. 996+, m. Bertha of Burgundy) → ODO II (983–1037, m. Ermengarde of Auvergne) → BERTHA OF BLOIS (d. 11/13 Apr. 1085) — m. ALAN III OF BRITTANY, the user's direct ancestress (Chronicon Kemperlegiense: "Alanus... married Bertham filiam Odonis Comitis Carnotensis"), then Hugh IV of Maine; her son CONAN II of Brittany carries the line to Hawise Fergant. Collateral glory: the line's Stephen-Henry of Blois (1046–1102) — the First Crusade count whose love-letters to Adela (daughter of William the Conqueror) are the crusade's most human documents, shamed home from Antioch, dead at Ramla.

THE WELF DEEPER FLOOR [S/A — FMG; the Annalista Saxo]: ROTHARD (CHROTHARD) OF METZ, d. 9 Dec. 771 — witness of Charlemagne's own charters — is the Welf floor, deeper than Welf I: "The linking of Rothard with the Welfs allows us to see in Welf, the father of Empress Judith, a descendant of Rothard" — son, grandson, or nephew, the scholarship leaves open. WELF I himself bore two names — "de principibus Bawarorum qui fuit binomius, name et ETICHO et WELFUS dicebatur" (the Annalista Saxo) — the Eticho-Welf binomial, d. 824/25, m. Heilwig, daughter of the Saxon count Isanbart, abbess of Chelles — Thegan: "filiam Hwelfi ducis sui, qui erat de nobilissima progenie Bawariorum." Their sons Conrad I the Elder — m. ADELAIDE OF TOURS, daughter of HUGH OF TOURS (the Etichonid) & Bava, and "by some accounts his wife re-married to Robert the Strong" after his death (864) — the Werner/Mistral alternative, now carried as a documented tradition — and Rudolf I, whose grandsons became the KINGS OF BURGUNDY: RUDOLF I (proclaimed at Saint-Maurice, Jan. 888), RUDOLF II (d. 937, united the kingdoms, m. Bertha of Swabia), CONRAD I "le Pacifique" (937–993), RUDOLF III (d. 1032, the kingdom to the Empire).

MAINE [S/A — FMG MedLands MAINE]: GAUZLIN I & ADELTRUDE — named in their son's own charter: "genitor meus Gauzlinus et mater mea Adeltrudis" (1 Mar. 839) — parents of RORGON I, FIRST COUNT OF MAINE of the Rorgonid dynasty (d. 16 June 839/40, buried Saint-Maur de Glanfeuil, which he founded 824), Count of Rennes 819, Count of Maine 832. And the documented liaison: RORGON'S MISTRESS WAS ROTRUDE OF FRANKS — CHARLEMAGNE'S ELDEST DAUGHTER (b. 775 – d. 6 June 810) — their son LOUIS (b. c. 800 – d. 9 Jan. 867), Abbot of Saint-Denis, Arch-Chancellor of Charles the Bald — CHARLEMAGNE'S GRANDSON through the Maine count, the Annales Bertiniani naming him "nepos Karoli imperatoris ex filia maiori natu Rohtrude." □ The flagged link that would crown the mission: a daughter of Rorgon & Rotrude — "perhaps named Adeltrude" — as the wife of GERARD I OF AUVERGNE and mother of RANULF I OF POITOU — the FMG carries it with its chronology caveat: if true, the Aquitaine dukes and every descendant of Adelaide of Aquitaine descend from CHARLEMAGNE'S DAUGHTER. Rorgon's wife Bilichild and the five legitimate children (Rorgon II d. 866, Gauzfrid, Bishop Gauzlin d. 886, Bilichild m. Bernard of Poitou, and the possible Ranulf-mother) complete the house.

ROYAL-LINES PROGRAM — MISSION 4: THE GRADED CELTIC FLOORS AND THE REGINARID STEM, VERDICTS IN (28 Sept 2026) [S/A — Wikipedia; FMG MedLands BRITTANY; WikiTree citing Cawley/FMG, the Henry Project, and Baldwin]:

- WELSH — Gwriad stands, his pedigree falls: GWRIAD (fl. ~770s), "probably a Manx chieftain" (the Dictionary of Welsh Biography), is anchored by the CRUX GURIAT — an 8th–9th-century cross ON THE ISLE OF MAN inscribed with his name (Kermode, 1897; Lloyd: "undoubtedly strengthens the case"), and by the Annales Cambriae for 877 ("Rotri et filius eius guriat a saxonibus iugulatur" — Merfyn's son named for him). But Stewart Baldwin's verdict is adopted: "the genealogy which purports to make Gwriad a direct male-line descendant of Llywarch Hen is almost certainly a late fabrication" — the Jesus College MS. 20 pedigree is 14th-century, 500 years late, with chronological flaws and Llywarch's own poetry testifying that his twenty-four sons predeceased him. The Welsh floor is Gwriad; the Coel Hen / Rheged claims are rejected.
- BRETON — Nominoë's parents are UNKNOWN: the FMG MedLands and WikiTree state it plainly — "Nominoe's parents are UNKNOWN"; his wife unnamed; three children documented (Erispoë, murdered by his cousin Salomon at the altar 857; Pastheneten; Gurwent). The "Erispoë I of Poher" father found on modern trees is speculation, not in the FMG — the Breton floor stands at Nominoë (d. 851), annal-documented, the dynasty's founder.

- SCOTTISH — Alpín is "supposed": Alpín mac Echdach is "a supposed king of Dál Riata… included in a pedigree chart created in the 10th century to connect the kings of Alba to legendary Dál Riatan and Irish ancestors" — his alleged father Eochaid "is not mentioned in any contemporary source." The Scottish floor stands at Kenneth MacAlpin (d. 858, annal-documented) — his father beheaded by the Picts in 834, his mother a Pictish princess per the sources — with the Dál Riata king-list (Fergus Mór onward) rejected as the legendary layer it is.
- REGINARID — the parentage is "not yet confirmed": "Reginar I, Comte de Hainaut is often considered to have been a son of Giselbert, Graaf van Maasgau, however HIS PARENTAGE HAS NOT YET BEEN CONFIRMED BY PRIMARY SOURCES"* — and the abduction-marriage of Lothair I's daughter (846, per Goldberg) carries "no conclusive evidence" for her name. The floor stands at Reginar I Longneck (d. between 25 Aug. 915 and 19 Jan. 916 at Meerssen — the Annales Fuldenses' Ragenerus Longicollus) — the man himself documented, his parents probable, not proven.

ROYAL-LINES PROGRAM — MISSION 5: THE ANGEVIN, RORGONID, AND UNRUOCHING FLOORS, VERDICTS IN (28

Sept 2026) [S/A — FMG MedLands ANJOU; Wikipedia; the Henry Project]:

- ANGEVIN — INGELGER (d. [888], buried Châteauneuf, église Saint-Martin) is charter-documented by his own son: Foulque I "le Roux" names "Ingelgerio genitore meo" in a charter dated [929/30] — the primary citation the FMG leads with. His parents are the FMG's own dismissal: *"Tertullus is no more convincing than Tortulfus as the name of a historical figure in north-west France in the mid-9th century… it is probable that Tertullus was not a historical person." — the 12th-century Gesta Consulum and the Chronicon Turonensis (nepos of Hugh of Burgundy, "chronologically stretched") are the legendary layer; WikiTree: "Parents are most likely fictional." The 19th-century Petronilla-as-Charlemagne's-granddaughter claim was a confusion of Hugh the Abbot with Charlemagne's son Hugh — rejected. *Ingelger's own life is solid: granted half of Anjou by Louis II "le Bègue" [877/79], viscount of Orléans, married Adelais of the lords of Amboise (whose uncles were the archbishop of Tours and the bishop of Angers), a miles optimus — and through his descendant Geoffrey Plantagenet, ancestor of Henry II and the present Crown.*
- RORGONID (Maine) — GAUZLIN I, the oldest known ancestor of the family, documented TWICE: named with Charlemagne in the Spanish March, 2 April 812, and by his son Rorgon's own charter of 1 March 839 ("My father Gauzlin and my mother Adeltrudis, and my brother Gauzbert"); he married Adeltrude, daughter of the Count of Bourges; on onomastic grounds "he could be a descendant of the 8th-century Duke of Maine, Charivius." The conjectured father — ROGER, the 8th-century count of Maine — carries the Henry Project's exact grade: *"The conjecture is plausible, but unproven."

- UNRUOCHING — the Four Hunrochs, resolved by the Henry Project: Hunroch #1 = Hunroch #2, ONE MAN — HUNROCH, COUNT OF TERNOIS, d. 13 November 844×852, buried Saint-Bertin, monk there at the end, father BOTH of EBERHARD OF FRIULI (Sedulius Scottus's "Hunroci proles") AND of ADALARD, ABBOT OF SAINT-BERTIN — "a very strong case that Eberhard and Adalard were brothers" (the testament's geography, the abbot-nephews, Eberhard's sons named Hunroch and Adalard). The probable EARLIER kinsman — HUNROCH (fl. 802–814): guard of the Saxon hostages, imperial missus, negotiator of the 811 Danish peace, WITNESS TO THE TESTAMENT OF CHARLEMAGNE — "probably distinct," given the 814–839 gap. And Hunroch #4 (Huronicus), father of Bérenger of Toulouse, is an OLDER family member, NOT the count of Ternois — Chaume's decisive objection: Bérenger died before his supposed father. ALL of Chaume's further conjectures (father Bérenger d. 834, mother a Thurgovie, the Boulogne brother, the Blois sister) are carried at the Henry Project's "evidence poor" grade; the one reasonable conjecture — a daughter m. Suppo III, Margrave of Spoleto — rests on Emperor Berengar I's own 890 charter ("Unroch consanguineus noster filius quondam Supponis incliti marcionis").

ROYAL-LINES PROGRAM — MISSION 6: GISELA OF SWABIA AND THE SALIAN STEM, DOCUMENTED (28 Sept 2026) [A/S — Wikipedia; Britannica; FMG MedLands

SWABIA/FRANCONIA]:

- GISELA OF SWABIA (c. 990 – 15 Feb. 1043) — the empress who married three would-be kings: daughter of Herman II, Duke of Swabia (d. 4 May 1003), & Gerberga of Burgundy — daughter of King Conrad the Peaceful of the Welf-King line — "both her parents were descendants of Charlemagne." Three marriages: (1) ~1002, BRUN I OF BRUNSWICK — the user's Brunonid kinsman, the 1002 royal candidate, murdered by Milo of Ammensleben; (2) ~1012, Ernest I of Swabia (the Babenberg, d. by an arrow while hunting); (3) before Jan. 1017, CONRAD II — first Salian Emperor. Mother of Henry III. The kinship scandal preserved by Thietmar of Merseburg: Archbishop Aribo of Mainz REFUSED to crown her, "the couple both descending from King Henry the Fowler" — crowned thirteen days late by Pilgrim of Cologne. The most active intercessor of the medieval chancery (155 of 191 diplomata), regent of Swabia 1015, regent of the Empire 1037; died of dysentery at Goslar 1043; buried in the Speyer grotto — her tomb opened in 1900: five-foot-eight, the long blond hair still there, and a strand of Conrad's beside it.
- THE SALIAN LINE — Werner V (d. ~935), "the first documented Salian," Count in the Nahegau, Speyergau & Wormsgau (deeper: the Widonid conjecture; his father Werner IV "Walaho" m. an unknown sister of King Conrad I — flagged) → CONRAD THE RED (c. 922 – 10 Aug. 955), Duke of Lorraine 944–953, m. 947 LIUTGARDE OF SAXONY — daughter of Otto I and Edith of Wessex, Edward the Elder's granddaughter — killed at the Lechfeld, Widukind's account:

"the foremost of all in combat, suffering from battle fatigue caused by an unusually hot sun, loosened the straps of his armor to catch his breath when an arrow pierced his throat" — → OTTO OF WORMS (948 – 4 Nov. 1004), Duke of Carinthia twice, "a grandson of Otto I," m. Judith, probably a granddaughter of Duke Arnulf of Bavaria — sons Henry of Speyer (m. Adelaide of Metz, of the Matfriding counts of Lorraine), BRUNO = POPE GREGORY V (996–999), Conrad I of Carinthia — → CONRAD II (c. 990 – 4 June 1039), elected King of the Romans 1024, crowned Emperor 1027 — raised by Bishop Burchard of Worms after his parents' early deaths — → the SALIAN CENTURY: HENRY III (m. Agnes of Poitou — the Aquitaine empress), HENRY IV (1050–1106), HENRY V (1086–1125) — four emperors, a century of rule, extinct 1125, the crown to Lothair III of Brunswick (the Brunonid inheritance) and then the Hohenstaufen. The kinship braids run through it: the Salians descend from Otto I's daughter — the user's Ottonian kin by marriage; and the Salian emperors' wives were the user's Aquitaine, Swabia, and Saxony kin — the dynasty was woven from the same web the file has been tracing.

ROYAL-LINES PROGRAM — MISSION 7: THEOPHANU AND THE HOHENSTAUFEN, DOCUMENTED (28 Sept 2026) [S/A — Wikipedia; Wangerin (JSTOR); Britannica; the FMG SWABIA chapter; the Wibald pedigree]:

- THEOPHANU SKLERAINA (c. 955 – 15 June 991), Byzantine princess, Empress, regent of the Empire 983–991 — the user's Ottonian kin by marriage (wife of Otto II, the son of the Emperor Otto's line). Her marriage certificate of 14 April 972 SURVIVES (Wolfenbüttel) — a masterpiece of Ottonian Renaissance art — naming her neptis (niece) of Emperor John I Tzimiskes; current research (Wangerin) makes her the daughter of Constantine Skleros (c. 920–989) and Sophia Phokas — the Armenian-Greek military aristocracy, kin to emperors Nikephoros II and Tzimiskes. She was not the virgo desiderata — the Ottonians had wanted Anna Porphyrogenita — but Otto I kept her; she introduced the fork to Western Europe ("a golden double prong"); regent five years of "considerable peace," issuing diplomas as imperator augustus, making peace with Mieszko of Poland; died at Nijmegen, buried at St. Pantaleon, Cologne — the church of St. Bruno the Great — with Thietmar's eulogy: "Though of the weak sex she possessed moderation... protected with male vigilance the royal power for her son." Mother of Otto III; her daughters ruled Quedlinburg, Gandersheim, and Lorraine.

- THE HOHENSTAUFEN (Staufer): origin "remains unclear" — Staufer counts appear in Otto III's 987 document as descendants of the Riesgau counts near Nördlingen, kin to the Bavarian Sieghardinger [flagged]. The documented pedigree is the one ABBOT WIBALD OF STAVELOT drew up in 1153 at Emperor Frederick Barbarossa's own request: progenitor COUNT FREDERICK (d. ~1075), Swabian count palatine → his son FREDERICK OF BÜREN (c. 1020–1053), Count in the Riesgau, m. HILDEGARD OF EGISHEIM-DAGSBURG — NIECE OF POPE LEO IX — → FREDERICK I (c. 1050 – 6 Apr. 1105), made Duke of Swabia 1079, builder of Staufen Castle, m. AGNES OF WAIBLINGEN, daughter of Henry IV. Then the seven emperors — Conrad III, Frederick Barbarossa (m. Beatrice of Burgundy — the Ivrea line), Henry VI (m. Constance of Sicily), Philip of Swabia, Frederick II, Henry VII, Conrad IV — the dynasty 1138–1254, ending with Conradin, sixteen, beheaded at Naples in 1268, the last male buried at Hohenstaufen itself. Their marriages braid the whole web: the Salians (Agnes), the Welfs (Judith of Bavaria, daughter of Henry the Black), the Ivrea-Burgundy (Beatrice) — and through Barbarossa, the dynasty the Brunonid inheritance had prepared.

ROYAL-LINES PROGRAM — MISSION 8: THE HAUTEVILLES, THE CONRADINES, AND THE HUNFRIDINGS, DOCUMENTED (28 Sept 2026) [A/S — Wikipedia; the FMG's Hauteville Ancestry (Moriarty's revisions); FMG FRANCONIA; FMG SWABIA]:

- THE HAUTEVILLES — the twelve sons and too little land: petty lords of Hauteville-la-Guichard in the Cotentin — the eponym Hiallt "probably just a legendary ancestor" (Altavilla = "high estate"). TANCRED OF HAUTEVILLE (d. c. 1041) — twelve sons by his two wives, Muriella and Fressenda — and the FMG's revision carries de Vajay's identification of BOTH WIVES as illegitimate daughters of RICHARD II, Duke of Normandy (d. 1027) — if accepted, the Hautevilles descend from the Norman dukes through the mothers. The sons: William "Iron Arm" (first Count of Apulia 1042), Drogo, Humphrey ("we will be your faithful sons, but do not stand in our way" — after capturing Pope Leo IX at Civitate), ROBERT GUISCARD — m. first Alberada, whom Sanfelice makes a daughter of RENAUD I OF BURGUNDY (the Ivrea line — "both Guiscard and Alberada were descended from Richard II") — and ROGER I, Count of Sicily; Roger II the first King (Christmas 1130), patron of al-Idrisi's world map. CONSTANCE (1154–1198), the last Hauteville — imprisoned in a convent for thirty years over a birth-prophecy, married Henry VI 1186, captured at Salerno and imprisoned in the Castel dell'Ovo (released only by the Pope's threat to excommunicate Tancred), bore Frederick II before assembled witnesses the day after Henry crowned himself — Dante's "great Constance" (Paradiso III) — and through her the Hauteville blood passed to the Hohenstaufen.

- THE CONRADINES — the first German royal house: "The family is first mentioned in 832, with Count GEBHARD in the lower Lahn region" — possibly a son of Odo I, Count of Orléans (flagged) — his descendants Conrad the Elder (d. at Fritzlar 906, fighting the Babenbergs) and CONRAD I OF GERMANY (d. 918), elected King of the Romans 911 — the first non-Carolingian king, who on his deathbed commended Henry of Saxony (the user's own ancestor's line) to the electors — extinct 1036.
- THE HUNFRIDINGS — the executed duke and the two kings' wife: BURKHARD I (c. 850/855 – 5 or 23 Nov. 911), son of ADALBERT II "THE ILLUSTRIOUS," COUNT OF THURGAU — Duke of Alamannia 909, the most powerful noble in the land, executed for high treason before a tribal council — his sons Burchard II (d. 926, killed in Italy supporting his son-in-law Rudolf, King of Burgundy) m. Reginlind of Zürich — and their daughters: BERTA — m. (1) RUDOLF II, KING OF UPPER BURGUNDY (2) HUGH, KING OF ITALY (d. 947) — and HICHA (c. 905–950) — m. WERNER V, the Salian progenitor — "whose son was Conrad, Duke of Lorraine" — so the Salian imperial line itself runs through the Hunfriding duke's daughter. The floor: Adalbert II of Thurgau, father of the executed duke.

ROYAL-LINES PROGRAM — MISSION 9: EGISHEIM, THE METZ COUNTS, AND THE BYZANTINE ARISTOCRACY, DOCUMENTED (28 Sept 2026):

- EGISHEIM-DAGSBURG (Pope Leo IX's house): BRUNO = POPE ST. LEO IX (21 June 1002 – 19 Apr. 1054; pope 1049–54; canonized 1082) — the great reformer, Hildebrand's patron — youngest son of COUNT HUGH IV OF NORDGAU & HEDWIG OF DAGSBURG — and HUGH WAS A FIRST COUSIN OF CONRAD II, the Salian emperor — the Egisheim family tied to the imperial web from birth. His niece Hildegard m. Frederick of Büren — the Hohenstaufen progenitor (Mission 7). The Nordgau counts descend from Eberhard IV of Nordgau (d. 972) — the ETIHONID line, the family's own deepest house — and the pope's pontificate ended in the act that named an age: the Great Schism of 1054, his legates placing the bull of excommunication on the altar of Hagia Sophia while he lay dying.
- THE METZ COUNTS (Conrad II's mother's house): the DOCUMENTED floor is the sibling group — GERARD of Metz, ADALBERT of Metz, and ADELAIDE (d. 19 May 1040/46) — m. Henry of Speyer, mother of Emperor Conrad II — and the controversy is logged honestly: Hlawitschka's thesis (the Matfrids of the 9th c. + the Gerardides of the 10th c., probable kin to the GERARDIDES OF PARIS — the Beggo family) "meets with the most support," while the Etichonid link recedes — with one intriguing flag: Adelaide is carried in some sources as "of Egisheim, d'Alsace" — the ETIHONID Nordgau — which would make Conrad II's mother an Etichonid. Adelaide's second marriage produced Gebhard III, Bishop of Regensburg (the Babenberg link).

- THE BYZANTINE ARISTOCRACY (Theophanu's lines): the Skleroi — Bardas Skleros (915–991), the great rebel, brother-in-law of Tzimiskes — through his mother GREGORIA, kin to the MACEDONIAN DYNASTY (granddaughter of Basil I's brother Bardas) — and the Phokai: THEOPHANU'S MOTHER SOPHIA PHOKAINA, daughter of Kouropalates Leo Phokas (brother of Emperor Nikephoros II) — with the Phokas floor the scholarship states plainly: "The first-attested member was a soldier, probably of humble origin, appointed tourmarches in 872" — the Arab and Roman descent-fantasies (the Fabii, the Tarsiote slave mother) rejected as the genealogical flattery they were. Theophanu's ancestry thus reaches 872 — the Byzantine floor — on both sides: the Macedonian-dynasty kin through the Skleroi, the soldier of Cappadocia through the Phokai.

ROYAL-LINES PROGRAM — MISSION 10: FLANDERS AND THE ARDENNES-VERDUN, DOCUMENTED (28 Sept 2026) [S/A — the Henry Project's definitive Baldwin page; the FMG FLANDERS; Wikipedia House of Ardenne–Verdun; the Henry Project's Ricuin page]:

• FLANDERS — the Audacer floor, the legend rejected: BALDWIN I "IRON-ARM" (d. 879), first count of Flanders — the Annales Blandiniensis: "Baldwinus filius Audacri obiit." His father AUDACER (ODACRE) — "it seems likely that the name can be accepted, although Audacer's supposed ancestors must be rejected" — and the REAL floor is Audacer himself, a count and missus OF CHARLEMAGNE: the Annales Laurissenses name "Grahamannus et Audacrus" as royal missi at the third Bavarian-Avar battle in 788, and a list of Saxons in Ostphalia, January/February 802, records "Vulferi filium Sieri habuit Audracus comis." — THE FLANDERS FLOOR IS A DOCUMENTED OFFICIAL OF CHARLEMAGNE'S, fl. 788–802. The Lidéric-Ingelram "forester" genealogy — "the alleged descent of Baldwin I from them must be discarded" (though the two men were real) — rejected. And the kin-braids: BALDWIN II OF FLANDERS MARRIED ÆLFTHRYTH, DAUGHTER OF ALFRED THE GREAT (Witger: "Ex qua genuit filium… Balduinum") — the Wessex blood in Flanders; Baldwin's daughter Guinidilda m. Wilfred the Hairy of Barcelona — the Flanders-Catalonia link. The Flanders counts, through Matilda of Flanders, became the ancestors of the present British Crown.

• THE ARDENNES-VERDUN — a Carolingian foundation and a Crusader king: the dynasty descends from WIGERIC, COUNT PALATINE OF LOTHARINGIA, m. CUNIGUNDA OF FRANCE — GRANDDAUGHTER OF KING LOUIS THE STAMMERER — their sons Frederick I (Duke of Upper Lorraine), Adalbero (Bishop of Metz), GOZLIN (Count of Bidgau — the dynasty's ancestor), and SIEGFRIED — FIRST COUNT OF LUXEMBOURG 963, founder of the Elder House of Luxembourg — the present Grand Ducal dynasty. Gozlin m. Oda of Metz — daughter of Count Gerhard I of Metz and NIECE OF HENRY THE FOWLER — their son GODFREY "THE CAPTIVE" (d. 1002) — count of Bidgau 959, Verdun 963, Hainaut 974 — brother of ADALBERON, ARCHBISHOP OF REIMS, WHO CROWNED HUGH CAPET — captured four times, released by Hugh Capet himself in 987 — m. 963 MATILDA OF SAXONY, daughter of HERMANN BILLUNG, Duke of Saxony, widow of Baldwin III of Flanders — their sons: the dukes of Lorraine, Frederick = POPE STEPHEN IX, and — through Godfrey the Hunchback. ODFREY OF BOUILLON, KING OF JERUSALEM, the Crusader — the last of the dynasty to hold the duchy — the Bouillon castle sold to finance the First Crusade, the dynasty's patrimony becoming the Crusader Kingdom of Jerusalem. *The Verdun-count thread's middle generation — RICUIN (RICHWIN), Count of Verdun before 895–923, Duke (?) — was killed in his sickbed in 923 by Boso, son of Richard of Burgundy, per Flodoard — the Remiremont Liber Memorialis recording "Riquinus dux obiit" on 15 November.*

ROYAL-LINES PROGRAM — MISSION 11: AUVERGNE AND THE BELLONID CATALANS, DOCUMENTED (28 Sept 2026):

- AUVERGNE — the son-in-law of a king: GERARD, COUNT OF AUVERGNE 839–841 — d. 25 June 841 at the Battle of Fontenoy, fighting for Lothair I — and JANET NELSON — the premier historian of the period — states: "Gerard is known to have been son-in-law of PEPIN I, KING OF AQUITAINE, though the name of his wife has not been found." — the McKitterick version making his wife a granddaughter of Louis the Pious — i.e., the same daughter of Pepin I. IF carried, RANULF I OF POITOU — the user's direct ancestor — was the GRANDSON OF A CAROLINGIAN KING. The flag kept: Settipani's chronology objection (a grandson of Pepin I born by 838 strains the documented countship of 835–839) — carried at the FMG's grade. The Auvergne comital line itself runs documented: Warin I (818–c. 820) → Warin II → Gerard → William I (841–846) → Bernard I (846–868) → Bernard II "Plantapilosa" (864–886) — son of BERNARD OF SEPTIMANIA and DHUODA, whose Liber Manualis (843) is the only surviving book by a Carolingian woman, written for her son — → William I "the Pious" (duke of Aquitaine).

- THE BELLONID CATALANS — the maker of hereditary Catalonia: BELLÓ, COUNT OF CARCASSONNE (d. 812, under Charlemagne) — the documented floor — his son-in-law SUNIFRED I OF BARCELONA (fl. 844–848) — and his son WILFRED THE HAIRY (d. 11 Aug. 897), Count of Barcelona 878 — "the last count appointed by the French king and the first to pass his holdings to his sons" — the man who made the counties hereditary and, in the doing, founded Catalonia. *Corrections the sources themselves demanded: the Gesta Comitum's claim that Wilfred's wife Guinidilda was a daughter of Baldwin I of Flanders — the Flanders-Catalonia link this file once repeated — is flagged by Wikipedia as "considered unreliable about this matter," the contemporary charters naming a Sunifred as her father; and the legend of Wilfred of Arriaount — the murdered father, the four bloody fingers tracing the Catalan flag — is legend. The line runs forward through Wilfred II Borrell to the House of Barcelona and the Crown of Aragon. The Zürich counts (Reginlind's house) remain open — the only queued thread still unwoven.*

ROYAL-LINES PROGRAM — MISSION 12: THE ZÜRICH COUNTS CLOSED, AND BERENGAR OF TOULOUSE IN HIS OWN CHRONICLE (28 Sept 2026) [S/A — FMG MedLands SWABIA/SWITZERLAND; FMG TOULOUSE; the Henry Project]:

- THE ZÜRICH COUNTS — THE LAST OPEN THREAD, CLOSED: EBERHARD I, GRAF IM ZÜRICHGAU (living after 27 June 889) — the 27 June 889 charter's dating clause: "sub dominatione Eberharti comitis et advocati sui Adalberti." His probable daughter REGELIND ([885/90] – Insel Ufenau, 958, after 29 April) — the FMG's exact grade: "Reginlind's mother's identity is confirmed… but direct proof that Graf Eberhard I was her father has not yet been found" — wife of (1) BURKHARD II, DUKE OF SWABIA (murdered at Novara 28/29 April 926) and (2) HERMANN I, DUKE OF SWABIA (d. 10 Dec. 949); mother of Gisela (Abbess of Waldkirch), HICHA (m. Werner V — the Salian progenitor), Burchard III (Duke of Swabia), Bertha (m. Rudolf II, King of Burgundy), Adalric (the holy monk of Einsiedeln) — AND SHE IS VENERATED: ST. REGELINDA OF ZÜRICH, FEAST 8 OR 16 AUGUST — the Salian progenitor's mother-in-law is a saint. The countship passed to LIUTO (d. after 16 May 960), her kinsman. And the same FMG page carries the 903 charter of the ETIHONID counts — Luitfrid and his brother Hugh confirming their father Otpert's foundation, with "filiis meis Hunfrido (in Norgauwe), Luitfrido (in Sungawa), Hugone (in Eginsheim)" — the Etichonid sons Hunfrid of the Nordgau, Luitfrid of the Sundgau, and Hugh of Egisheim — the family's own deepest house, in the primary record, feeding the Egisheim popes.

- BERENGAR OF TOULOUSE — THEGAN'S MANUSCRIPT SPEAKS: BERENGAR ([790/95] – killed in battle 836/37) — Thegan's Vita Hludowici Imperatoris (the original manuscript): "Beringarii, Hunroci quondam comitis filii" — "Beringar, son of the former count Hunroch" — Count of Toulouse 814–835, Duke of Septimania 832, missus dominicus of Louis the Pious over six counties and four bishoprics, the emperor's "propinquus" — killed in battle, Thegram mourning "Berengarius dux fidelius et sapiens." The user's Unruoching kin — with the FMG's rejection attached: "No indication has yet been found of any possible Carolingian ancestry of either of Berengar's parents" — the Unruochings' royal claims die here, in the primary-source record.
- THE ORLÉANS-BLOIS SIBLING GROUP: EUDES, COUNT OF ORLÉANS (killed in battle, June 834 — the Annales Bertiniani and Nithard) and his brother GUILLAUME, COUNT OF BLOIS — parents unknown — Gosbert's contemporary poem calling Guillaume "Francigenum primo proavis abavisque peralto" — of the very highest Frankish descent — the Levillain conjecture (a son of Adrian the Udalriching) rejected by the FMG; and the Conradine kinship documented: the brothers Udo, Berengar & Waldo — sons of Gebhard of Lahngau (Mission 8's founder) — expelled from Germany 861, kin of Adalhard, uncle of Queen Ermentrude ("Adalardo Yrmintrudis reginæ avunculo… propinquo" — Annales Bertiniani).

What remains for the final citation: the equation James Hawkes b. 1752 (the 1887 chart) = James Hawks m. Olive Willias 1776 (the record) — closers: the 1790/1800 Petersham census (James Hawks's household), the 1887 chart's detail on James's marriage, and the WikiTree profile update (James & Olive attached as Edmund's parents — which the user can enter directly).

- THE FAMILY'S OWN GENEALOGY DOCUMENT — typed copy of Nathan M. Hawks, "Gleanings Relative to the Family of Adam Hawks," Essex Institute Historical Collections 24 (1887), saved with the Bible [family-archive primary; the underlying article from the original Lynn records, A/S-grade]:

- The Allerton descent as the family's own printed tradition (1887): "The descendants of this John Hawkes can trace their ancestry to the immortal compact signed in the cabin of the Mayflower. The wife of John was Rebecca, daughter of Moses Maverick, the founder and for many years the only magistrate of Marblehead. The wife of Moses Maverick was the daughter of Isaac Allerton, who was one of the Mayflower passengers and was Lieutenant Governor of Plymouth Colony…"

- The martyr tradition, also in print (1887): "…their blood mingled with that of the successors of Thomas Hawkes, who was burned at the stake in the reign of 'Bloody Queen Mary,' for his faithfulness to his religious principles, and made a race fit to struggle for a new world."

- The immigrant's probate, transcribed from the original records: Adam Hawkes, d. 1671 — inventory taken 18 March 1671/72, totaling £817 11s (two muskets and two fowling pieces; three swords, a watch-bill, a pistol and a drum; "a bible and other books"; four oxen; seven cows; two horses; sixteen swine; the dwelling house and barn; bees; tobacco; five hundred and thirty acres); and the Articles of Agreement dividing the estate, 27 March 1672 — administrator John Hawks; and the clause naming "Moses Hawks, his son, which he had by Rebeckah Hawks, daughter of Mr. Moses Mavericke," with the line "this aforesaid gift is the legacy of Mr. Adam Hawks to his grandchild Moses Hawks" — witnesses Sarah Hawks, Moses Mavericke, John Hawks; approved in court.

- The relics recorded: the first house's chimney brick inscribed 1601, "evidently written in the soft clay with the finger when the brick was made in England," relaid in the fourth chimney by Richard Hawks of the sixth generation; the iron fireback moulded with arms — "concluded to be some coat of arms, perhaps that of the Hawkes family" — "now guarded as an heirloom" (1887 — survival to be asked after); the stone wall built "by John, the son of the first settler, in 1688."

- The chart's footnotes, transcribed in full (the family's own scholarship, warts and all): " Daughter of Moses Maverick, founder of Marblehead." / "+ Children after Moses were by a second wife." — and the Brewster passage, which preserves the era's most famous name-confusion in the family's own hand: "Patience Brewster, daughter of Elder William Brewster, married Isaac Allerton — their daughter married Moses Maverick. (Memoir Plymouth Colony) Baylie's History of New Plymouth, Boston, 1866, says in foot note, page 70, Part 2, Vol. 1, that Patience says Patience married Gov. Prince in 1624, but on page 6 in foot note says Patience Brewster married Isaac Allerton, 'one of the most distinguished among the pilgrims.' Same book, page 131, foot note says: 'On the fifth of August, 1624, Mr. Thomas Prince, who was afterwards governor, was married to Mrs. Patience Brewster.'"* — the document thus carries BOTH the Allerton claim AND Baylie's contradictory footnotes (the Fear/Patience sister-confusion modern scholarship resolved: Fear Brewster married Isaac Allerton; Patience Brewster married Governor Thomas Prence). The 1887 typist was scrupulous even where the sources conflicted — a model this file has tried to follow.

- The chart, 1st–6th generations: Adam Hawkes (d. 1671) → John m. (1) Rebecca Maverick*, (2) Susannah → Moses, b. 1659, m. Margaret Cogswell, d. 1709 (the Allerton-line heir; by the second wife: Adam b. 1664, John, Thomas b. 1673, Mary b. 1675, Ebenezer) → 4th: Moses b. 1699, Margaret b. 1700, Adam b. 1702, John b. 1705 m. Susannah Townsend, Rebecca b. 1709 → 5th (children of John & Susannah): Moses b. 1730, Mary b. 1732, Susannah b. 1736, Abijah b. 1739, Anna b. 1742, Nathan b. 1745, Lois b. 1747, Daniel b. 1749, James b. 1752 → 6th (detailed only for Nathan m. Sarah Hitchings: Hannah b. 1773, Nathan b. 1775, Daniel b. 1779, Susannah b. 1782, Mary b. 1784, Moses b. 1788, Aaron b. 1791).

- □ What the chart does and does not settle: it documents the family's own line to the Allerton marriage and gives the Society-patriot's birth year (Daniel b. 1749 — the Mayflower Society's Daniel Hawkes was born at Lynn, 20 Oct 1749), but it differs from the Society on Daniel's parents (chart: John & Susannah Townsend; Society: Moses & Susanna Hichins — flagged) and it does not detail Judge Edmund's branch (the chart follows contributor Nathan M. Hawks's own line; Moses's death is given as 1709 vs. 1741 elsewhere — flagged). Judge Edmund (b. Oct. 9, 1780) remains one document from closure: the Petersham vital record.

- The Hawkes family Bible (physical description): a thick (4–5 inch) family Bible; the names remembered in it are Hawkes names (further contents unconfirmed — see ledger). Physically, a Bible of that bulk is almost certainly a mid-19th-century subscription "illustrated family Bible" (c. 1840–1890, c. 1,200–1,800 pages plus plates, printed family-register leaves between the Testaments — the pages where family births/marriages/deaths were recorded). Likely publishers of that format: D. Fanshaw (NY), E.H. Butler & Co. (Philadelphia), A.S. Barnes (NY), William Collins (c. 1860), George Virtue, later H.J. Smith (Chicago). The user recalls that the Tower of Babel plate folds out and is in color (unconfirmed). This is now diagnostic to the plate level: the standard Tower of Babel engraving of the era is the Kinnersley plate — "Tower of Babel. Published by T. Kinnersly, Jan. 30, 1818" — documented as bound into (1) the Brightly & Kinnersley Most Superb Folio and Self-Interpreting Bible (New York, 1813; plates 1812–1818; issued in 162 monthly parts; tall thick folio), (2) Kinnersley's 1822 stereotyped edition (the first stereotyped Bible printed in the US), and (3) the Isaac Collins-lineage quartos — including a printing sold at Auburn and Buffalo, NY (John E. Beardsley, 1820s–30s), squarely in the family's western-New-York corridor.

The plate's own publication line (bottom margin) identifies it from one photograph. A hand-colored Babel frontispiece is documented in the thick quartos of the Isaac Collins stereotype lineage (Trenton 1791; reprinted by Holbrook at Brattleborough VT 1816/1817/1821, Andrus at Hartford, Carey at Philadelphia — the standard American family Bible of 1810–1840, often "with Canne's Marginal Notes" and Brown's Concordance), while steel-engraved Babel plates sit among the 20–40 plates of the mid-century illustrated family Bibles (Fanshaw/Butler/Virtue; the 1867 Virtue, Yorkston & Co. Devotional Family Bible is a documented example). A Collins-lineage quarto would fit the family's Massachusetts years (acquired before the Petersham→Oswego migration); a cloth-bound illustrated Bible fits an Oswego purchase of 1845–1875. Edition identification requires only two photographs: the title page and the frontispiece/plate list; dating tells: steel engravings → 1840s–60s, Doré-style illustrations → 1866+, color plates → 1870s+. Capture protocol: title page → every family-register page (straight-on, both sides; note changes of handwriting) → all flyleaf inscriptions ("Presented to…" entries often name the parent-to-child hand-off) → frontispiece and plate list → covers/spine under angled light. If the Bible's Moses Hawkes matches Moses Hawks b. 1779, Petersham (Daniel Hawkes 1749's documented son), the artifact itself closes the Allerton line.

13A. Deep-Dive Pass — 28 September 2026 (runs 12+): The Willis–Hayward–Hitchings Cluster

(How to read a deep-dive entry: every statement carries its evidence grade, defined in §0 — [S] primary record, [A] published authority, [PR] peer-reviewed, [B] compiled/tree, [NA] unverified, [user-primary] supplied by the family. □ or 'flagged' marks a live conflict the research has not resolved; 'logged, not adopted' means the claim is recorded but carries no weight. Dates run 28–30 September 2026 unless stated.)

(Research pass: the maternal side of the Hawkes proof — the family of Olive Willis, wife of James Hawks — taken from a two-name lead to its immigrant walls. Every statement below is graded. Nothing here removes or supersedes §13; it extends it.)

13A.1 The Willis line — confirmed end to end, and a clan intermarriage discovered

Silas Willis & Sarah Hayward — confirmed at [A] by Mitchell's History of Bridgewater itself (family register No. 28), read in full on 28 September 2026: "Silas (s. of Joshua 13.) m. Sarah, D. of Josiah Hayward, and had Sarah 1746, Silas 1748, Adam 1750, Edmund 1753, Olive 1756, Hannah 1758, Betty 1761, Abraham 1764. This family all removed from town." [A — Mitchell, 1840]

Mitchell's entry names Sarah's parentage directly and gives the complete sibling set — Sarah (1746), Silas Jr. (1748, matching the FamilySearch record), Adam (1750), Edmund (1753 — the judge's namesake, matching the file's 'Edmund Willis b. June 24, 1753'), Olive (1756), Hannah (1758), Betty (1761 — matching Betty m. Moses Hawks, 1787), Abraham (1764) — and records the family's removal from town, the start of the Worcester County/Hardwick trail. The Washburn family genealogy (compiled from Bridgewater vital records, deeds, and Josiah Hayward's probated will) (compiled from Bridgewater vital records, deeds, and Josiah Hayward's probated will) states: "Sarah⁵ Hayward, born on 3 Nov. 1724 in Bridgewater, married Silas⁴ Willis, son of Joshua³ and Experience (Barbour) Willis, of Bridgewater. He was a grandson of Comfort² Willis, of the same town. They supposedly moved out of Bridgewater, probably to Worcester Co., MA, as most of his children were married in New Braintree or Hardwick." [A — VR-sourced compilation, independent of Mitchell]

Two independent sources thus agree on the marriage and the removal — and the Hardwick/New-Braintree trail explains, in documentary sources for the first time, how the Willis family appears in Hardwick, where James Hawks married Olive Willis in 1776.

The chain, every link graded:

The intermarriage (new finding): Mitchell's Willis entry names Dea. John Willis's children as "John, Nathaniel, Joseph, Comfort, Benjamin, Hannah, wife of Nath'l Hayward, Elizabeth m. a Harvey, Sarah wife of John Ames" [A]. Hannah Willis, wife of Nathaniel Hayward, was Dea. John Willis's own daughter. Therefore Olive Willis's parents were kin: Dea. John is Silas's great-grandfather (John → Comfort → Joshua → Silas) and Sarah Hayward's great-great-grandfather (John → Hannah → Nathaniel Jr. → Josiah → Sarah) — second cousins once removed. The user descends from Deacon John Willis twice, through both his son Comfort and his daughter Hannah. This is the same four-family marriage web the file has documented among the Hawkes–Duntons (Hannibal 1815), the Willis–Hawleys, and now three Willis–Hayward unions across two generations (James & Olive 1776; Moses & Betty 1787; Mercy & Isaac 1807).

Corroborations: Silas Willis Jr. (Olive's brother), b. July 28, 1748, Bridgewater, m. Ruth Wright, Nov. 29, 1778, Hardwick — his record names his mother Sarah Hayward [FS]. The Cullen family ahnentafel independently gives the identical chain (Silas s/o Joshua & Experience Barbour, grandson of Comfort) and the three sibling marriages the file identified: Olive (m. James Hawkes 1776), Edmund (b. June 24, 1753, m. Mercy Fuller 1777 — the judge's namesake), and Betty (b. 1761, m. Moses Hawks 1787) [B — tree-grade, now twice corroborated at the generations it covers].

13A.2 The Hayward line — pushed to the immigrant on a PRIMARY passenger record

Thomas Hayward of Aylesford, Kent — tailor. The surviving minister's certificate for the ship Hercules, dated March 14, 1634/5, enrolls: "Thos Hayward of Aylesford in Kent Taylor & Susanna his Wief" with children Thomas, John, Elizabeth, Susan, and Martha [S — Hotten, Original Lists; PR — Anderson, Great Migration 3:288; NEHGR 75:219]. Cambridge grantee 1635; Duxbury by 1638; freeman 1646 (Mitchell) — 1647 in the earlier note; discrepancy flagged; original proprietor of Bridgewater; will dated June 29, 1678, inventory March 8, 1680/1, will exhibited to the court June 7, 1681 [A — Mapes]; witness Thomas Hayward Jr., not a legatee [A — Mapes]. Mitchell's own register entry: 'Thomas Hayward came from England in the same vessel with John Ames and settled in Duxbury before 1638… he d. 1681: his will dated 1678: no wife living' [A]. The will mentions lands previously given to son Nathaniel — the line's next generation [S]. Parentage unknown; the Aylesford parish registers do not survive before 1654 — a likely permanent English wall [PR]. New details from the Mapes booklet and Mitchell's town history [A]: Thomas may have preceded the family — Mitchell records 'he had, perhaps, been here as early as 1632, coming with Winslow, in the William and Francis' (a 'Thomas Haeward' is on that 1632 list; the identification is flagged, not adopted). His son Thomas Jr. — the most honored man of the town: Lieutenant 1667, Captain 1692, Magistrate, one of the Governor's Assistants (1690), Justice; 'his death was occasioned by a fall from his horse, 15 Aug. 1698' while on court business. The 1907

Dunham Genealogy's claim of a daughter 'Mehitable' m. Daniel Dunham is rejected per TAG (1954): Daniel Dunham's wife was Hannah, maiden name undetermined. Thomas's wife Susanna's kinship is now documented, her maiden name still unproven — the will of Peter Towne bequeaths to his 'first cousins at Bridgewater' — Nathaniel Howard, Joseph Howard, Elisha Howard, and Mary Mitchell, children of Thomas Hayward and Susanna [PR — GM 7:78; NEHGR 20:370]. The cousinship is proven by the will itself; whether it runs through Susanna as a sister of William Towne, or through Thomas, remains open — 'Towne' remains a flagged hypothesis, now resting on documented cousinship. The will and inventory, at full detail [S]: the will (June 29, 1678) names sons Joseph and Elisha, grandson Joseph, and lands previously given to Nathaniel; witnessed by William Brett Sr. and Thomas Hayward Jr. — Brett's daughter Alice being Joseph Hayward's first wife. The inventory (March 8, 1680/1; £46 11s 9d, no real estate) lists his library — Sheppard 'upon the parable of the ten virgins,' Dod 'upon the Commandements,' Cooper's 'Jacobs wrestling with God,' Byfield's 'marrow' — a tailor's Puritan bookshelf. Probated June 7, 1681; he died probably February 1680/1. King Philip's War, in Comfort Willis's own manuscript [A]: the skirmish narrative names John Willis — Dea. John's son — and his brother-in-law Nathaniel Hayward among the Bridgewater men who, with Capt. Church, 'fought with them, and took seventeen of them alive' — the in-laws side by side, more than a decade after the 1664 marriage. The Sandwich question — CORRECTED (29 September dive), two Sandwiches kept distinct: the Hercules was 'of Sandwich, John Witherly, Master' — her home port Sandwich, Kent (Mapes, citing the Sandwich records). But the 'Sandwich, whence he came' of the 1656 Bridgewater record is Sandwich, MASSACHUSETTS (Barnstable County, Plymouth Colony): brother Nathaniel Willis was constable there in 1640–41 before removing to Duxbury (WikiTree PGM profile Willis-93) — NOT Sandwich, Kent. The earlier 'Kent–Sandwich orbit' framing is corrected accordingly. What stands: the ship's Kent port (Thomas Hayward of Aylesford, Kent, sailed in her), and John Ames of the same vessel, whose descendants intermarried the Willises for generations. Flagged collateral note: Thomas Hayward is a documented presidential ancestor (Taft) through other Bridgewater branches — kin by shared immigrant only, logged, not adopted.

The descent to Olive's mother — verified verbatim against Mitchell's Hayward register (pp. 181–190, located via a second transcription on this pass): No. 3: 'Nathaniel (s. of Thomas 1.) m. Hannah, D. of Dea. John Willis, and had Nathaniel 1664, John, Thomas, Samuel, Benjamin, Elisha, Patience' [A]; the marriage also in Torrey: 'HAYWARD, Nathaniel (ca. 1640–) & Hannah [WILLIS], dau. John; by 1664; Bridgewater' [A — New England Marriages to 1700, 2:731]. No. 7: 'Nathaniel (s. of Nathaniel 3.) lived in E.B. (at Joppa): his wife Elizabeth, had Josiah 1688, Nathaniel 1690, Isaac 1691, Hannah 1694, Sarah 1696, Elizabeth 1698, Timothy 1700, Mercy 1702, Mary 1705, Susanna 1707, Bethiah 1711: his will 1734' [A]. No. 20: '*Josiah (s. of Nathaniel 7.) m. Sarah, D. of Samuel Kinsley, 1715, and had Josiah 1717, Nathan 1720, Abraham 1722, Sarah 1724, Martha 1727. He then m. Sarah, wid. of Theodosius Moore and D. of John Prior, 1738… he d. 1764. — Sarah m. Silas Willis a. 1745' [A] — Mitchell records the marriage in both registers. Josiah's will (1759, proved 1764) names 'sons Josiah and Nathan Hayward, and daughters Sarah Hayward and Hannah Hayward' [A/S via the Washburn compilation's probate citation]. Corrections this verification forces: (1) Sarah Kinsley's parentage — FULLY RESOLVED at [A] (29 September): her father Samuel Kinsley (d. intestate, Dec. 17, 1713, Easton; estate divided 1722 per Bristol County Probate 4:141–147), her mother MARY WASHBURN (b. 1661 – d. Feb. 28, 1740, Easton) — daughter of John Washburn & ELIZABETH MITCHELL (m. 1645), per Mitchell's Washburn register and the probated estate [A]. The 1722 division names the children: Samuel, Benjamin, Hannah (m. Edward Hayward, Esq., 1714), Sarah (m. Josiah Hayward, 19 July 1715 — our line), Mary (m. Thomas Willis, 1716), Susanna, Abigail, Bethiah — three Kinsley sisters marrying Hayward, Hayward, and Willis. The Mitchell line — the pass's major find: Elizabeth Mitchell was the daughter of EXPERIENCE MITCHELL — who came on the ANN in 1623, AFTER LEYDEN — giving the user a second documented Pilgrim-ship line in the direct ancestry: user → … → Mary Hawkes → James Hawks & Olive WILLIS → Silas Willis & Sarah Hayward → Josiah Hayward & Sarah Kinsley → Samuel Kinsley & Mary Washburn → John Washburn & Elizabeth Mitchell → Experience Mitchell (Ann, 1623; at Leyden with the Pilgrims) [A — Mitchell registers + Mayflower Society-grade]. (The Washburn immigrant's English origin — once guessed as Wicken, Cambridgeshire — is now RESOLVED to Bengeworth, Worcestershire, per the 29 September dive; the Bridgewater Washburns are a separate line from the Plymouth John Washburn.) Presidential kin-note [B — published lists]: both Presidents Bush descend from Mary (Washburn) Kinsley — the user's own ancestress and her husband Samuel Kinsley — through a different Kinsley child; the user and both Bushes thus share the ancestors John Washburn Jr. & Elizabeth Mitchell (Cooke's granddaughter). (2) Nathaniel Jr.'s wife's maiden name — Mitchell gives only 'his wife Elizabeth'; the Washburn compilation's Crossman identification is rejected: two independent VR-sourced compilations give her as Elizabeth FOBES, b. Apr. 26, 1657, Bridgewater – d. Dec. 26, 1739, aged 82 — daughter of John Fobes (the Bridgewater immigrant) & Constant Mitchell [B — jskent genealogy, the henryadamsofbraintree Fobes compilation, and the heatonbrown compilation — three independent, all citing the Bridgewater VRs]. The date conflict — RESOLVED in favor of Apr. 26, 1657 – Dec. 26, 1739 (29 September dive): two VR-citing compilations now agree — henryadamsofbraintree (citing the Bridgewater VRs and New England Marriages Prior to 1700, p. 272) and heatonbrown (independently: 'Nathaniel Hayward and Elizabeth Fobes'); the mdhervey variant (Mar. 6, 1657 – September 25, 1737) is the outlier, presumed a tree error, carried as such pending the direct VR read. The two-Elizabeth disambiguation — CONFIRMED [B]: Edward Fobes & Elizabeth Howard's daughter was Elizabeth Fobes b. Mar. 20, 1677 – d. Feb. 12, 1758, m. Joseph Keith, 1694 (the doigsden Howard/Keith records) — a different woman from our Elizabeth (1657–1739); Savage's ghost is fully exorcised. Family detail: her brother Joshua Fobes fell with Capt. Michael Pierce at Pierce's Fight near Attleborough, March 1676 (per Cutter; his '1767' a misprint) [B]. Nathaniel d. July 11, 1734, 'his will 1734' per Mitchell □. The Crossman confusion likely arose from the documented Joseph Hayward jur & Sarah Crossman marriage of September 9, 1703 [A] — a different Hayward branch (Joseph s. of Joseph s. of Thomas 1). Carried as Elizabeth (Fobes) Hayward, Fobes at [B] pending the direct Bridgewater VR read. The Fobes connection braids the web tighter — and is now primary-source confirmed: Mitchell's Fobes register names John Fobes's children as '*John, Edward, Mary, Caleb, William, Joshua, and Elizabeth' [A]; the brother Edward Fobes (1651–1732) married Elizabeth Howard — Mitchell's Howard register: Lt. 'John [Howard] m. Martha, D. of Thos. Hayward,' with daughter 'Elizabeth m. Edward Fobes' [A] — and the 1701 Howard estate agreement survives verbatim: 'This above written is the mutual agreement of the sons, sons-in-law, and daughters of the above-named Lieut. John Howard, late of Bridgewater, deceased… Signed… by Her MARTHA X HOWARD… Edward Fobes, Elizabeth Fobes, Zachaeus Packard in behalf of himself and Sarah his wife, Henry Kingman… and Edward Mitchell as guardian of the children of James Howard, deceased… the above-named parties… came personally before me, the subscriber, Judge of Probate for the County of Plymouth… WILLIAM BRADFORD. Recorded, October 24, 1701' [S]. Edward's wife was thus the granddaughter of the immigrant Thomas Hayward (her mother Martha was his daughter). The Savage conflict — RESOLVED (GM verification, 28 September): Savage's 'Joseph [Hayward]… m. Eliz. d. of Edward Fobes' is a ghost. The Great Migration profile (3:292) gives Joseph Hayward (s. of Thomas 1) three wives: (1) by 1673 Alice Brett — daughter of Elder William Brett, the very man before whom John Fobes made his nuncupative will in 1661 — (2) an unnamed wife whom Mitchell records between Alice and the third, and (3) by 1682/3 Hannah Mitchell (daughter of Experience Mitchell), by whom he had Mary (1685), Thomas (1687), Edward (1689), Hannah (1691), Susanna (1695), Peter (1699), Abigail (1702). No Elizabeth Fobes anywhere in his record; Savage's children list belongs to another branch. (3) The elder Nathaniel was American-born (b. ~1639, Duxbury [PR — GM]) and married Hannah Willis by 1664 [A — Torrey]; Dea. John's will (dated June 15, 1692) calls Hannah 'my eldest daughter Hannah Hayward' [S — PPR 1:169; Gen. Adv. 3:93]. Whether the Kinsley–Washburn line connects to the famous Maine Washburns (McKinley's line per standard compilations) remains flagged, not adopted.

13A.3 The Hitchings line — the pass's best find: a primary will

Daniel Hitchins of Lynn — will dated March 1, 1734/5, recorded April 7, 1735 — names: "my daughter Susanna Hawkes, the wife of Moses Hawkes, one hundred pounds currant payable money of New England" to be paid by son Daniel [S — the will; Essex County probate]. The will also names sons Daniel (eldest), Elkanah, and Timothy, and daughters Elizabeth Haven, Mary Hitchings, Hannah How, and Sarah Giddings; witnesses include Thomas Hawkes [S/B].

This is primary-source confirmation of Susannah Hitchings (b. March 22, 1710/11, Lynn) as the wife of Moses Hawkes — the user's direct ancestress on the MF17:60 chart, previously carried at Society-chart grade alone. Her parents, per the Lynn-VR-sourced Hitchings genealogy [B]: Daniel Hitchings (b. ~1660 – d. Jan.

1734/5, Lynn), the will's testator (styled 'junior' in the 1732 deed while his father, Daniel b. ~1632 d. 1731, lived — the Sr./Jr. designations shifted at the father's death), and Susannah Townsend (m. 1708 — the published Essex Institute abstract reads: 'Daniel Hitchings of Lynn and Susannah Townsend of Maiden*. Dec. 18, 1708*' [A/S — EIHC]; the Lynn-VR-sourced genealogy gives Oct. 19, 1708 — the day discrepancy is flagged, the year secure). The will's witnesses were Joseph Haven, William Taylor, and Thomas Hawkes; the 1732 Hitchings family deed (Essex Deeds 58:236) was witnessed by Thomas and Jonathan Hawkes — the two families bound in paper as in marriage. Flagged kin-note [B]: the testator's step-mother (his father's second wife) was Sarah Cushman, daughter of Thomas Cushman & Mary Allerton — an Allerton granddaughter by marriage into the Hitchings household one generation above the user's ancestress; logged, not adopted as descent.

English line — verified at [A]: the printed transcript of the Cam parish registers (Gloucestershire Parish Registers: Marriages, from the first register book, 1569–1708) records verbatim: 'Gyles HYTCHINGS & Alice TROTMAN — 12 May 1592' [A]. Alice's parentage stands in the same register: 'Thomas TROTMAN & Anne TYNDALL — 13 Apr. 1570' — Thomas Trotman of Stinchcombe and Anne Tyndale, of the Tyndale family long seated beside the Berkeleys of Berkeley Castle; the Trotman–Tyndale–Hitchings clans intermarried at Cam for generations (the register shows the name-cluster throughout 1570–1612) [A]. What the marriages volume does not give is Gyles's own baptism (the register's christenings occupy separate pages) — his parentage remains open, with other HYTCHINGS in the same register (1587–1602: John Turner & Jane HYTCHINGS; William HYTCHINGS; Thomas HYTCHINGS; John HYTCHINGS & Jane Sharpe) marking the clan. Their son Daniel (b. ~1597) was father of the brothers Joseph and Daniel who settled at Lynn [B]. IDENTIFIED — the register is KING'S STANLEY itself (29 September dive) [A — Glos PR vol. 15, archive.org gloucestershirep15phil]: the block containing Raffe Hitchins also holds the Beccotte entries (the King's Stanley family — 'William May & Margarett Beccotte, Jan. 30, 1578') and the register's own gap-note, placing it squarely in the King's Stanley sequence — the same parish as the Parke cluster. So: 'Raffe Hitchins & Alice Maneringe, 25 Nov. 1578,' *King's Stanley — Gyles Hitchings's family IN THE PARKE PARISH. And the same register holds 'Henry Townsend & Jane Howsmaid, 16 Nov. 1585' — a TOWNSEND in the King's Stanley register [A]: the user's three Gloucestershire lines — Hitchings, Townsend, Parke — all appear in the ONE parish register. (This Henry is a different man from Henry of Bracon Ash, who m. Margaret Forthe in London 1590 — flagged; but a Townsend family in the Parke parish is a structural fact.) Raffe is a flagged father-candidate for Gyles or his brothers (Gyles b. ~1562 slightly predates the marriage, so Raffe is more likely a brother or uncle of Gyles's father — the relationship is open). Register-gap warning carried: the vol. 15 transcript itself notes '[A gap here to 1599, though no page is missing]' — Glos registers of this era have real gaps, and Daniel's ~1597 baptism may fall inside one; the Ancestry Gloucestershire collection (which cross-fills from Bishops' Transcripts) remains the route. The vol. 15 register also carries later Hitchings/Hitchens marriages ('William Townsend & Sarah Hitchens, 12 Oct. 1818'; 'James Jordan & Elizabeth Hitchings, 28 Oct. 1771') — the clan's Glos web extends across parishes. The wider Glos Hitchings map (WikiTree index) [B]: North Nibley (Henry b. ~1620; Samuel 1651; Mary, bpt. Aug. 18, 1666 — who married a Carpenter [flagged orbit-note]; Elizabeth ~1648; Johnathon 1657), Bisley (James Giles 1804), Sherston Magna (Giles 1773), Frampton on Severn, Pucklechurch — Hitchings families saturate the Cam–Stinchcombe–North Nibley corridor. THE HITCHINGS ATLAS, THREE COUNTRIES (29–30 September dive) [B — WikiTree's Hitchings/Hitchins indexes]: (1) The Glos map, itemized: North Nibley — Henry Hitchings (b. abt. 1620), Elizabeth (abt. 1648), Samuel (bpt. Nov. 2, 1651), Johnathon (Dec. 6, 1657), and MARY (HITCHINGS) CARPENTER (bpt. Aug. 18, 1666) — the North Nibley cluster includes a Hitchings woman who married a CARPENTER [orbit-note]; Ampney St Peter (William bpt. 1788; Thomas Ritchings 1785; Sarah (Hitchings) TOWNSEND, bpt. bef. July 18, 1790 — a Hitchings–Townsend marriage in Glos!); Siddington; Ampney St Mary; Bisley; Sherston Magna; Frampton on Severn; Pucklechurch; Montpelier. (2) The American thread: Susana (Hitchins) HAWKES, b. Mar. 22, 1711, LYNN, Massachusetts — a Hitchins woman married into the HAWKES family of the user's own ancestral town [flagged orbit-note, weighed at zero — but the name-pair in the name-town is logged]; Hannah (Hitchings) Haven (b. abt. 1661, Lynn). (3) The Welsh line: LEWIS HITCHINGS, b. abt. 1585, of Newton & Anceysdown, BOSHERSTON, PEMBROKESHIRE, Wales — the deepest single Hitchings date the atlas holds, with William (abt. 1610), John (abt. 1635), Edward Francis (abt. 1660) following at Bosherston — a documented Welsh family two generations behind Gyles of Cam. The name's three-country footprint (Glos–Wales–New England) is now mapped, and the Glos–Lynn corridor holds both a Hawkes marriage and the user's own line.

13A.4 Barbour & Townsend — identified, one chart error retired

- Experience Barbour (1684–1762), wife of Joshua Willis — her parentage is OPEN again, a [B]-grade claim rejected at the [A] level: the Geni/FS cluster made her daughter of 'James Barber I & Elizabeth Barbour,' but Mitchell's own Barber register reads: *'James Barber had Mary 1692, Hezekiah 1696, b. here, and there is no further account of the family' [A — Mitchell, family register, archive.org full text] — no Experience among James Barber's recorded children. Her surname (Barbour) is confirmed by Mitchell's Willis entry ('m. Experience Barbour 1707'); her father is unknown, and the name 'Barbour' (vs. 'Barber') in the Willis register suggests the family may have written it with the -our ending. The sibling set around Olive's father stands — and the whole Silas–Sarah family is now VR-grade (29 September) [A — the Washburn genealogy, citing the Bridgewater/Easton VRs]: Sarah⁵ Hayward (b. Nov. 3, 1724, Bridgewater) m. Silas⁴ Willis, son of Joshua & Experience (Barbour) Willis, ca. 1745; their first children — Sarah (b. July 13, 1746), Silas Jr. (b. July 28, 1748 — m. Ruth Wright, Brookfield, 1778 □), Adam (b. Dec. 25, 1750 — m. Anna Finton, New Braintree, 1785) — with Mitchell's Edmund (1753), Olive (1756), Hannah (1758), Betty (1761), Abraham (1764) completing the set. Josiah & Sarah (Kinsley) Hayward, vital data confirmed [A]: Josiah b. Mar. 1, 1688/9, Bridgewater; m. July 19, 1715; their first child unnamed, b. Oct. 26, 1715 – d. Nov. 12, 1715; Sarah d. May 14, 1738, aged 46; Josiah m. (2)

Sarah (Prior) Moore, Oct. 11, 1738; his will (June 14, 1759; proved June 2, 1764) survives in full transcript — names sons Josiah and Nathan, daughters Sarah and Hannah, with the witnesses Thomas Mitchell, Nehemiah Latham, and Arthur Latham [S-form]. A later descendant carried the fossil name Kinsley Hayward (b. 1810). Mitchell's Willis register had Silas's siblings Joshua Jr., Abishai, Joab (b. 1715, m. Martha Bolton) □.

- Townsend — resolved at [B], parents identified, and a correction to this pass's earlier overstatement: Susannah Townsend, wife of Daniel Hitchings (m. Oct. 19, 1708 — the marriage recorded in the Essex Institute Historical Collections Lynn abstracts [A/S]), was daughter of Thomas Townsend (b. ca. 1636 – d. before July 22, 1700, Lynn) & Mary Davis (b. May 5, 1646, Watertown, baptized Boston First Church, May 31, 1646 — daughter of Samuel Davis & Ann Norcross), married ca. 1664 [B — the compiled Townsend register, consistent with the Lynn-VR-sourced Hitchings genealogy]. Susannah was born at Boston Nov. 5, 1672, died at Lynn May 12, 1737 [B]. The English Townsend line — now documented to 1568 (29 September dive): Susannah's grandfather was Thomas Townsend (bapt. Jan. 8, 1594/5, Bracon Ash, Norfolk – d. Dec. 22, 1677, Lynn, MA, aged 83; husbandman; Puritan) — the IMMIGRANT, son of Henry Townsend Esq. (bapt. May 31, 1568, Bracon Ash, Norfolk – d. Aug. 22, 1625, Gedding, Suffolk, aged 57) & Margaret FORTHE (m. at St. John Zacharies, London, Nov. 5, 1590, by Rev. Ambrose Golden) [B — WikiTree Townsend-134; the Sam Behling rootsweb register; FS; the Bracon Ash baptisms, the London marriage, and the Gedding burial are parish-register grade cites pending direct reads]. Henry married (2) Anne Calthorpe. The immigrant's siblings: Robert and Elizabeth [B]. The Raynham Townshends — the public line behind Sir Robert, graded (29 September dive): the Townshend family seat, Raynham Hall, Norfolk (raynham.co.uk: 'nearly 900 years at Raynham' — the estate tradition; the documentary record per Archives Hub runs from the early sixteenth century, when the family acquired some twenty manors at the Dissolution): Sir Roger Townshend (c. 1478–1551, Kt.), who commissioned the present Hall early in the 17th century; his younger brother Sir Horatio Townshend, 1st Viscount Townshend of Raynham (1682); Charles 'Turnip' Townshend, 2nd Viscount (1674–1738) — the Agricultural Revolution, the Townshend Acts that triggered the American Revolution; Thomas Townshend, Lord Sydney — for whom the city of Sydney is named; the Marquises Townshend to the present. The Raynham line, documented deep (29 September dive) [A — DNB/ODNB/History of Parliament]: the Townshends 'settled in Norfolk as sheep-farmers in the mid-fourteenth century' (HoP) — the documented floor stands at c. 1350; John Townshend of Raynham (d. 1465), 'a prosperous yeoman farmer' (ODNB) m. Joan, daughter and heiress of Sir Robert Lunsford of Romford; their son Sir Roger Townshend (c. 1430–1493), justice of Common Pleas, 'founder of the Townshend family' (DNB) — his will survives ('My body to be buried in the Chapel of St. Katherine, in the Church of St. Mary of Raynham…', 14 Aug. 1493); his son Sir Roger Townshend of Raynham (d. 25 Nov.

1551) m. Amy/Anne de Brewse (d. 25 July 1551, daughter of William de Brewse of Wenham Hall); and among his children, recorded in the Visitation pedigrees, Thomas Townshend of TESTERTON (d. before 21 Nov. 1573) — the Testerton cadet. THE STRUCTURAL FIND: the user's tree (Townsend-135) already carried Testerton, Norfolk ancestors behind Henry of Bracon Ash — Thomas Townshend of Testerton is now the prime documented candidate for the user's Townsend line [B — claim-to-test, upgraded from guess to named candidate]. Behind John (d. 1465), the Visitations print Lodowic 'de Towneshend' m. Elizabeth de Haywell → Walter m. Matilda de Scogan → Roger m. Katherine Adtherton → Thomas m. Elianora Payne [NA — Visitation-grade, unverified]. Later color (all [A-HoP]): Sir John Townshend (d. 1603, killed in a duel); Lady Jane (Stanhope) Berkeley, the remarkable grandmother who bought the wardship for £4,000; the 1st Viscount, 'Turnip' Townshend, Lord Sydney. The name's floor, documented (29 September dive) [A/B — the Hundred Rolls and Bardsley]: Townsend/Townshend is a topographic name — 'dweller at the town's end' (Old English tún + ende) — first recorded as 'Geoffrey de le Tuneshende,' Norfolk, 1273 (Hundred Rolls); 'traced to the year 1377, in gentle degree at Snoring Magna' (Great Snoring, Norfolk); 'in 1398, John Townshend settled at Raynham, which according to some accounts accrued to them by the heiress of Havile' — the estate's founding purchase-marriage. Leland's famous verdict on the family's rise: the grandfather of the then-head 'was a mean man of substance' — the Townshends were upward-mobile yeomen, not ancient gentry, and the file says so. The honest floor: the name records from 1273; the family's gentle floor from 1377–1398; no medieval ancestry behind Lodowic's generation beyond the unverified Visitation pedigree.

Convergence flagged (weighed at zero): a Townshend daughter (Catherine) married John Anguishe of South Raynham & Foulsham — the same Foulsham where the user's Poppy manors lay; the two Norfolk threads touch at Foulsham, logged as geography, not kinship. Name-correction logged: the tree material's 'Sir Robert Townshend' of the 1555 heirship is carried against the documented Sir Roger (d. 1551) — the Bracon Ash heirship's exact referent is flagged [B].

The Forthe thread — a Winthrop connection by marriage (flagged): Margaret Forthe, daughter of Robert Forthe, was per the compiled sources a cousin of Mary Forthe, first wife of Governor John Winthrop of Massachusetts [B — the Winthrop marriage itself is documented; the cousinship is compilation-carried, queued]. Henry's own parents: Thomas Townsend of Bracon Ash (d. 1591) & Alice (Poppy) — the POPPY heiress of the manors of Foulsham: the 1555 inquisition naming Henry's father heir, '22 years of age and more,' 'seized of the Manors of Sutton, Swanson and Folsham in Folsham, which came to him via his mother, Lady Alice (Poppy) Townsend' [B — tree-carried with an IPM citation; the inquisition is queued]. The generation behind Henry — now documented with the heirship detail [B — WikiTree Townsend-135, citing the inquisition]: Henry's father Thomas Townsend of Bracon Ash (b. ~1535 – d. ~1591) 'was found to be the heir of Sir Robert Townshend... at that time 22 years of age, and was seized of the manor of Suton, Swanton and Folsham, in Folsham, with Foxley manor in Twyford, which came to him by Alice his mother, daughter and heir of Robert Poppy, Esq.' — confirming the Poppy heiress and adding the Twyford manor. The elder line behind Sir Robert Townshend is the Townshend family of Raynham, Norfolk — the Marquises Townshend of Raynham Hall — covered by the 1909 compiled history Townsend–Townshend, 1066–1909 [A — archive.org full text], the route to the medieval line. Flagged orbit-note: 'Thomas, eldest son of Sir Robert, in 25th Henry presented the advowson of the church of Twyford, and in 35th Henry he passed this manor to Rowland Hayward' — the Elizabethan Lord Mayor of London; a manor-changing-hands note, not a kinship claim. Behind Henry's mother Alice Poppy stand the Poppys and the Fothes of Digswell [B]. The emigration question resolved in structure: the immigrant Thomas was baptized in Norfolk in 1594/5 and died in Lynn in 1677 — the file's old 'Thomas Townsend of Lynn, 1634' note is fully retired; the younger Thomas (b. ca. 1636, 'England or Lynn') is the one ambiguity left.

- The Davis parentage — upgraded to [A/S] (evening pass, 28 September): Mary Davis's parents are confirmed in the published record: Samuel Davis (b. ~1606–1615, England — 'of London' — d. at Braintree, between May 2 and July 4, 1672) & Anna Norcross, married at London, Nov. 30, 1631 [A — Rockwell, Davis Families of Early Roxbury and Boston; FS]. The family was at Watertown first (where Mary was born), then Boston: Samuel was admitted to the First Church, Boston, May 31, 1646, 'from Watertown' — Anna on April 17, 1647. Mary's baptism stands in the First Church record itself: '1646 Mary of Samuel Davis aged about 26 days bap.' — i.e., born ~May 5, baptized May 31, 1646 [S-form], exactly matching the compiled register's May 5 date. A sister, Susanna, was born May 4, 1646 [A]. Anna Norcross was a daughter of John Norcross [B — the Norcross line of Watertown/Boston, next pass]. Samuel's own birth year is now given as 'about 1605, near London' (jfredpeterson [NA]), narrowing the earlier 1606/1611/1615 conflict; FS carries 1606, d. July 4, 1672, Boston [A]. The Norcross side, opened [B/A]: Anna was the daughter of John Norcross of London and married Samuel Davis at All Hallows, Bread Street, London, November 30, 1631 [A — the London parish register, via WikiTree/FS]; her uncle Jeremiah Norcross named her 'Ane' in his will [B/A — the will, via the Davis genealogy]. John Norcross's own identity is the next English wall. The sibling marriages of Mary Davis's generation (jfredpeterson [NA — flagged]): Hannah Davis (b. 1627) m. Joseph Griggs, Nov. 8, 1654 — the Griggs family enters the orbit here (Lynn/Saugus Griggs; the 1855 Oswego household's Hannah (Griggs) Wilber is a different, later generation — logged as a possible braid, not adopted); Abigail Davis m. Samuel Townsend, 1659 — a Townsend marriage one generation above Susannah Townsend's; whether this Samuel belongs to the same Lynn Townsend family is flagged; Priscilla m. John Green (1671); Gershom m. Sarah (1678).

- The two-Susannahs problem — ADJUDICATED (evening verification, 28 September 2026), and the 1887 chart's Townsend thread fully retired: several compiled trees (the Cullen ahnentafel; the kristinhall and NYGenWeb compilations) give Moses Hawkes's wife at the Apr. 9, 1730 marriage as

'Susannah Townsend,' while WikiTree and the Society give 'Susannah Hitchings.' The deciding evidence is primary: Daniel Hitchins's will (1735) names 'my daughter Susanna Hawkes, the wife of Moses Hawkes' — Susannah Hitchings was Moses Hawkes's wife by 1735 [S]. The Townsend claim then fails on chronology: the Cullen split places Abijah Hawkes (b. 1739 per the 1887 chart) as the son of a first wife Townsend whose marriage must predate Apr. 9, 1730 — a child born a decade after his parents' marriage ended. The 'Susannah Townsend, wife of Moses Hawkes' of the trees is therefore carried as a tree artifact, born of the 1887 chart's mis-assignment; the residual possibility of an undocumented, childless first marriage is noted and weighed at zero, per collect-don't-adopt. Abijah (b. 1739) stands as a son of Moses & Susannah Hitchings, with the Society chart.

- New detail on the testator's own marriages [B]: Daniel Hitchings (b. ~1660) married first Sarah Boardman, Feb. 16, 1697, Lynn (no children) — only then Susannah Townsend. His son Daniel (b. Oct. 19, 1709, Lynn – d. Apr. 25, 1760) married Hannah Ingalls (daughter of Nathaniel Ingalls & Anne Collins) in June 1735 — the marriage line itself in the published Lynn VR: 'Hannah, and Daniel Hitchings, June [Mar. 30, 1735, int.]' [A — Vital Records of Lynn]. The Ingalls genealogy independently carries it: 'Hannah [Ingalls]... m. 1735, Daniel Hitchings' [A].

13A.5 Record confirmations & discrepancies logged

- Marriage confirmed in the published record: James Hawkes & Olive Willis, March 7, 1776, Hardwick [S — Early Massachusetts Marriages, Worcester County], adjoining the Robinson–Paige entry of April 1776; intentions at Petersham Jan. 27, 1776 [S — Petersham VR]. (One OCR variant of the Worcester volume reads "June 18, 1772" — a misread; logged.)
- Joshua Willis's death: Dec. 25, 1758 (tree/FS) vs. 1759 (Mitchell) — discrepancy flagged.
- Moses Hawkes & Susannah Hitchings's marriage: Feb. 22, 1729 (WikiTree) vs. Apr. 9, 1730 — now corroborated by two independent compiled sources (the Cullen ahnentafel and the Lynn-VR-sourced Hitchings lineage); the 1729 date is presumed erroneous. Their son Moses was born Nov. 24, 1730, seven months after the wedding [B]. Moses (1730) & Mary Raddin's full family, from the compiled record [B]: married Jan. 9, 1755; children Jerusha (b. Nov. 23, 1755), Thomas (b. Nov. 22, 1757), Sarah (b. June 30, 1760), Mary (b. Apr. 27, 1762), Moses (b. May 7, 1764, Lynn – d. Oct. 16, 1802, Rutland, VT; m. Betty Willis, Hardwick, Oct. 11, 1787 — the file's Willis–Hawkes branch, now with birthplace and death data), Benjamin (b. May 20, 1766), William (b. May 10, 1769). Mary Raddin (b. before Mar. 7, 1735/36, Marblehead, dau. of Thomas Raddin & Jerusha Collins) [B]. Daniel Hitchings's death is confirmed as Jan. 15, 1734/5 [B — multiple sources].
- Josiah vs. Joseph Hayward (b. 1688 – d. 1764): Mitchell (No. 20) and the Washburn compilation call him Josiah; the VR-derived jskent genealogy calls him Joseph ('Joseph b. 1688... m. 1715 Sarah Kinsley; d. 1764, aged 76'). Same man; the name discrepancy is flagged (the Bridgewater VR read will settle which form the town recorded).

- Experience Barbour's husband — a source conflict (flagged, unresolved): Mitchell's Willis register, verified verbatim, says 'Joshua (s. of Comfort 5.) m. Experience Barbour 1707'; but the NEHGR twice (vol. 51; vol. 78, 1924) styles a Joshua Willis as 'son of John and Experience (Barbour) Willis' — either the NEHGR articles conflate Joshua with his kinsman John Willis, or Mitchell's 'Comfort' attribution needs testing against the Willis estate records. The vol. 78 line attaches to a Hannah of Bridgewater marrying a Joshua Willis in 1784 — a groom too young to be Silas's brother, so the NEHGR line may even describe the next generation down. Deciders queued: the Bridgewater VR marriage entry and the Willis deeds/probates.
- Olive Willis's birth town: Bridgewater (family cluster) vs. Hardwick (removal context) — unplaced; her birth does not appear in the published Hardwick extracts.
- Dea. John Willis's English origin: the Paul of London, April 1635, "of Chettle, Dorset" lead (§13A sources) returned no confirmation on direct search — remains flagged; next pass: Hotten's lists directly, and the Great Migration treatment if any.

13A.6 The furthest-confirmed map, updated (per line, as of this pass)

(Grades are defined in §0 — [S] primary record through [H] hypothesis. The map answers one question per line: how far back does the documented paper run?)

Townsend	Henry Townsend of Bracon Ash, Norfolk (bapt. 1568 – d. 1625) & Margaret Forthe; immigrant son Thomas (1594/5–1677, Lynn)	[B, register-grade cites pending]; Forthe–Winthrop cousinship flagged
Davis	Samuel Davis (b. ~1605 near London – d. Boston/Braintree, 1672) & Anna Norcross (dau. of John Norcross of London; m. All Hallows, Bread St., 1631)	[A/S]; Norcross grandfather John [B]; uncle Jeremiah's will ('Ane') [B/A]
Fobes	John Fobes/Vobes (cand. bap. Ashleworth, Glos., Mar. 23, 1616/7 [B-flagged] – d. Bridgewater, bef. June 6, 1660 [S]); m. Constant Mitchell of Leyden, sister of Experience Mitchell (Ann, 1623) [A]; indentured to Isaac Allerton [S-form]	parents of Elizabeth Fobes m. Nathaniel Hayward Jr. [B]; cand. grandfather Thomas Vobes (b. ~1570 – bef. 1626) & Dorothy, Ashleworth [B]
Mitchell	EXPERIENCE MITCHELL (at Leyden; Ann, 1623) → Elizabeth Mitchell m. John Washburn (1645) → Mary Washburn m. Samuel Kinsley	[A — second documented Pilgrim-ship line (Ann 1623) in the direct ancestry]
Washburn	MEDIEVAL LINE DOCUMENTED to Sir Roger d'Wasseburne (b. ~1219) via Wichenford, with yDNA bridge; contested Bengeworth link carried with Barnard's caveat — §13A.12. RESOLVED to Bengeworth, Worcestershire: immigrant John Washbourne (b. Aug. 1, 1566, St Peter's, Bengeworth – d. spring 1671), came first ~1631–2; wife Margery Moore & sons John (b. Nov. 26, 1620) & Philip followed on the Elizabeth & Ann, 1635 (the certificate: 'Margerie Washborne 49; Jo: Washborne 14; Phillipp Washborne 11' [S]) — John Jr. m. Elizabeth Mitchell Dec. 6, 1645; their daughter Mary (b. 1661) m. Samuel Kinsley. English line: the Washbournes of Bengeworth (Evesham), Worcs., toward the Wichenford 'Knights Wasseburne' pedigree (1569 Visitations — flagged [B])	[A/S to Bengeworth; medieval pedigree flagged]
Cooke	FRANCIS COOKE (Mayflower, 1620, Compact signer) & Hester le Mahieu → Jane Cooke (Ann, 1623) m. Experience Mitchell	[PR — a second documented Mayflower blood line]
Kinsley/Washburn	Samuel Kinsley & Mary Washburn, Bridgewater	[A — VR-sourced]
Eaton, Fish, Kilmer	unopened or tree-grade only	per §10, §13A.10
Raddin/Collins	Mary Raddin (b. bef. Mar. 7, 1735/36, Marblehead) dau. of Thomas Raddin & Jerusha Collins; cand. immigrant Thaddeus Radden (Marblehead 1674)	[B parents; A-Savage]

Line	Furthest confirmed ancestor	Grade
Parke	Jane Parke Carpenter (grandmother — user-confirmed). Structure now: elder Roger (d. ca. 1690, Hexham) → Dr. Roger (1666–1755) & ?Robinson → William (1711) & Sarah Jewell → [Noah? / Penelope Stout]. English candidates: King's Stanley Glos (the HANNAH thread: Hannah of Preston m. Samuel Parke Sr.; 'Samuel Parke & Hannah Baker' in the parish transcript) / Semer Suffolk / Furness–Cartmel / Allendale–Hexham / Donegal	[user-primary; A-rootedancestry structure]; Jane's parents open
Abbott	William Webster Abbott m. Ella V. Baker, 1880, Hanover/Marshall, Oneida Co.; Sylvester's wife 'C. Louisa'/Louise Webster (flagged)	[A-FS]; son's name (the missing link) open
Atkinson	Emily MACKLIN Atkinson — Swarthmore B.A. 1901, A.M. Penn 1907	[A]; parents open, Macklin lead

Royal and public-figure kin through these newly confirmed lines (precise relationships only): none of the new confirmations adds a blood royal line beyond §8.4 — the Willis, Hayward, and Hitchings immigrants are yeoman stock (tailor, proprietor-farmer, and yeoman respectively). Collateral public-figure connections now documented at flagged grade: President Taft (shared Bridgewater Hayward immigrant — kin by common ancestor Thomas Hayward, several generations removed) and the presidential Washburn/McKinley braid through the Kinsley marriage (flagged, not adopted). The royal gateways remain those of §8.4, reached through the Maverick–Gye marriage.

13A.7 Source-verification pass (evening, 28 September 2026)

Per protocol, every load-bearing quote in §13A was re-read against its source the same evening:

Mitchell's History of Bridgewater, Willis register (transcription, dunhamwilcox.net, bridgewater14.htm) — read in full and verified verbatim. Beyond the entries quoted above, the register documents material no prior pass had found:

- Dea. John Willis's four brothers — Nathaniel, Lawrence, Jonathan, and Francis — proven from estate papers: Elkanah settled his grandfather Nathaniel's estate in 1686; Dea. John assisted; Elkanah settled his uncle Lawrence's Boston estate in 1703, and in 1704 sold land he described as the estate of his uncle Francis Willis, deceased [A]. Brother Nathaniel was likewise an original Bridgewater Proprietor — 'said to have been the first schoolmaster here' — d. before John, estate settled 1686, children Elkanah and Bethiah [A].
- The Sandwich origin: the 1656 Bridgewater record — 'Jonathan Willis, who is at Duxbury for cure, shall not be maintained by Duxbury, but by Sandwich, whence he came' — places the Willis brothers at Sandwich, Kent, before Duxbury/Bridgewater [A]. Sandwich is now the lead English origin for Dea. John Willis, superseding the unverified Paul 1635 / 'Chettle, Dorset' note (which remains flagged).
- Comfort Willis (#5) was a Trooper in King Philip's War and 'left a manuscript, giving an account of one of the skirmishes of that period, which is now unfortunately lost' [A]. His son Judge Samuel Willis (#12) removed to Dartmouth and was Judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Bristol County; another Willis son, Benjamin, 'went to Hardwick' — a Willis-in-Hardwick thread independent of Silas's family [A].
- The register's contemporary strays — including 'Thomas Willis at Lynn, a Representative there 1634, and afterwards a Proprietor of Sandwich 1637' — carry Mitchell's own caveat: 'Whether any of these were of the same family we are not able to ascertain.' The Lynn Thomas Willis is logged as a possible kin-mark, not adopted [A].

- Comfort's sons per Mitchell: Samuel, Joshua, Isaac [A]. The register bristles with further Willis–Hayward intermarriages beyond the direct line: John Willis Esq. m. Patience Hayward (1724); Isaac Willis m. Rebecca, D. of Thomas Hayward (1759); David Whitman m. Susanna, D. of Nathaniel Hayward (1738) [A].

The Fobes and Mitchell registers — read on the accuracy pass [A. tchell, dunhamwilcox bridgewater4/9]: 'John Fobes (from Duxbury) was one of the original proprietors of Bridgewater, where he settled, and d. a. 1661; made his nuncupative will before William Brett and Arthur Harris' — with the will itself surviving verbatim [S]: 'Being with goodman ffobes of Bridgewater lying sicke and expecting his change… to his two sonnes John and Edward his two eldest sonnes sixty acrees of land… one muskett and his sword to his son John; a lesser gun to his son Edward; a yeerling steer to his Daughter Mary; and the Rest to bee Disposed of by his wife; and Desireth his brother Experience Mitchell of Duxburow to bee what help hee could to his wife and Children' — William Britt, Arthur Harris. Two corrections from the PGM deep-read (29 September): (1) the immigrant died before June 6, 1660, at Bridgewater (the court's 'widow Vobes and her husband, late deceased'); the man who 'died at George Allen's in Sandwich' on July 10, 1661 was his eldest son John; (2) the Scottish-aristocrat parentage — 'son of Rev. John Forbes of Alford, Aberdeenshire & Christian Barclay' — is rejected: reputable Forbes genealogies have that John as a colonel in Dutch service dying childless, and Y-DNA of Fobes descendants shows no match with Forbes of Corse

[B-rejected — WikiTree Fobes-257, PGM]. The plausible candidate now: John Vobes, son of Thomas Vobes, baptized at Ashleworth, Gloucestershire, March 23, 1616/7 — orphaned 1628 [B — flagged speculative by the editor; Ashleworth lies in the same Gloucestershire cluster as the Hitchings of Cam — the most exciting open lead in the English lines]. The generation behind the candidate (29 September dive) [B — WikiTree Vobes-1, citing the Ashleworth parish registers]: the candidate's father was Thomas Vobes (b. ~1570 – d. before 1626) & presumptive wife Dorothy — children all baptized at Ashleworth, Gloucestershire, including the John of March 23, 1616/7. The freepages.rootsweb Ashleworth register transcripts (covering 1625–1646) are the direct-read route; the complete Ashleworth register (from 1538) is the next document. The candidate line thus stands four generations from the user — and its patriarch, Thomas Vobes of Ashleworth, was a Gloucestershire contemporary of Gyles Hitchings's own father. 'His wid. Constant, sister of Experience Mitchell, m. John Briggs of Portsmouth R.I. 1662. He had John, Edward, Mary, Caleb, William, Joshua, and Elizabeth.' Experience Mitchell himself came on the Ann*, 1623, after Leyden, and his children married into the Haywards three times: Sarah Mitchell m. John Hayward; Hannah Mitchell m. Joseph Hayward; Edward Mitchell m. Mary Hayward [A].

THE BRAID OF THE PASS — John Fobes's indenture to Isaac Allerton [S-form]: the 1660 Plymouth court record has his widow requesting land 'in respect unto the conditions of an indenture made betwixt Mr. Isaac Allerton and her husband, John Vobes, late deceased' — the indenture itself is documentary (the 1972 book's 'passage payment' gloss is disputed by the PGM editor; the indenture is not). Isaac Allerton is the user's own ninth-great-grandfather through the Hawkes line — the user's ancestor Allerton thus held the indenture of the father of another direct ancestress (Elizabeth Fobes → Nathaniel Hayward Jr. → Josiah → Sarah Kinsley → Silas Willis → Olive → James Hawks → Judge Edmund → ... → user). Master and servant, both ancestors of the same person. Also in the Fobes cousin-lines: son William Fobes married Martha Pabodie, granddaughter of John Alden of the Mayflower — and her predecessor Elizabeth Southworth's will left her 'my next best bed... provided she do not marry William Fobes; but if she do, then to have (only) five shillings' (she did; five shillings it was) [B — color]. The Sandwich disambiguation (corrected 29 September): three different referents kept distinct, per collect-don't-adopt — the immigrant John Fobes died at Bridgewater (before June 6, 1660); his son John died at George Allen's in Sandwich, MA (July 10, 1661); Lt. John Howard is 'reported' born at Sandwich, Kent (~1624, unconfirmed); the Willis brothers' Sandwich is Sandwich, Massachusetts (Nathaniel, constable 1640–41); the Hercules was of Sandwich, Kent. Also RESOLVED: jskent's 'elder Nathaniel d. 1681, aged 41' was a conflation — Dea. John's wife Elizabeth (Hodgkins) Willis died about 1681 [B — WikiTree Hodgkins-4, consistent with the 1692 will's household], while the GM profile (3:292) gives the elder Nathaniel d. after May 28, 1705 [PR].

Dea. John Willis's English origin — the three theories consolidated [B — WikiTree PGM profile Willis-93]: (1) born at Chettle, Dorset, son of Nathaniel Willis (1575 – after 1692), dying in London after 1692; (2) the 'John Willis, age 29' of the ship Paul, Gravesend, April 3, 1635; (3) certified by the minister of St. Katharine-by-the-Tower, London — that register shows 'the christening of Johy Wyllis, 4 Oct. 1601, son of Richard Wyllis'; a Willis family certainly lived by St. Katharine's, and it may be the immigrants' own. Also from the profile: brother Nathaniel Willis, constable at Sandwich, MA, 1640–41; brother Lawrence Willis m. (2), 1656, Mary, daughter of Thomas Makepeace of Boston (a first freeman of Bridgewater; his Boston estate settled 1703). The 1917 Willis Family History — READ (29 September): the full Warwickshire pedigree, with the royal-ancestry chapter. From the Visitation of Warwickshire (1619) and Waters' NEHGR article, the book prints [A]:

1 Richard WILLES of Napton, b. ~1350, m. Jona, dau. & heir of John JEAMES (the Jeames inheritance running through the KEVERELL heiress — Robert Keverell m. Clemence, dau. of Sir Adam of Napton)
2 Thomas Willes of Napton → 3 Richard → 4 Thomas of Priors Marston
5 Richard of FENNY COMPTON, b. ~1468, d. May 1532, m. Joane dau. of Grant of Norbrooke — his WILL survives in print ('I Richard Wyllys of hole mynde...')
6 William of Priors Marston (m. niece of Sir John Clerke) and Richard (m. Hester Chambre of Williams-cot, Oxon.)
7 Ambrose of Fenny Compton, d. Nov. 1590 (m. Agnes dau. of William Coles of Great Preston, Northumberland — GRANDFATHER OF GOV. GEORGE WYLLYS OF CT) and Richard
  (m. dau. of SIR GEORGE BLOUNT, Knt. — the Blounts of Sodington; Sir John Blount m.
  Lady Isabel DE BEAUCHAMP, dau. of William de Beauchamp, 5th Baron Beauchamp and 1st EARL OF WARWICK — the book's own royal-ancestry chapter runs this line to ALFRED THE GREAT and CHARLEMAGNE)
8 Thomas WILLIS of THISTLEWORTH (Isleworth), Middlesex — 'schoolmaster,' b. Fenny Compton 1582, St. John's College, Oxford (matric. 1602 aged 19; B.A. 1606, M.A.
  1609); m. MARY TOMLINS OF GLOUCESTER (another Glos thread); schoolmaster at Thistleworth; to LYNN, MASS., 1630; back to Thistleworth ~1646; d. 1660
  Children: Thomas (D.D., Chaplain in Ordinary to Charles II); HENRY (b. ~1618, Pequot War 1636–7, m. Elizabeth Otis 1642); Mary; Elizabeth (m. Rev. John Knowles → Watertown; inherited the Lynn estate, sold 500 acres to Isaac Hart)

 THE CRITICAL FLAG, IN CAPITALS: this is the pedigree of THOMAS WILLIS OF LYNN (1630) and his Boonton/Powerville, NJ descendants — the 1917 compilers' own family (Thomas Compson Willis; Deborah Farrand; Edwin Ethelbert Willis of Powerville, near Boonton). It is NOT proven — and is not claimed here — to be Dea. John Willis's line; Mitchell's caveat stands ('whether any of these were of the same family we are not able to ascertain'). The medieval Willes material (1350 → Blount → Beauchamp → Alfred/Charlemagne) attaches to the LYNN family and to Gov. George Wyllys of CT — carried at that grade, beside the user's line, not on it. Connection point worth one test: the Hopewell papers' George Willis, 'father-in-law of Emanuel Smith' (1703), sits in the Morris County orbit the Boonton book covers — flagged as the same family-cluster question, next pass.

The Hitchings will — verified verbatim against the full transcript (nutfieldgenealogy, 'Surname Saturday ~ HITCHINGS of Lynn,' 4 Oct. 2014, citing Essex Deeds 58:236) [B-authority]. The §13A.3 quotation is accurate; the witness list (Joseph Haven, William Taylor, Thomas Hawkes) and the 1732 deed witnesses (Thomas and Jonathan Hawkes) are added to the record from this source.

Flagged tension (kept, per protocol): Mitchell's Mitchell-family register (bridgewater10.htm) carries 'Mary perhaps m. Nathaniel Hayward Jr. 1762' — a Nathaniel Hayward Jr. marrying in 1762 cannot be the father of Josiah Hayward (b. 1688/9) and is presumed a later namesake; Josiah's mother Elizabeth Crossman rests on the Washburn compilation [A] and is carried with this flag. RESOLVED later the same day: Mitchell's Hayward register (pp. 181–190) was located and read in a second transcription — the entries are quoted verbatim in §13A.2. Mitchell confirms the chain through Josiah (No. 20) and records the Silas Willis marriage himself; the only element Mitchell does not give is Elizabeth's maiden name ('his wife Elizabeth'), so the Crossman identification remains at [B] with the 1703 orbit note (§13A.2). The same reading widens the documented intermarriage web [A]: John Hayward (s. of Nathaniel 3 & Hannah Willis) m. Sarah, D. of Nathaniel Willis — Dea. John's niece — in 1707; Patience Hayward m. John Willis (1724); Bethiah Hayward m. Thomas Willis (probably 1743); Elizabeth, D. of Dea. John Willis, m. a Harvey (Harvey register No. 1). The Willis–Hayward intermarriages documented in Mitchell's register alone now number at least seven across four generations — the clan structure from which the user's line descends twice.

13A.8 Next-pass targets (queue)

1. Cam, Gloucestershire — the christenings volume — the marriage is verified at [A] ('Gyles HYTCHINGS & Alice TROTMAN, 12 May 1592'); now wanted: Gyles's own baptism and the Daniel b. ~1597 entry (the Hitchings English wall — the oldest dated open lead in the American lines, 1562).
2. Sandwich, Kent — the Willis brothers' documented pre-1637 town; parish registers and proprietor records for Dea. John Willis's origin (supersedes the unverified Paul/Chettle lead, which stays flagged).
3. Mitchell's History of Bridgewater — the remaining unretrieved registers: the Barber/Barbour entry (Experience Barbour's parentage) and the Kinsley register (Sarah Kinsley's mother — the Washburn question). The Hayward register is now read [A]; the dunhamwilcox page URLs 404 on direct fetch but the search engine holds cached copies — alternatively read the 1840 book directly at archive.org (historyofearlyse00mitc).

4. The Townsend line — verify Thomas Townsend & Mary Davis in the published Boston/Lynn/Watertown VRs (upgrade from [B]); Samuel Davis & Ann Norcross of Watertown; the English roots of Henry Townsend (d. 1625) & Margaret Forthe. Also reconcile the Hitchings marriage date: EIHC abstract 'Dec. 18, 1708' vs. the Lynn-VR-sourced 'Oct. 19, 1708.' The 'Susannah Townsend, wife of Moses Hawkes' question is adjudicated (§13A.4) — the Lynn VR full text at archive.org is the route for the final confirmation: grep the marriage volume for every 'Moses Hawkes' entry and the births volume for Abijah's entry, expecting both under Susannah Hitchings or wife-unnamed.

5. The unopened NJ/NY branches — Atkinson (Emily), Fish (Harriet), Parke (grandmother), Abbott (Sylvester), Kilmer (Barbara), Eaton (Polly).

9. The Norcross line — partially opened (§13A.4): Anna = daughter of John Norcross of London, married at All Hallows, Bread Street, 1631 [A]; uncle Jeremiah Norcross's will names her 'Ane' [B/A]. Next: John Norcross's English identity (All Hallows parish registers, London); Jeremiah's will in the original; whether the family connects to the Watertown settler Norcrosses.

21. The Robinson English origin — an honest negative (29 September): no indexed trace of the Crosswicks Robinsons' English home; the next records are the Burlington/Chesterfield Quaker meeting minutes and the Quaker Digests (Cumberland/Northumberland) — the same volume that caught the Parkes' Allendale marriage.

22. JANE PARKE'S PARENTAGE — the primary target — the NJ marriage record of William Atkinson Carpenter & Jane Parke (c. 1953–1956; NJ marriage index); Jane's birth record (b. ~1925–1930, NJ); obituaries.
20. The Parke English reads — Cartmel & Frith parish registers (Allen's 1606 baptism, 1636 marriage); the Visitation of Northumberland 1615 for a Parke pedigree; the test of the 'Sir John' gentry claim (currently unverified, [B/NA]).
18. The Parke deciding read — Ege pp. 188–end direct (full text now located): test the FS Robinson-wife/nine-children profile against Ege's account (six children, no Robinson); confirm Noah Parke Sr. (b. ~1743) as a son of William Parke & Sarah Jewell (Ege p. 204) — the prime candidate for the grandmother's grandfather; split the two Rogers.
19. Ashleworth, Gloucestershire — the complete register — the Vobes baptisms (John, Mar. 23, 1616/7; the siblings); Dorothy Vobes's death (the 1628 orphaning); Thomas Vobes (b. ~1570)'s own parentage.
16. Ashleworth, Gloucestershire — the Vobes family: Thomas Vobes and the children (the 1616/7 baptism of John; the 1628 orphan record); the Ashleworth–Cam distance (~15 miles) makes this the test of the Gloucestershire cluster.
17. The 1909 book's Chapter VI cross-lead — 'James, Son of John 1st. Ancestor of the Westchester Townsends, the Willis Family of Cedar Swamp, and the Hewletts' — a printed Townsend–Willis linkage to test against Dea. John's line (and against §4.4's Amawalk/Yorktown Willis–Carpenter material).

14. The 1909 Townsend–Townshend book — read the English/Raynham chapters for the Bracon Ash branch's documented descent from Sir Robert Townshend's line (and how far the printed pedigree reaches).
15. The Willis test — is Dea. John's Bridgewater family the same stock as Thomas of Lynn (1630)/Boonton? The Kinsley register (Mitchell, not yet retrieved), the Bridgewater proprietors' bonds, and the Boonton book's appendix are the routes. Macklin orbit found (29 September) [B]: WikiTree's Macklin index shows a Camden, NJ cluster (Leon Edward Macklin b. 1927; Olivia b. 1924 — Camden) and an 'Edward ATKINSON Macklin' (b. 1913, Pasadena) — the Atkinson name inside a Macklin family; Emily MACKLIN Atkinson's own parentage remains the open step (Swarthmore matriculation records).
12. The English Townsend — next walls — the Bracon Ash parish registers (direct read); the 1555 inquisition post mortem (the Foulsham manors, Lady Alice Poppy); the Forthe–Winthrop cousinship (Mary Forthe, Gov. Winthrop's first wife — documented marriage; verify the cousinship); the Raynham/Testerton Townsends.
13. Cam, Gloucestershire — the christenings, routes now mapped — Gyles Hitchings's own baptism (the 1562 lead) and Daniel's (b. ~1597); the Phillimore series printed Cam marriages (vol. VIII, archive.org gloucestershirep08phil [A]) — the baptisms survive in the register itself and are reachable three ways: Ancestry's 'Gloucestershire, England, Church of England Baptisms, Marriages and Burials, 1538–1813' collection (Cam parish included); the Gloucestershire Archives (Cam, St George — collection P78); and FamilySearch's Gloucestershire church records. Gyles (~1562) and Daniel (~1597) should both be in the 1538–1644 register. Flagged kin-mark: the Oxford alumni lists record a 'Hitchins, William (or Hychyns) otherwise TYNDALE' — a Hitchins bearing the Tyndale alias a generation before Alice Trotman (granddaughter of Anne Tyndale) married Gyles Hitchings in 1592; suggests the two clans were already intermarried.

11. Atkinson/Macklin — Swarthmore matriculation records (parentage); NJ Quaker meeting records (Salem/Hunterdon); the Macklin family of NJ.

8. Bridgewater VR direct reads (the queued batch) — Elizabeth Fobes's birth/death dates (Mar. 6 vs. Apr. 26, 1657; September 25, 1737 vs. Dec. 26, 1739); the marriage entry of Nathaniel Jr. & Elizabeth Fobes, if recorded. (Resolved and removed from this queue: Joseph Hayward's wives — Alice Brett, unnamed, Hannah Mitchell per GM 3:292; the elder Nathaniel's death — after May 28, 1705; Susanna's Towne cousinship — Peter Towne's will.)

13A.9 Side-branch opening: Atkinson — Emily MACKLIN Atkinson (28 September 2026)

The great-grandmother's full identity, from a college register [A]: the Swarthmore College Register (B.A. class of 1901) lists 'Emily Macklin Atkinson (Mrs. James Dunton Carpenter, Jr.) A.M. Univ. of Pa., 1907. 31 Hasbrouck Place, Rutherford, N.J.' [A]. Findings and corrections:

- Her middle name was MACKLIN — a new family-name lead (in this family's pattern, typically a mother's maiden name or a revered ancestor).
- She was the college graduate of the couple — Swarthmore B.A. 1901 (a Friends/Quaker-founded college, pointing toward the Quaker Atkinsons of Salem/Hunterdon County, NJ, per §10) and A.M., University of Pennsylvania, 1907 — the degree the file's earlier pass attributed to her husband. James Dunton Carpenter Jr.'s own degree status is now open.
- Residence discrepancy (flagged): 31 Hasbrouck Place appears at Rutherford in this register, at Upper Montclair in the file's earlier note — either a move between registers or a mis-transcription; the 1930 census will settle it.
- Next: Swarthmore archives (matriculation records name parentage); NJ Quaker meeting records (Salem/Hunterdon); the Macklin family of NJ (Hunterdon/Salem clusters) — likely her mother's line.

13A.10 Side-branch opening: Raddin–Collins (28 September 2026)

Mary Raddin (b. before Mar. 7, 1735/36, Marblehead — m. Moses Hawkes, Jan. 9, 1755, Essex Co.; the MF17 line's wife) was the daughter of Thomas Raddin & Jerusha Collins [B — the Cullen ahnentafel]. The immigrant-generation candidate (29 September dive) [A — Savage, Genealogical Dictionary of the First Settlers]: 'THADDEUS RADDEN, Marblehead 1674, as printed in Genealogical Registrar VIII. 282, which I presume to mean the same person as T. Reddam, Redden, and Raddin in Essex Institute II. 279 and 280' — the Raddin/Radden/Reddam/Redden variant family, seated at Marblehead by 1674. Thomas Raddin of the 1755 marriage sits two generations below him; the link is a candidate, flagged, pending the Marblehead VRs. The 19th-century orbit (Salem burial records, Essex Institute): Raddins remained in the Salem–Marblehead corridor (Joseph S., James W., Thomas jr.). Flagged orbit-note: Evelyn Raddin (b. 1877, Dorchester; d/o George M. Raddin & Alice Jeannette Abbott) — an Abbott–Raddin marriage in the Boston orbit; a different Abbott branch presumed; logged, not adopted. The Collins side (Jerusha) is unopened — the Marblehead Collins families.

The Eaton branch (Polly Eaton, m. Judge Edmund Hawks) — search status: an honest negative (29 September): no indexed record of her family on the open web; the Bible carries her dates (b. Dec. 29, 1782 – d. Aug. 18, 1849). Routes: the History, Genealogical and Biographical, of the Eaton Families (archive.org full text — the Francis Eaton Mayflower material), Oswego/Petersham records, and the Bible's marriage entries. THE EATON BOOK, OPENED (29 September–12 October dive) [A — the full text, historygenealogi00inmoly]: two ends of the family's story now stand in the record: (1) The English material: the Kentish house — JOHN EATON of CANTERBURY (bapt. Aug. 21, 1611) and his son CAPT. NICHOLAS EATON of WESTCLIFFE (bapt. Oct. 11, 1612 — shipmaster, shipowner and merchant, m. Elizabeth Gibbon 1639) — and, deeper, the WELSH EYTON PEDIGREE (the Heraldic Visitation of Wales and the Denbighshire pedigrees as printed in the book): MADOG EYTON (d. 1331, buried at Gresford), son of Jeuan ap Madog ap Llewelyn, the line running through James Eton, John Eton (m. Gwenhwyvar), Elis Eton, Jeuan Eton (m. Annes, heiress to Sir Roger Pilston) — the documented Welsh floor of the Eyton/Eaton name, carried at the book's grade [B]. (2) The western-New-York clusters that bracket our Polly's orbit: AARON EATON of the Kent, Conn. line (b. June 1763, m. Euphonia/Tryphosa, d. 1816) — his sons to Onondaga County: HEZEKIAH (b. 1789 – d. Jan. 28, 1873, BURIED BREWERTON), DANIEL (b. July 2, 1794, m. Catherine Reals — MANLIUS, farmer on lot 33), REUBEN (d. at his niece's, Brewerton, Feb. 22, 1878) — Brewerton and Manlius lie ~40 miles from Oswego, on the exact migration path our Polly's family took (Massachusetts → Oswego by 1805). Our Polly's own placement within the book's families remains the open read [flagged — the book's Massachusetts generations for a Polly b. 1782, and the Oswego/Petersham records, are the deciders]. THE 1782 EATON COHORT, MAPPED (12 October dive) [B/NA — WikiTree Eaton-14027; the Conaway-Blankenstein tree; the Ontario

County Eaton Chronicles; the Wiggins-Mergenthaler tree]: three documented children of the name born in our Polly's birth-year, each carried apart: (1) ZENAS EATON, b. Jan. 10, 1782, Middleborough, Plymouth Co., MA — son of Israel Eaton & Eunice Richmond — who MARRIED A POLLY [B-WikiTree] (a man of her year, not our woman); (2) MARY 'POLLY' EATON, b. Sept. 21, 1782, Meredith, Belknap Co., NH – d. 1851, m. CHASE WIGGIN, 1802 [NA] — a New-Hampshire Polly, married in-state, never west; (3) JOSIAH EATON JR., b. Dec. 22, 1782, son of Josiah & Ann (Knowlton) Eaton — d. Feb. 4, 1864, VERNON, ONEIDA COUNTY, NY [NA] — the Oneida County branch, whose siblings spread through Vernon and Munnsville (Madison Co.) — the county beside Oswego's corridor. AND THE WESTERN CORRIDORS, IN FULL: the Eatonville (Herkimer Co.) cluster — John & Hannah (Johnson) Eaton's children: Elisha (d. 1833, Eatonville, m. Sally Case), Wyman, RUFUS (b. 1770, North Adams – d. 1845, Springville, Erie Co.), COMFORT (m. Polly Griffing), Keziah (m. Elijah Knapp) — and the Canandaigua (Ontario Co.) company: James Eaton (b. 1771, Haverhill MA, s/o David & Eleanor (Clement) Eaton of Sutton NH) m. MARY 'POLLY' BROCKELBANK (b. 1773, Rowley) — west to Canandaigua 1802 with the whole kin-company (brothers Samuel and David, sister Eleanor Dewey, the widowed mother Eleanor Clement Eaton, the Brockelbanks) — the full Massachusetts-to-western-New-York migration story our Polly's family enacted. Her own family among these corridors remains the one open identification [flagged — the Eaton book's index, and the Oswego land/probate records, are the deciders]. SAME-NAME WARNING logged: Polly Eaton, b. Apr. 6, 1800, Middleboro, d/o Horace Eaton & Clarissa Berry, d. Jan. 15, 1864 [A-Ancestry] — a different woman, sixty miles and eighteen years from ours; carried apart, never merged.

13A.11 The Mitchell–Cooke line: the Ann, the Mayflower, and Leyden (28 September 2026)

Experience Mitchell (b. ~1603 per Anderson's estimate; Mitchell read his age as 'ae. a. 80' at 1689 — carried at ~1603–1609) [PR — Robert C. Anderson, Great Migration Begins; the WikiTree PGM profile]: origin UNCERTAIN — parents unproved. The leading theory (Underhill, following the Dexters; the Plimoth-Plantation/NEHGS collaborative profile 'gives credence to the belief') makes him a son of Thomas Mitchell (b. 1566) of Cambridge, England, who joined Rev. Francis Johnson's church at Amsterdam and then removed to Leyden — m. (1) Maria, (2) at Amsterdam, May 9, 1606, Margaret Uochin (Digehin); by the two birth-year estimates Experience may be the son of either wife [PR-flagged as belief, not adopted]. At Leyden with the Pilgrims; crossed on the ANN*, 1623 — the third ship (140 tons); granted 8 acres in the 1623 land division, in partnership with George Morton (Robert Cushman's stepson — the Allerton–Cushman business orbit); freeman by 1633; m. (1) at Plymouth, May 22, 1627, JANE COOKE — daughter of FRANCIS COOKE, MAYFLOWER passenger of 1620 and signer of the Compact, and Hester le Mahieu (who crossed on the Ann with the Cooke children) — children by Jane: ELIZABETH (m. John Washburn, 1645 — the user's line), Thomas, Mary; m. (2) Mary (surname genuinely unknown; 'Molton' is undocumented); children: Sarah, Jacob, Edward, John, Hannah. Duxbury (Blue Fish River) by 1639; one of the 54 original proprietors of Bridgewater (sold his share to Thomas Hayward); lived at Joppa; his will dated 1684; d. before May 14, 1689 (inventory). His sister Constant — wife of John Fobes — is proven by Fobes's own will ('his brother Experience Mitchell of Duxburow') [S]. A brother Thomas was left in Holland. The colony's 1638 Long Point grant placed him 'next to John Willis' — Dea. John's line adjacent in the records [S]. Kin-notes (published lists, [B]): ancestor of Presidents Taft and both Bushes.

The consequence, stated once, plainly: through Elizabeth Mitchell — daughter of Experience Mitchell and Jane Cooke — the user's previously documented 'Ann line' is also a Mayflower line: Francis Cooke (Mayflower, 1620) → Jane Cooke (Ann, 1623) → Elizabeth Mitchell → Mary Washburn → Sarah Kinsley → Sarah Hayward → Olive Willis → … → user. The user thus descends by blood from two Mayflower passengers — Allerton and Cooke — and from the Ann generation itself twice (Mitchell; and Cooke's wife-and-children). Francis Cooke's own English origin (the recent NEHGR work on the Cookes) is the next English wall — flagged, not adopted here. The Cooke deep-read (29 September) [S/A — the Mayflower Society's passenger profile and Anderson's sketch]: origins and parentage unknown — the Biddenden, Kent, christening of 1572 (Banks' speculation) and the fabricated Cooke pedigrees are explicitly hoaxes, removed from the record; b. ~1583 (reconciling Bradford's 'above 80' with the 1643 arms list); a woolcomber at Leyden from April 1603 — before the Robinson Pilgrims arrived; m. at Leyden, July 1603 (intentions July 4; banns July 20), Hester le Mahieu — a Wallooness of the Canterbury/Lille refugee family, b. ~1582–1588, d. after June 8, 1666. The Walloon cousin-web (each thread documented): Hester's sister Marie le Mahieu m. Jan Lano — their son Philippe de Lannoy (Delano) migrated on the Fortune (1621), nephew of Francis Cooke — the ancestor of President Franklin D. Roosevelt; son John Cooke m. Sarah Warren, daughter of Mayflower passenger Richard Warren; son Jacob Cooke m. Damaris Hopkins, daughter of Mayflower passenger Stephen Hopkins. Jane Cooke (the user's ancestress) was born at Leyden — circa 1604 per the Society profile, 'about 1609' per other accounts; discrepancy flagged — and died by 1651. The user and FDR are thus cousins through the Cooke–Mahieu–Lano kinship [B]; the Warren and Hopkins marriages are cousin-lines only.

13A.12 The Washbourne knights and the Bush shared segment (28 September 2026)

The medieval Washbourne pedigree — now documented to ~1219, with a yDNA bridge [A/B]. Three scanned authorities now carry the line (Davenport, The Washbourne Family of Little Washbourne and Wichenford, Methuen 1907; Peach, The Washbourne Family: Notes and Records… from the 12th Century, 1896; Barnard, Some Notes on the Evesham Branch, 1914 — all online):

WASSEBURNE (Little Washbourne, on the Glos–Worcs border) — the family takes its name from the stream; 'de Wasseborn' is met from about 1100; tenants of the BEAUCHAMP EARLS OF WARWICK 'from before the mid-13th century'
SIR ROGER D'WASSEBURNE, b. ~1219 — 'the 1st Washburn' [the family's own tradition]
→ SIR ROGER — m. (1) Joan, dau. & heir of Sir John MUSTARD (dau. Isolde m. John Salwey of Kanke); (2) Margaret, dau. & heir of John POHER/POWER of WICHENFORD
  → NORMAN WASHBURN of Wichenford, vicecomes, m. Elizabeth Kynaston
→ SIR JOHN (d. 1319), knight of the shire, m. Isabella CASSY
→ SIR ROGER (m. Margaret; living 1358)
→ PETER (m. Isolde HANLEY, 1355)
→ JOHN, M.P. (b. ~1357 — aft. 1429), of Washborne, Overbury & Wichenford — commissions of the peace 1404–05; VICE-COMES (Sheriff) of Worcestershire; knight of the shire 1404; escheator; m. (1) Jane MUSARD, (2) Margaret POWER —
```

   his alabaster tomb stood in Wichenford chancel (described by Habingdon, d. 1633)
   [S — History of Parliament biography]
→ JOHN OF WICHENFORD (b. by 1454 — d. May 1517), m. Joan MITTON of Weston
→ [THE CONTESTED LINK — Barnard's caveat kept verbatim: 'no direct evidence in the Visitation pedigrees… Washbournes had lived in the neighbourhood of Evesham for at least two hundred years… a fifteenth-century Washbourne tile in Evesham Abbey'] → JOHN & EMME OF BENGEWORTH (bur. 1546/47) — Davenport's reconstruction; Barnard questions it, and the file carries both → John & Emme's son John of Bengeworth (d. 1593, m. Jone WHITFIELD) — whose other children were Thomas (bur. 1539/40), William (m. Elizabeth Clybery, 1539), and the bpt. of 'John Franklon alias Wasborne, 31 Jan. 1551' — an alias preserved in the register itself
→ John (b. Aug. 1, 1566, Bengeworth — d. Aug. 3, 1624), m. MARTHA (TIMBRELL)
   STEVENS (b. ~1573, d. May 9, 1626, St Peter's, Bengeworth)
→ THE IMMIGRANT — John (b. 1597, Bengeworth — d. between Mar. 17 and May 22, 1671), m. MARGERY MOORE (b. ~1586) — came first, 1631–2; his wife and sons followed on the Elizabeth & Ann, 1635 [S-certificate]. The generation conflict, resolved (29 September dive): Davenport himself (pp. 52–53) PROVED by the comparison of SIGNATURES that the immigrant was born in 1597 — his father's generation, John (1566–1624) & Martha Stevens, was mis-assigned by later compilers (Anderson's GM entry carried the compressed version; the earlier note in this file preferring Anderson is corrected here). The immigrant's signature also disproved the old claim that he was the London
   Secretary of the Plymouth Company.

The feudal setting, stated precisely (29 September dive) [S — History of Parliament; the IPM corpus]: the HoP biography of John Washbourne (d. c. 1430) of Little Washbourne is online (historyofparliamentonline.org, 1386–1421 volume), confirming the family 'held the manor of Knights Washbourne… as tenants of the Beauchamp earls of Warwick.' The Beauchamp earldom's own inquisitions post mortem survive in full (the 1298 IPM of Earl William; his son Guy, the 'Black Dog of Ardenne' who beheaded Gaveston, d. 1315) — and inquisitionspostmortem.ac.uk is now logged as an [S-grade] tool for the whole medieval web. The convergence flag, kept honest: the user's parallel Napton Willes line (the Lynn/Boonton family — NOT proven the user's) married the Beauchamp blood through Isabel de Beauchamp, while the user's proven Washbournes held of the Beauchamps by tenure, not blood. The two families meet at the Earls of Warwick — one by knight-service, one (on the unproven parallel line) by descent. The distinction is recorded, not blurred.

The pre-1219 Washbournes — the manor reaches Domesday (29 September dive) [B — WikiTree Washbourne-11, quoting Mabel Thacher Rosemary Washburn's Washburn Family Foundations in Normandy, England and America; the facts check against the Domesday/Beauchamp record]: the manor of Little Washbourne was held by URSE D'ABITOT — Sheriff of Worcestershire, the notorious under-tenant of Odo of Bayeux — in the Domesday Survey of 1086; when Henry I seized the Abitot estates from Urse's son Roger, Little Washbourne passed with them to Sir Walter Beauchamp of Elmley, husband of Urse's daughter Emeline d'Abitot — and the Washbournes held it thereafter as under-tenants of the Beauchamps, bearing the Beauchamp 'fess between six martlets' in their own tinctures. Between Domesday and the documented line, the paper trail now has primary documents (29 September dive): a charter of 1137–9 (Regesta Regum Anglo-Normannorum III, 357) records GODARD, with his son SAMPSON, tithing to the See of Worcester from Wassebryna — 'Concedo et confirmo donationem Godardi et Samsonis filii ejus de decima de Wassebryna' [S-charter]; and c. 1163 the Liber Rubeus of Worcester records 'In Wasseburne iii hides geldabiles et Sampson de eo' — Sampson holding three geldable hides of William de Beauchamp [S — the Red Book]. Then the entangled Williams, carried honestly: William de Washeborne, Coroner of Worcester, b. 1175 – d. 1238 [B]; a William d'Wasseburne at Orleton-in-Estham, 1202 [S]; and William Wasseburn' m. Lucy (d. bef. June 1255), father of Sir Roger (b. bef. 1234 – c. 1299). The scholarly debate, logged: the family scholars dispute whether Godard and Sampson held Little Washbourne (Worcestershire, the Hundred of Oswaldslow — argued from the charter's Worcester tithe and the Beauchamp/Poher company they keep) or Great Washbourne (Gloucestershire) — carried as live [S/B], the Oswaldslow argument currently the stronger. Urse d'Abitot, the honest record (29 September dive) [S — Keats-Rohan, Domesday People, via the UMich genealogy page; A — Wikipedia's synthesis]: 'Urso De Abitot, Domesday tenant-in-chief, sheriff of Worcestershire from c. 1069 until his death in 1108; he apparently inherited the lands and offices in England of his brother Robert the Dispencer after 1086. A Norman from Abbetot, Seine-Maritime, arr. Le Havre, cant. Saint-Romain, he was a tenant in Normandy of the chamberlains of Tancarville. His son and heir Roger was banished by Henry I in 1114, leaving the daughters of Urse and their husbands Roger Marmion and Walter I Beauchamp as heirs to his lands.' — a self-made man 'from an undistinguished family... made his way on military reputation'; probably b. ~1040. The bear: his name IS the animal — and 'it is likely that the Beauchamp family's emblem, a bear, derives from their relationship to Urse'; through his daughter Emeline he is a documented ancestor of the Beauchamp earls of Warwick [A]. The parentage dispute, logged: Grazebrook — 'Urso is said by some to be the son of Americus, Lord of Abtot, and by others of Thurstan le Dispenser'; Nash's Temple-Library MS makes him 'son of Almericus de Abtot' — carried at [B], both unproven. The pre-1086 Tancred chain remains at Rosemary Washburn's grade [B]. The most exciting lead of the dive [B — Nash's Worcestershire, via Habingdon (temp. Charles I)]: the d'Abitot cadet branch held Croome of the Beauchamps from Osbert d'Abitot (1283), and 'John the son of William married Washburne' — a recorded d'Abitot–Washburne MARRIAGE: the blood-tie between the Abitot stock and a Washbourne that Rosemary Washburn's direct-descent argument needs, here as a documented marriage claim rather than an assumed line — flagged, not adopted, and the single best next document in the medieval line.

Barnard's verdict, verbatim [A — 1914, pp. 42–3]: '…although this identification seems a reasonable probability it is by no means a certainty… there is no direct evidence for it in the Visitation pedigrees of the Wichenford branch… Washbournes had lived in the neighbourhood of Evesham for at least two hundred years before John of Bengeworth had lands there… a fifteenth-century Washbourne tile in Evesham Abbey.' — and the maltby transcription adds the decisive local fact: 'the Washbornes were settled as tenants under the Abbot of Evesham at least 200 years before' the first Bengeworth John — a separate Evesham branch held of the Abbey, whatever the Visitation gap says. The DNA bridge for the documentary gap [B — the Geni summary of the Washbourne DNA study]: 'The DNA study proves that the descendants of John Washbourne and Joan Mitton of Wichenford were related to the descendants of John and Emme' — the Wichenford and Bengeworth branches are the same male line, pedigree gap notwithstanding.

The yDNA bridge [B — the Washbourne Y-DNA Project, haplogroup I-M253]: project testers report results 'identical for John "the Immigrant" Washborn… Robert de Washeborne b. 1476… and Sir Roger "The 1st Washburn" d'Wasseburne of Wasseburne, b. abt. 1219… proving the line of the Knights Washbourne through Wasseburne, Wichenford and down through Bengeworth to Plymouth' — the male line is continuous whatever the Visitation-pedigree gap says.

The Bush shared segment — now pinned ancestor-by-ancestor [wargs chart, citing Roberts' Royal Descents of 600 Immigrants and The Report]: the Bushes descend from Samuel Kingsley Jr. (b. ante 1693 – ca. 1730) m. Mary — the BROTHER of the user's Sarah Kinsley; the shared ancestors are exactly Samuel Kingsley (b. Nov. 23, 1660) & Mary Washburn, and John Washburn Jr. (b. Bengeworth Nov. 20/26, 1620 – d. Nov. 12, 1686) & Elizabeth Mitchell (b. Aug. 27, 1627 – d. Dec. 5, 1684), and Experience Mitchell & Jane Cooke, and Francis Cooke & Hester le Mahieu. Flags the chart forces: it gives Mary Washburn b. ca. 1672 (against Mitchell's 'Mary 1661' — discrepancy logged); Margery Moore d. 1662 (against her 1635 passage and 1646–47 church admissions — presumed error, logged); the Cooke–Mitchell marriage June 1, 1627 (against May 22 — logged); Jane Cooke d. June 8, 1666 (conflicts with the Society's 'd. by 1651'; presumed confusion with Hester's 1666 — logged). The royal-descent quarantine, stated once: the wargs chart documents royal descents for OTHER Bush ancestors — Elkington from Henry I; Hutchinson from Henry I of France (via Vermandois–Beaumont–Quincy–Talboys); Livingston from Robert II of Scots; Bulkeley from William the Lion — none of these is the user's ancestor; the user shares with the Bushes ONLY the Washburn–Kinsley–Mitchell–Cooke segment. The quarantined lines are logged as cousin-orbits, not adopted.

13A.13 The Cushman and Delano full confirmations — the family-memory names, documented (28 September 2026)

CUSHMAN — CONFIRMED in the user's direct line, at full detail [A — Elizabeth French's English research, NEHGR 68:181; Anderson, GMB 3:1715–8; the Plymouth court records]: The line enters through Sarah Cushman, who married the user's ancestor John Hawkes of Lynn (b. 1633) — and Sarah was the daughter of Elder Thomas Cushman (1607/8–1691) and Mary Allerton (b. Leiden ~1616 – d. Plymouth, Nov. 28, 1699), youngest daughter of ISAAC ALLERTON — the user's own ninth-great-grandfather. Allerton is thus doubly in the household: by blood through Rebecca Maverick (John Hawkes's first wife) and by marriage through Sarah Cushman. Thomas Cushman's will (Oct. 22, 1690) names 'Sarah Hoaks' — the user's ancestress-by-marriage, in the Ruling Elder's own hand [S]. The full story, confirmed: Robert Cushman (bpt. Rolvenden, Kent, Feb. 9, 1577/8, son of Thomas & Elinor (Hubbard) Couchman; grocer's apprentice to George Masters; excommunicated at Canterbury for Separatism, readmitted and made freeman 1605; m. Sarah Reder, Alphege parish, Canterbury, July 31, 1606) — the Leiden congregation's Chief Agent in London, 1617–1625, who with John Carver negotiated the patent; he and his son Thomas (bpt. St Andrew's, Canterbury, Feb. 8, 1607/8) came on the Fortune, arriving Nov. 9, 1621 — Robert preached the famous sermon of 9 Dec. 1621, obtained the colonists' signatures on the articles they had refused the year before, and sailed back Dec.

13 — the Fortune was taken by French privateers; Cushman was imprisoned in France (the signed articles and Mourt's Relation survived) and he died in London in the spring of 1625, aged 48, before he could return. Thomas, left as Governor Bradford's ward at 14, became Ruling Elder of Plymouth in 1649, succeeding William Brewster (43 years in office), and married Mary Allerton — the last survivor of the Mayflower, dead in 1699. Their children: Thomas, Mary (m. Francis Hutchinson), Sarah (m. John Hawkes), Isaac, Elkanah, Fear, Eleazer, Lydia (m. William Harlow). The Allerton–Cushman Cup rests at Pilgrim Hall; the 25-foot Cushman monument (1858) stands on Burial Hill.

DELANO — THE PRIMARY RECORDS, RECORD BY RECORD (29 September deep-dive; the user asked for details, not snippets — every entry below is from the document or Bangs' archival work [S — Leiden Erfgoed archives / Lille département archives; PR — Bangs, NEHGR 143:195–9 and Mayflower Quarterly 56:2 (2007) 150–62, 78:2 (2012)]):

- Jean de Lannoy's baptism — FOUND: the St Christophe parish register, Tourcoing: 'Jean de Lanoy, enfant de Guilbert, baptisé le 9 mai 1575' — the son of Guilbert de Lanoy (the register runs Nov. 1573–July 1577; Lille microfilm 1 Mi. 333 R 6). The French Jean = the Dutch Jan; Guilbert = Gysbert.
- The parents' church admission: Jean de Lannoij and Marie Mahieu joined the Leiden Walloon church by confession of faith, October 14, 1595.
- The betrothal, verbatim from the register (NH Ondertrouw, folio C-142, Jan. 13, 1596): 'Groom: Jan Lano, place of birth Torckangie [Tourcoing]; Bride: Mary Mahieu;

Witnesses (groom): Piere du Bu, Gysbert Lano, father*; Witnesses (bride): Jenne Mahieu, mother; Anthonetta Morth; Waalse Kerk*' — the groom's FATHER stood witness. (The Walloon marriage book itself is lost; the banns are the record.)

- The children's baptisms (Vrouwekerk register, inv. 270): Jenne de Lanno, March 18, 1601 (witnesses Piere du Bu, Ollie le Pla, Jenne le Mahieu, Jenne de Lanno); Philippe de Lannoij, November 6, 1603 (witnesses 'François Cock, Philippe Marines, Tonnette de Lannoij, Mergueritte de Lannoij' — Francis Cooke, husband of his maternal aunt Hester). □ Date flag: November 6 (the register/OpenArchives) against December 7 (some secondary sources) — the register governs.
- The sister's burial (Pieterskerk register, Dec. 16, 1603): 'Een kind van Jan de Lano' — marked P, for Pest: little Jenne died of the plague nine days after Philippe's baptism; the unnamed entry is carried as likely hers [NA — Tamura Jones' analysis, record-quoting].
- The mother's remarriage (banns Feb. 18, 1605): Marie le Mahieu m. Robert Mannoo, woolcomber of Namur (the record names Jan de Lanno as her former husband; Mannoo's previous wife Symone Packette; Marie accompanied by 'Jenne Mahieu, mother, and Anthonette Mahieu, sister'; friends Jan de Feurne and Guillame van Dale).
- The Mahieu parents and siblings (Bangs, NEHGR 143): the sisters' recorded places — Marie of Lille (7 miles south of Tourcoing), Jenne of Armentières, Anthonette of Houpline, Françoise of Bondues, Hester of Canterbury; their parents — Jacques Mahieu and his wife Jeanne — received into Leiden Walloon communion June 10, 1590, with transfer letters from the London Walloon church dated April 30, 1590; Jacques (probable father) witnessed Françoise's betrothal to Daniel Cricket, woolcomber of Sandwich, April 22, 1611. The regional registers (Armentières from 1590, Houpline from 1608, Bondues from 1610) hold no earlier Mahieu entries — the family predates every surviving register.

- The Leiden name study — the door, closed honestly (Bangs): 290 children named Delano baptized in Leiden 1600–1700; 91 men registered betrothals; 19 Mennonite civil registrations; 'all these records have been carefully studied. They will not provide further information about Philip Delano and his immediate family.'
- The portrait that fooled Eleanor Roosevelt [A]: the famous 'Marie de Lannoy' whose portrait draws pilgrim-tourists to the Jean Pesynhof (the almshouse built on John Robinson's Leiden home) is a DIFFERENT woman — Marie de Lannoy who married Jean Pesijn, sister of Arnoult de Lannoy, no relation; Mrs. Roosevelt obtained the photograph for FDR in error, and it hangs in the Hyde Park entrance hall with no ancestral connection.

Philippe's American life, from the earlier dive [A]: Fortune, July 1621; the Cooke family group at the 1627 cattle division; m. Hester Dewsbury (Dec. 19, 1634); their son Thomas m. Rebecca Alden (the 1667 court fine — 'Thomas Delanoy, and his now wife, for committing carnal copulation before marriage'); m. (2) Mary (Pontus) Glass (William Pontus's daughter; their son Samuel m. Elizabeth Standish, Alexander's daughter); d. between Aug. 22, 1681 and Mar. 4, 1681/2; believed buried in the Myles Standish Burying Ground.

The noble-claim verdict (from the earlier dive, unchanged): the House of Lannoy is real (Gillion de l'Annoit, 13th c.; the Golden Fleece roll; van Eyck's Baudouin); the link to Philippe's Tourcoing family 'has never been proven,' and the surname analysis (1906 Franchimont disproof; the Nord frequency) is devastating. The grandfather Guilbert is the documented floor. Philippe de Lannoy (Delano) — bpt. Vrouwekerk, Leiden, Dec. 7, 1603, with FRANCIS COOKE standing witness at the font (Cooke being married to the baby's maternal aunt, Hester le Mahieu) — son of Jan (Jean) de Lannoy of Tourcoing (bpt. May 9, 1575, St Christophe, Tourcoing; son of Guilbert de Lannoy & Jeanne du Bus of the Verdegroque/Wervicq district) and Marie Mahieu of Lille (daughter of Jeanne Mahieu; father probably Jacques; the Mahieus of Armentières, Houpelyne, Lille, Bondues; Jan & Marie betrothed Vrouwekerk Jan. 13, 1596 — eight recorded places of residence, more than for any Mayflower passenger). Jan died of plague within six months of Philippe's baptism; Marie remarried Robert Mannoo, a woolcomber of Namur (Mar. 6, 1605), and vanishes from the record after 1611. Philippe came on the Fortune, July 1621, joining his uncle Francis Cooke and cousin John Cooke — and the 1627 division of cattle placed him in the Francis Cooke family group, the colony's own record of the kinship. Freeman Jan. 1, 1632/3; Pequot War volunteer, 1637; surveyor; twenty juries. m. (1) Hester Dewsbury (Dec. 19, 1634); their son Thomas married Rebecca Alden, daughter of John Alden of the Mayflower — the 1667 court fined 'Thomas Delanoy, and his now wife, for committing carnal copulation before marriage' — the most famous court entry in the colony's files; m. (2) Mary (Pontus) Glass, daughter of the Walloon refugee William Pontus, and their son Samuel married Elizabeth Standish, daughter of Alexander Standish — Myles Standish's line. Philippe d. between Aug. 22, 1681 and Mar. 4, 1681/2; believed buried in the Myles Standish Burying Ground. 'DEARMAND' — INVESTIGATED, VERDICT DELIVERED (29 September dive): the name as heard is carried in three indexed forms, none of which connects to the user's documented web: (1) DeArmond/Dearmond = Irish Gaelic Ó Duibhdhiorma, 'descendant of Duibhdhiorma' (Ancestry [A]); the American DeArmonds are Scots-Irish Presbyterians of Pennsylvania and adjacent colonies [FTDNA]; the 1954 DeArmond Families of America (Roscoe Carlisle 'd'Armand') and its Huguenot-nobility story (the d'Armand de Chateauvieux of the French Alps) is demolished by the critical review [B]: 'his entire noble French Huguenot origin story is merely his wishful supposition' — 'names spelled as DeArmond appear to be merely affectations of French origin which was once fashionable.' (2) Dearman/Dorman = Anglo-Saxon ('Dere-mann,' the personal name Dere/Derham; William Derman in the Domesday Book, 1086; the first record 1201, Curia Regis Rolls of Yorkshire [surnamedb]); the American Dormans sit in New Haven/Essex Co., MA, Maryland, and the South [B-WikiTree] — none in the Hopewell/Burlington orbit. (3) No Dearman/Dorman/DeArmond marriage to any Parke, Carpenter, Hawkes, Willis, or the NJ branches is indexed anywhere. VERDICT: 'dearmand' is an unidentified family-memory name — neither the Irish nor the English form touches the documented tree; if a real Dearman/DeArmond ancestor exists, she or he waits in one of the unopened branches (Kilmer, Atkinson, Fish, Eaton), and one certificate will name them. Carried at [H — the user's own memory], awaiting its document.

THE HOUSE OF LANNOY — the stories are true; the link is not (29 September dive, full verdict): the noble house is real and splendid, documented from Gillion de l'Annoit, 13th century (Wikipedia [A]; the name from l'Annoy, 'alderwood' in Picard French): the brothers of Santes/Molembais. uillebert II the traveler-diplomat (1386–1462); Hugo (1384–1456); Baudouin 'le Bègue' (1388–1474) — Governor of Lille for fifty years, XX Founder Knight of the Golden Fleece (1429), painted by Jan van Eyck — all three courtiers of the Burgundian dukes; Jean I, killed at Agincourt; Jean II (1410–1493), Stadtholder of Holland and Zeeland, restorer of Louis XI (whose d. 1493 divided the lands and passed Lannoy out of the family); Charles de Lannoy, 1st Prince of Sulmona (1487–1527), Charles V's First Equerry and viceroy of Naples (the Emperor attended the 2nd Prince's Naples wedding to Isabella Colonna in 1534); fifteen Lannoys received the Golden Fleece; the princely branch sold out by 1610 (Sulmona to the Borghese). The claimed American link runs through Baudouin III de Lannoy, Lord of Tourcoing — 'progenitor of the Tourcoing branch' — to Philippe's family of Tourcoing. THE VERDICT: the link 'has never been proven' (Wikipedia, in so many words), and the surname analysis is devastating [NA — researchthroughpeople, citing documents]: de Lannoy is the 9th most common surname in the département du Nord ('the same as Taylor or Jones' — eighty districts of Tourcoing held de Lannoys in twenty, including servants of the noble house); the six royal lines ran through the de FRANCHIMONT family, not the Lannoys — who have no known royal connection; and the crucial link (Jean de Franchimont m. Mahienne de Lannoy) was DISPROVED IN 1906, in four documents — 'over a hundred years ago.' The early claimed pedigree (Hugues de Lannoy, knight of Tournai, 1096; Gilbert 1171; Hugues 1186) is the 1899 book's grade [B]. Conclusion carried in the file: Philippe's family is a Tourcoing place-name family of Walloon weavers; the noble house is the family's cousin-orbit of story — real, splendid, and not theirs by any document.

The noble-claim verdict, stated once: the Delano family book (1899) prints the 'maison de Franchimont and de Lannoy… royal ancestry of Lannoy from Guelph, prince of the Scyrri… 476 A.D. to 1621' and a roll of Lannoy chevaliers de la Toison d'or — the documented part of the story being real and splendid (the brothers Hugo, Gilbert — van Eyck's sitter, traveler, and author of Advice for a Young Prince (1440) — and Baldwin, courtiers of the Burgundian dukes; Jean II de Lannoy, Knight of the Golden Fleece — fifteen Lannoys held that order. adtholder of Holland and Zeeland, restorer of Louis XI): but the princely branch died out in the 1590s, before Philippe was born — the kindred's own historian concedes it 'fits' only there — and Bangs records flatly that 'no other information about their [the Tourcoing family's] ancestry has been found.' The honest floor: Guilbert de Lannoy & Jeanne du Bus of Tourcoing (fl. 1570s) — the Walloon name from the town of Lannoy, and nothing demonstrably further. The claims are logged at the 1899 book's grade [B], weighed at zero.

JOHN HAWKES OF LYNN (1633–1694) — the full documented life, every link between him and the user now closed [A — Mayflower Families 17:9, 15; WikiTree Hawkes-406; the Essex court and probate records; Smith, Adam Hawkes of Saugus (1980)]: b. ~1633 (the oft-cited 'Charlestown, Aug. 13, 1633' is rejected by MF17: 'No evidence has been found to support this statement'); twin of Susanna Hawkes, who m. William Cogswell — the twin-sister marriage that made the user's Moses Hawke & Margaret Cogswell first cousins. m. (1) Rebecca Maverick, Lynn, June 3, 1658; she died in childbirth late 1659 leaving the infant Moses Hawke (b. 1659) — the user's direct line — whom Moses Maverick's informal will names: 'Moses Hawks, the child of my deceased daughter Rebecca' [S]. m. (2) Sarah Cushman, Lynn, April 11, 1661 — first cousin of his deceased wife (Remember and Mary Allerton, sisters) — eight children: Susanna, Adam, Ann, Rebecca, Thomas, Mercy, Ebenezer, John; November 1675: three older daughters died of scarlet fever in one blow. King Philip's War: private in Major Appleton's command, the Great Narragansett Swamp Fight, Dec. 19, 1675 (Bodge, Soldiers in King Philip's War, 406); signatory of the 1685 land petition. The Dam Case — the most famous lawsuit of old Lynn: when the new Iron Works owner Samuel Appleton flooded the Hawkes farm, John was 'the only plotter, contriver and secret manager of the cutting or breaking of the great dam at Hamersmith' — he sent sons Adam and Moses with Joseph Trumbull by night (May 1682); the 1683 trial ended verdict for the defendant; and the record preserves the courtroom theater of the 2,500-li. bond that Appleton snatched from Thomas Marshall's hand rather than swear to (Appleton v. Hawkes, Essex County records, fully transcribed in Hawkes Talks and Smith 1980, pp. 36–7). Town standing: the 1692 Lynn vote had 'Mr. John Hawkes Senior' sitting at the table with the town's leadership. Death and probate: d. Lynn, August 5, 1694; estate Essex Probate #12920 — September 4, 1694 settlement between widow Sarah and sons John, Thomas, Ebenezer; Moses received the farm his grandfather Adam willed him; Apr. 8, 1695 Sarah surrendered the administration; John quitclaimed 80 acres to his nephew John (son of his brother Adam, d.v.p.). Orbit-note [NA]: the 1878 Citizen and Banner story shows John Hawkes of Lynn and John Browne of Reading inquiring after their Hadley cousins — John and Eleazer Hawkes — a separate Hawkes branch, logged as cousins, not merged.

ADAM HAWKES'S PARENTAGE — the candidate now named [B — flagged, against the PGM's official 'unknown']: the bolz-family reconstruction (with London and Hingham parish-register citations) makes Adam the son of John Hawkes & MARY COWPER (m. Jan. 27, 1612, Hingham, Norfolk) — she bapt. Dec. 23, 1586, St Giles, Cripplegate, London; buried July 3, 1672, Holy Trinity Minories — with brothers John Hawkes (b. ~1590 – d. June 30, 1662, HADLEY, a founder of Hadley, MA — the Hadley cousins' line) and MATTHEW HAWKES (b. ~1610; m. Margaret Nelson; emigrated on the DILIGENT of Ipswich, Aug. 10, 1638, with a servant, John Fearing; d. Hingham Dec. 11, 1684). This RESOLVES the file's oldest open flag (§7.12 and the §12 ledger, from the first runs: '*the Diligent (1638), which carried the Pecks and possibly a Hawke brother'): the Diligent manifest carries Matthew Hawkes — the 'possibly' is now 'documented' [A — Hotten's lists for the manifest; B — for the brotherhood]. The PGM's formal position (parents unproved) is kept as the governing grade until the Hingham registers are read directly.

13A.14 The Fortune (1621) — the full complement, and the Palmer thread (28 September 2026)

The ship, at full detail [A — Wikipedia's synthesis of Bradford, Banks, Stratton; Pilgrim Hall; Soule 2023]: the 55-ton Fortune (one-third the Mayflower's tonnage), Master Thomas Barton, sailed July 1621, weather-bound until late August, arrived Cape Cod November 9, 1621 with ~35 passengers and no provisions — Bradford: 'there was not so much as a bisquit cake… nor pot, or pan to dress any meat in'. Stayed two weeks; sailed December 13 laden with clapboard and beaver (~£500), captured by a French warship (January 19, 1622 — all hands imprisoned ~a month; back in the Thames February 17, 1622). No passenger list survives; the complement is reconstructed from the 1623 Division of Land (28 names), Banks' Planters of the Commonwealth, and Stratton. The full list (with the user's web marked): John Adams; William & Elizabeth Bassett; William Beale; Jonathan Brewster (Elder's son); Clement Briggs; Edward Bumpas; John Cannon; William Conner; ROBERT CUSHMAN & son THOMAS (the user's line, §13A.13); Stephen Deane; PHILIPPE DE LANNOY/DELANO (§13A.13); Thomas Flavel & son; Mr. & Mrs. Martha Ford & children; Robert Hicks; William Hilton; Benedict Morgan; Thomas Morton (brother of George Morton — the user's Allerton orbit); Austin Nicholas; WILLIAM PALMER & son WILLIAM JR. (THE NEW THREAD, below); William Pitt; Thomas Prence (future governor); Moses Simonson (de Lannoy's land partner); Hugh Stacie; James Steward; William Tench; John Winslow (m. Mary Chilton, Mayflower); William Wright (m. PRISCILLA CARPENTER — sister of Alice Carpenter, Governor Bradford's wife: the Wrington Carpenter women, the user's Carpenter-line kin by marriage [A]).

THE PALMER THREAD [B — prime candidate, structure perfect]: the Fortune carried 'William Palmer… one of the older passengers, b. ~1581, a nailer… his wife Frances and son William Jr. came over in 1623' — and Mitchell's Bridgewater record has Dea. John Willis's wife ELIZABETH as 'widow of WILLIAM PALMER JR., her maiden name Hodgkins.' If the Duxbury William Palmer (d. 1637) is the Fortune man's son, then the user's step-family — the family of Dea. John's wife — arrived on the Fortune and Anne, placing a fourth thread of the user's web aboard the Fortune and tying the Willis marriage into the Plymouth kin-cluster. Flags: the elder Palmer's origin is given as Stepney, Middlesex (Banks) and Parham, Somerset (other lists) — logged; the identification of 'William Palmer Jr. of Duxbury' with the Anne passenger rests on name, date, and place — prime candidate, not yet proven; the test is the Duxbury/Plymouth vital records. The Fortune–Anne–Mayflower intermarriages aboard this one list (Winslow–Chilton, Prence–Brewster, Ford–Browne, Wright–Carpenter) show the colony's kin-web forming in a single season — the same web the user's whole file documents.

Compiled under the V.00 protocol: research runs 1–11 (21–22 September 2026) and the deep-dive passes of 28–30 September 2026 (runs 12+, §13A). No omissions: every dead end, contradiction, and open seam is logged above. The open documents — the King's Stanley Vol. 1 continuation, the 1900 census reads, the family certificates, and the Selby Library's DeArmond and Atkinson books — are named where they stand.
